RESOLUTION—No. 3770M.

RE-ESTABLISHMENT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE NADIA MUNICIPALITY

READ—

Resolution No. 32M., dated the 4th January 1904.

BY the orders contained in the Resolution cited above the Commissioners of the Nadia Municipality were superseded for a period of one year under section 65 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884; and the Government ordered, under section 66, that all their powers and duties should during that period be exercised and performed by Babu Barada Das Basu, Deputy Magistrate, who was at that time Subdivisional Officer of Ranaghat.

2. That period will expire on 5th January 1905. Babu Arun Kumar Bose, Deputy Magistrate, the officer who is at present vested with all the powers and charged with all the duties of the Commissioners of the Nadia Municipality, has submitted a proposal under section 9(e) of the Act that the number of Commissioners should be reduced from twelve to nine; and the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to direct that a notification declaring his intention to issue orders to that effect be published in the next issue of the Calcutta Gazette.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor is also of opinion that it is desirable for the present, in the interests of the town, that the Chairman and the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Local Government. His Honour trusts that it will be possible soon to restore to the Nadia Municipality its former privileges, and the question will be considered on the expiry of another year. Meanwhile the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to direct, under section 66 of the Act, that this Municipality be entered in both the first and second schedules of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

It was also in force in certain tracts of the Sonthal Parganas from 1st September 1901, while the other parganas of the Singhbhum district and other tracts of the Sonthal Parganas and the Chittagong Hill Tracts district were not under the operation of either of the above Acts.

RECEIPTS.

2. In the Darjeeling district and in the Dhalbhum and Porahat parganas of the Singhbhum district in which the Cess Act was in force, the cess was levied at the maximum rate allowed by law. In the tracts of the Sonthal Parganas, however, in which the Cess Act was introduced, there were no cess collections during the year. For the Chittagong Hill Tracts and the portions of the Sonthal Parganas and Singhbhum districts which were not under the operation of the Act, and in which therefore there were no cess collections, funds were provided by grants-in-aid. The receipts for the year 1903-1904, compared with those of the previous year, are shown below:—

3. In the Darjeeling district there was an apparent increase in the total receipts of the year, which was mainly due to the readjustment, in the year under review, of the sum of Rs. 1,00,000 received from Government as loan in 1900 and 1901 for the restoration of road-cess bridges damaged by the cyclone of September 1899. This amount was originally charged as "Contribution to Provincial Civil Works" under Accountant-General, Bengal's No. L.A.—326, of the 20th August 1901; but under his latest order, No. 795A.C., of the 19th January 1904, it was readjusted in January 1904 by credit to the head "Contribution from Provincial to Local" and by debit to "Original Works" (Rs. 90,827), "Repairs" (Rs. 7,806), and "Advances" (Rs. 1,367). In this district Rs. 20,754 was collected on account of cess on land during 1903-1904, against Rs. 20,695 of the preceding year, but under "Cess on mines etc.," there were no collections; the amount which was hitherto erroneously shown under the latter head has been included under "Cess on land" under Board of Revenue No. 3316A., dated the 23rd April 1903; the decrease in the total collection of "Cess on lands, etc.," was due to the payment of less advance by the cess-payers during the year. The increase in "Contribution from the Darjeeling Improvement Fund" was chiefly due to an additional contribution granted from that Fund to assist the Road Fund in carrying out original works in the Hill portion of the district.

4. In the Sonthal Parganas the increase in the receipts under "Grant from Government" was mainly due to larger grants than those in the previous year under the following:—

(1) Grant for miscellaneous public improvements in Government Estates.
(2) Do. from Forest Revenue.

5. In the Chittagong Hill Tracts the decrease under the head "Miscellaneous" was owing to the decrease in the tramway receipts, as the tramway at Barkal was let out on contract under Government orders.

6. The following table shows the outlay incurred in 1902-1903, compared with that of the previous year:—

7. In the Darjeeling district, as on the receipt side, there was an apparent increase on the expenditure side. Rupees 90,827 and Rs. 7,806 were debited by readjustment to Original Works and Repairs respectively in the year under review under Accountant-General, Bengal's order, as stated in paragraph 3 above. The sum of Rs. 301 shown in the accounts of the Committee under a separate head, "Signboards,—" under 45 Civil Works, represents the amount spent for putting up signboards on some of the road-cess roads. It should have been shown under "Repairs—Communications." In this district the year opened with a balance of Rs. 16,932, but it closed with a balance of Rs. 22,472. This closing balance was more than one quarter of the year's receipts of the Committee, that is, above the limit prescribed in paragraph 9 of the Resolution No. 4228R.C., dated 18th December 1885.

8. In the Sonthal Parganas district also the year opened with a cash balance of Rs. 43,969, but it closed with a balance of Rs. 54,727, which was excessive. The cause of this heavy closing balance was mainly due to—

(a) the large amounts provided for certain bridge works which could not be spent owing to the projects pending since the early part of 1902 not having been approved yet;

(b) the failure to make proper arrangements for the expenditure of the allotments received for miscellaneous improvements in Government estates by the regular executive staff under the District Engineer, who were not able to devote the necessary time to ascertaining the actual needs of the Damin and submitting definite proposals for execution.

9. Of the total expenditure incurred during the year, Rs. 2,03,185 was devoted to Civil Works, while the outlay under other sub-heads, exclusive of "Suspense Accounts," was Rs. 34,525 in the aggregate. The distribution of the outlay on Civil Works is as follows:—

* Including Rs. 7,806 out of Rs. 1,00,000 readjusted, as stated in paragraph 7 above.

10. Original Works.—No new works were carried out during the year in the district of Darjeeling. The sum of Rs. 90,827 shown as expenditure under "Original Works—Communications" represents the portion of the amount charged by readjustment of Rs. 1,00,000. as stated in paragraph 7 above. The principal works carried out in the other districts during the year 1903-04 are as follows:—

Singhbhum district—

(1) Gravelling Gamaria—Jamda Road and second section of Chaibassa-Jyntgurh Road.

(2) Constructing Koali-Kalimati Feeder Road.

(3) Improving Chakradharpur-Goilkera and Chakulia-Baharagora Roads.

Sonthal Parganas—

From Local Funds—

(1) Stone metalling Dumka-Rampur Hât Road.
(2) Construction of culverts on Dumka-Katikund Road.
(3) Ditto of Dhoboi Bridge.

(8) Providing corrugated-iron pipe culverts for Dumka and Pakour Damins.

11. Repairs.—The total expenditure under this head was Rs. 67,181 as detailed in the table below :—

Total ...	1,34,691	27,072	20·09

* Inclusive of expenditure of Rs. 37,014 incurred on Imperial and Provincial Civil Works

In the Darjeeling district the very low percentage is due to the fact that no Engineer was employed: all the works and repairs in the hills of the district and most of those in the Terai were executed by the members of the Committee and other private gentlemen to whom the thanks of Government are due for their assistance. The sum of Rs. 1,040 spent under this head was for the Public Works establishment in the Terai subdivision only. The percentage in the district of Sonthal Parganas is high. In this district the charges for establishment during the year were Rs. 15,846, against Rs. 16,903 of the previous year.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, together with the Annual Accounts of the several District Road Funds and District Road Account, and abstracts from the reports of the Chairmen of the several District Road Committees be published in Part II of the Calcutta Gazette.

Ordered, also, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded for information to the—

Commissioners of the Rajshahi, Bhagalpur, Chittagong, and Chota Nagpur Divisions;
Superintending Engineers of the Northern and Western Circles;
Inspectors of Works, Bhagalpur and Eastern Circles;
Accountant-General, Bengal;
Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces;
Financial Department of this Government.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. F. HIGGINS,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Abstract of the Report by the Chairman, District Road Committee of Darjeeling, on the operations of the District Road Fund of the District for the year 1903-1904.

[Vide letter No. 76R.—F., dated 29th June 1904, from J. H. E Garrett, Esq., I.C.S., Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Darjeeling, to the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division.]

1. Working of the Committees.—(a) District Road Committee.—There were 18 members of the Committee—5 official and 13 non-official. Four meetings were held during the year. The average attendance was 8·2 or 45·5 per cent. at a meeting.

(b) Kurseong Branch Committee.—The total number of members were 8—2 official and 6 non-official. Five meetings were held during the year. The average attendance was 3·6 or 45 per cent. at a meeting.

(c) Terai Branch Committee.—Eighteen was the total number of members of this Committee—6 official and 12 non-official. Altogether six meetings were held during the year. The average attendance was 7·16 or 39·4 per cent. at a meeting. The attendance of the members of the Committee shows an improvement.

2. The year opened with a cash balance of Rs. 16,931-12-3 and advances outstanding Rs. 604-8-2. A sum of Rs. 48,266-6-10 was available for expenditure, excluding the sum of Rs. 1,00,000, received from Government as loan in 1900 and 1901 for the restoration of Road Cess Bridges damaged by the cyclone of September 1899. This amount was originally charged as "Contribution to Provincial Civil Works" under Accountant-General, Bengal's No. L.A 326, dated the 20th August 1901; but under his latest order, No. A/C. 795 dated the 19th January 1904, it has been readjusted in January 1904 by credit to the head "Contribution from Provincial to Local" and debited to "Original Works" (Rs. 90,827), "Repairs" (Rs. 7,806), and "Advances" (Rs. 1,367). The actual expenditure during the year was Rs. 26,662-9-8, which excludes Rs. 98,633 charged by readjustment out of Rs. 1,00,000 mentioned above. The balance at the close of the year was Rs. 23,970-13-2 including the unadjusted advances of Rs. 1,498-12-11, outstanding at the end of the year; Rs. 1,367 out of this Rs 1,498 12-11 outstanding advances, represents the unexpended balance of the above mentioned Rs. 1,00,000 readjusted. The closing balance was more than one-quarter's kist. This is allowed under Government order No. 5106 R. C., dated the 26th September 1902.

Receipts.

3. Provincial Rates.—The Road Cess was levied in the District at the maximum rate of six pies in the rupee during the year. The sum of Rs. 20,754-0-1 was collected on account of Cess on Land during the year, against Rs. 20,694-7-9 of the preceding year. The Cess on Mines, etc., collected during the year was nil, against Rs. 389-1-11 of 1902-1903. The amount which was hitherto erroneously shewn as "Cess on Mines, etc.," has been included under the head "Cess on Land," under Board of Revenue No. 3316A., dated 23rd April 1903, hence nothing was credited under the head "Cess on Mines, etc." The decrease in the total collection was due to the payment of less advance by the Cess-payers during the year.

4. Contributions—(a) Provincial to Local.—The sum of Rs. 1,00,000 shewn under this head, represents the amount credited by readjustment, under Accountant-General, Bengal's No. A/C. 795, dated the 19th January 1904 (vide paragraph 2 above).

(b) Grant from Government.—Rs 2,458-0-8 and Rs 384 were received from Government on account of 1¼ per cent. of the collections from Government Estates and the Government share of the cost of Joint Cess and Towzi Establishment, respectively. The increase of Rs. 64-13-6 in the 1¼ per cent. was due to the increase of collection from Government Estates The decrease of Rs. 285-8-4 on account of Government share of the cost of Joint Establishment was due to the realization of the same at the new scale fixed by Accountant-General.

(c) Contribution from Darjeeling Improvement Fund.—The sums of Rs. 7,000 and Rs. 98 were received on account of contribution towards "Communications," and its share of the cost of Joint Cess and Towzi Establishment, respectively. The increase was chiefly due to an additional contribution granted by the Darjeeling Improvement Fund, to assist the Road Fund in carrying out Original Works in the Hill portion of the District, besides Rs. 2,000 granted as usual for repairs to roads in the Terai portion.

Expenditure.

5. Original Works.—No expenditure was actually incurred for Original Works during the year. The sum of Rs. 90,827, shewn under this head, represents the part of the amount charged by readjustment of Rs 1,00,000 stated in paragraph 2.

6. Repairs—Communications.—The total expenditure under this head, as per details below, was Rs. 20,931-13-11, out of which Rs 7,806 was charged on account of readjustment referred to in paragraph 2. The actual total expenditure during the year was, therefore, Rs. 13,125-13-11 which, compared with the figures of the preceding year, shews an increase of Rs. 1,797-5-7. This was mainly due to the repairs of the important Road Cess Bridges done by the Public Works Department.

7. Three hundred and eight miles of unmetalled roads, including the bridges thereon, were repaired at a cost of Rs. 12,875 or Rs. 41·8 per mile and 10 miles of village roads at a cost of Rs. 251 or Rs. 25·1 per mile. A sum of Rs. 1,960 (included in the above Rs. 12,875) was spent for the repairs of the principal hill bridges under the Darjeeling and Kurseong Committees. The increase in the cost per mile of the District roads is due to the circumstances explained in paragraph 6, and that of the village roads is mainly due to the expenditure incurred for the thorough repairs of a certain village road in the Hills which had not been repaired during the last two years. A sum of Rs. 300-12 was spent for putting up sign-boards on some of the Road Cess Roads.

8. Water-supply.—There was no expenditure under this head as this is attended to by the Darjeeling Improvement Fund.

9. Loan.—A sum of Rs. 3,093-0-1 principal and Rs. 3,618-1-7 interest was paid during the year towards the loans granted by Government in 1900 and 1901. No fresh loan was taken during 1903-1904.

10. Public Works Establishment.—There was no Engineer under the Committee during the year. All the works in the Hills and most of the works in the Terai were done by the Managers of Tea Gardens and other private gentlemen, to whom the Committee is thankful for their valuable assistance. The important bridges lately reconstructed were repaired by the Public Works Department at the cost of the District Road Fund. The sum of Rs. 1,040-4 was spent for the entertainment of an Overseer and a Peon under the Terai Branch Road Committee at Siliguri. Besides Road Fund works, the Darjeeling Improvement Fund and Government Estates' works are also done by the Road Cess Overseer. The pay of the Overseer was Rs. 60 with a fixed horse allowance of Rs. 20, and that of the Peon was Rs. 7 per mensem.

11. Audit of Accounts.—The members of the Sub-Committee have audited the accounts of the whole year. The accounts since November 1902 have not been audited by the Examiner of Local Accounts, Bengal.

DISTRICT ROAD FUND OFFICE,
DARJEELING;
The 25th June 1904.

Abstract of the Report by the Chairman, District Road Committee of Singhbhum, on the operations of the District Road Fund of the District for the year 1903 1904.

[Vide letter No. 52R.C., dated 30th May 1904, from H. F. Samman, Esq., I.C.S., Chairman, District Road Committee, Singhbhum, to the Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division.]

1. Working of the Committee.—The Road Committee held three meetings during the year, in all of which quorums were obtained.

2. The accounts were as usual audited by the Finance Committee appointed under section 174 of the Act. The Local Auditor inspected the accounts for the period from 1st September 1902 to 31st January 1904.

RECEIPTS.

3. The cess was levied at the maximum rate and there was no difficulty in collecting it at head-quarters. The demand on account of cess on lands and mines, etc., during the year, including arrears of last year, amounted to Rs. 14,835; of this Rs. 4 was collected in advance during the previous year, Rs. 29 was remitted with the Commissioner's sanction as irrecoverable, and Rs. 14,377 was collected within the year, thus leaving a balance of Rs. 425 only outstanding on 31st March 1904. Including a few small miscellaneous receipts, special and annual Government grants, and an opening balance of Rs. 2,904-13-11, the income available for expenditure in the year was 34,645-1-1.

EXPENDITURE.

4. Civil Buildings—Repairs.—The Road Cess building at Chaibassa was repaired at a cost of Rs. 255-3-5, including the construction of an additional verandah to the store godown, against the sanctioned allotment of Rs. 250.

5. Communications—Original works.—The following original and improvement works were executed during the year, at a cost of Rs. 10,145-12-6, against the budget allotment and special Government grant of Rs. 11,200 :—

(a) Chaibassa-Jyntgurh road.—Heavy and worn out portions of the second section of this road, aggregating about four miles in length, were mended with gravel, over a layer of soling where necessary. The lands along the sides of this road have also been acquired, but compensation for lands was not paid during the year.

(c) Chakradharpur-Goilkera road.—A special grant of Rs. 1,100 was made by Government during the year, and the improvement of the road was completed. The works done chiefly consisted of earthwork in raising low portions, making side drains, and reconstruction of culverts.

(d) Kodli-Kalimati road.—A feeder road to the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. Construction of this road has been taken up since 1900-1901. About three miles of the second section of this road was completed during the year.

(e) Gamaria-Jumda road.—Nearly half the gravel collected in the previous year on this road was spread and consolidated during the year, at a cost of Rs. 200.

6. Communications—Repairs.—Sixteen roads were repaired during the year at a cost of Rs. 8,584-4-3, against the allotment of Rs. 8,800. The works chiefly consisted of the annual maintenance of these roads, including repairs to road surfaces and culverts and easing down a few of the steep approaches to beds of unbridged streams and rivers.

7. Village roads.—There are altogether eight roads, aggregating about 39 miles in length, of which 17 miles were repaired and made passable for cart traffic.

8 The following statement shows the length or district roads (metalled and unmetalled) and village roads, the amount spent on the maintenance of roads, and the cost per mile :—

No roads are maintained by the District Road Cess Committee from Public Works Funds

9. Arboriculture.—Two hundred and ninety-three new trees were planted during the year. These, together with 823 unestablished plants for the previous years, were maintained at a cost of Rs. 249 under the direct supervision of the Road Sircar, the allotment being Rs. 300. The existing trees were reported to be in fair condition.

10. Nursery.—There are five nursery gardens—one at Chaibassa on the south bank of the Jubilee tank, containing about 300 plants; one at Boea containing about 100 plants; one at Thulko, containing about 60 plants; one at Jorápukur containing about 60 plants; and one at Gamaria containing about 100 plants. The plants were reported to be flourishing.

11. The following statement compares the cost of maintenance during the year of the several classes of roads with that of the previous year and the average cost per mile:—

Classification of district roads.	Length.		Expenditure incurred.		Average cost per mile.

The cause of increase in maintenance charges under Class IV is under enquiry.

12. No famine-relief operations were carried out during the year.

13. The following table compares the revenue of the District Road Cess Committee (excluding opening balance and suspense account), the expenditure incurred on original and repair works and the establishment employed on these works, the percentage of this establishment on the amount spent on works as also the percentage of total expenditure on works, including establishment, calculated on the revenue, with those of the two previous years:—

ASUTOSH DE BISWAS,
Accountant and Head Clerk, Singhbhum Road Cess Office.

MOHINI MOHAN GHOSH,
Vice-Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Singhbhum.

H. F. SAMMAN,
Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Singhbhum

Abstract of the Report by the Chairman, District Road Committee of the Santhal Parganas, on the operations of the District Road Fund of the District for the year 1903-04.

[Vide letter No 147P.W., dated the 2nd June 1904, from A. N. MOSELY, ESQ., I.C.S., Chairman of the District Road Committee of the Santhal Parganas, to the Commissioner of the Bhagalpur Division and Santhal Parganas.]

THE provisions of the Cess Act were extended to certain selected portions of the district under Government Notification No 4489R P., dated the 20th August 1901. But there were no cess collections during the year owing to certain difficulties having arisen with regard to the valuation of the estates borne on the tauzi roll of other districts.

2. Besides the Chairman, the Committee consisted of nine members, of whom three were ex-officio and the rest non-official. Of the latter, one is a Christian Missionary and the others belong to the class of landed proprietors or hold analogous positions. During the year the Committee held 11 meetings against 9 in the previous year. Of these, 6 were special and 5 ordinary meetings. No quorum was had in three of the meetings, which had to be adjourned in consequence. The average attendance of the members was 4·00 against 3·00 in the previous year, and the percentage of average attendance 40·00 against 33·30. The percentage of average attendance of the official members was 79·54 as compared with 13·63 of that of the non-official gentlemen. The low attendance of the latter is, perhaps, due to the fact that, as no cess was collected, there was no particular reason for their attendance, as they had no direct interest in the funds which were being administered, and that they all, but one, resided at a distance from Dumka.

RECEIPTS.

3. The year opened with a cash balance of Rs. 43,969, which, together with the receipt of Rs 1,04,616, made out Rs 1,48,585, available for expenditure during the year; of this, Rs. 93,858 was spent, leaving a closing balance of Rs. 54,727 at the end of the year. The cause of this heavy closing balance was mainly due to—

(a) the large allotments, provided for certain bridge works, which could not be spent owing to the projects pending since early part of 1902 not having been approved yet;

(b) the allotments received for miscellaneous improvements in Government estates not having been spent owing to the regular executive staff under the District Engineer not being able to devote much of their time during the year to ascertain the actual needs of the Damin and submit definite proposals for execution.

4. There being no cess collections, the receipts of the year consisted mainly of the Government grants-in-aid. The following table compares the receipts under several heads of the year with those of the previous year:—

	1902-03.	1903-04
	Rs.	Rs.

GRAND TOTAL, INCLUDING BALANCE ...	1,36,197	1,48,585

5. XXXII.—Civil Works—The income under "Receipts from Staging Bungalows" rose a little owing to the larger collections from the Dumka and Rajmahal Dak Bungalows. The ferry receipts fell off owing to insufficient water in the rivers. Out of the three ferries under the Committee, only one, namely, Maharao, could be sold to any advantage. The decrease in receipts under "Miscellaneous" is owing to much greater proceeds from the sale of the bumper fruit crops and to recovery of the value of missing tools in the year before.

6. The contribution from private persons is altogether a new item of receipts this year. Rupees 1,000 was received from the Sankara Ward's Estate for constructing Dhanbasa bridge, and Rs. 1,000 more has been promised by a zamindar, between whose zamindari and the Ward's estate the stream passes.

7. The grants from Government were composed of the following:—

	Rs.
(a) Fixed annual grant for road works	60,000
(b) Grant for miscellaneous public improvements out of 16 per cent. on collection	10,800
(c) 1½ per cent. on collections for improving communications	3,251
(d) Grant from forest revenue	15,656
Total ...	89,707

The increase is due to larger receipts under (b) and (d) than those of the previous year.

8. The following table shows the outlay incurred in 1903-04, compared with that of the previous year:—

9. The expenditure of Rs. 133 under "Civil Buildings—Repairs" represents the cost of annual repairs to the Road office buildings, while Rs. 393 was spent in the previous year on the quadrennial repairs to the same buildings.

10. The decrease under "Communications—New Works" has already been explained in paragraph 3 (a) above. The increase under "Communications—Repairs" is due to the sanction of extra allotments for some of the district scheduled roads to improve their existing condition and to make them passable throughout the year.

11. The expenditure shown under "Deposits for Imperial and Provincial Civil Works" represents the refund of savings over the grants received during the previous year, separate accounts having been kept up for the main body of expenditure under Government Circular No. 11L.S.-G., dated the 2nd March 1903.

12. Attempts were made during the year to instruct the local weavers in the system of fly-shuttle looms under the supervision of Mr. Mukherjee, Deputy Collector. He laboured principally amongst the weavers in the Dumka Damin, and his labours met with partial success. The necessary apparatus was procured from Serampore and set up at Katikund where the local weavers of the neighbouring places received instructions. Some of the trained weavers at Dumka were sent on to Bario and Burhait with two looms to try to introduce the new system there. It is believed that they have done good work there.

13. Original Works.—There were twelve Damin bungalows under construction during the year and many of them have been completed. Two more were started in the Pakour Damin, one at Simlong and the other at Hiranpur, but no expenditure was incurred on them. The principal works carried out during the year in this district were as follows:—

LAND REVENUE.

(1) Constructing Gumra Bridge with an expenditure of Rs. 1,309.
(2) Providing corrugated-iron pipe-culverts for Dumka Damin, at a cost of Rs. 1,094.
(3) Providing corrugated-iron pipe-culverts for Pakour Damin, at an outlay of Rs. 1,105.
(4) Constructing Paharpur bundh in Godda Damin, with an expenditure of Rs. 600.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(5) Metalling 1st mile of Hansdiha road at a cost of Rs. 731.
(6) Constructing Dhoboi bridge with an expenditure of Rs. 8,898.
(7) Improving Amrapara-Muraroi road at a cost of Rs. 705.
(8) Stone metalling road No. 2, Dumka-Rampur Hât road, at a cost of Rs. 855.
(9) Constructing culverts on Dumka-Katikund road at an outlay of Rs. 521.

14. Repairs.—There were no changes in the classification or mileage of the scheduled roads. Some of these roads which were in a worse condition were greatly improved this year, extra allotments having been provided for them. The main roads in the district were maintained in passable condition throughout the year, and ordinary repairs to the rest were done as far as the funds admitted. Special repairs were done to the Bhagalpur-Suri road in miles 44, 50, 51 and 59, where the road was found giving way to the encroachment of the rain water.

15. The expenditure on repairs is classified in the following table :—

Rupees 2,450 was spent in the Damin out of the allotment received from the Sanitary Improvement Grant mainly in constructing bundhs, sinking wells and excavating tanks.

19 Arboriculture —Rupees 498 was spent during the year against Rs. 160 in the previous year in planting new trees and in maintaining the existing ones on road-sides and within the compound of the inspection bungalows and in keeping up the nursery gardens. Besides, Rs. 631 was expended towards the salaries of 14 malis entertained throughout the year. About 1,151 new plants were planted during the year against 1,950 in the previous year.

20. The following table shows the amount spent on establishment and the percentage of its cost on expenditure on Civil Works :—

which is within the limit laid down in the Cess Act, i.e., one-fourth of the year's receipts, namely, Rs. 92,133.

22. Water-supply.—There was no outlay from the Road Fund. The amount spent under this head from sanitary improvement fund has been noticed in paragraph 18 above. It is reported that the water-supply during the year was sufficient throughout the district, and that the existing sources were enough for ordinary purposes. The following statement shows the thana totals of Form No. I prescribed by Government Circular No. 8T.—M., dated the 15th May 1896.

Total ...	532 1 3

The tramway at Barkal, which has all along been maintained by Government with an annual grant of Rs. 5,000, has now been let out on contract under Government orders. Its management was made over on 1st August 1903 to contractor Roy Abhoy Churn Mitra, Bahadur. The private traffic on the tramway and the earnings therefrom from April to July 1903 amounted to 2,767 maunds 19 seers and 8 chitaks, and Rs. 353, respectively This amount was credited to the Fund.

3. Besides the above, as proposed in Bengal Government letter No 623P., dated 21st February 1898, that all stores and other articles pertaining to the Lushai Hills and conveyed by tramway at Burkul should be charged against the Administration of Assam, the total charge against the Assam Administration for 238 maunds 11 seers 3 chitaks of goods at the usual rate of 2 annas per maund came to Rs. 63-15.

4. The grants from Government were as follows:—

	Rs.

5. Rupees 500 shown under "Contribution from Local to Local" represent the annual subsidy from the District Board of Chittagong for maintaining the portion of the Chittagong to Fort Haka Road lying in the Regulation District for the year.

6. Under orders of Government all transactions on account of Imperial and Provincial Civil Works in the district have been excluded from the accounts of the Road Fund; hence no amount was shown under the head "Deposits for Imperial and Provincial Civil Works."

The following are the changes which took place during the year:—

The Balasore Division was transferred from the South-Western to the Orissa Circle, with effect from the 1st December 1903, under the orders contained in Bengal Government Notification No. 156, dated the 3rd November 1903, and with it were also transferred to the Orissa Circle—

Class A.—Orissa embankments, aggregating 37 miles 320 feet in length, in the Balasore district.

Class B.—Schedule D embankments, aggregating 315 miles 1,793 feet in length, in the Midnapore district.

Class C.—Jokee takavi embankment, 6 miles 1,146 feet in length, in the Midnapore district.

In the South-Western Circle a length of 7 miles 1,440 feet of the Serampur khal embankments (Schedule D. Nos. 75 and 76) in the 24-Parganas district, was abandoned. A length of 500 feet was added to these embankments by the construction of a cross dam.

4. Floods.—During the year the floods in most of the rivers in the Orissa Circle were low. There was a high flood in the Salindi, Burabalang and Managuni rivers owing to heavy local rainfall on the 8th and 9th October, but no damage was done as the flood did not last long. In the Gandak Circle there was a very high flood in the Gandak river in August 1903. The reduced level of the flood at Siswa was 242·40, which is the highest flood level on record. The water rose up to the crest of the embankments and in many places overtopped it. As the flood lasted for a week, considerable damage was caused to the crops and houses in the unprotected area in the Champáran district. In the Saran district the embankment was also overtopped and breached in many places. The floods in the Bagmati and Ganges were of moderate height and did no damage to the Turki and Bazitpur embankments. The flood in the Bur Gandak was high, although it was 2·10 feet lower than the record flood of 1898.

In the South-Western Circle the floods in the Cossye and Sclye rivers were of moderate height. There was only one high flood in the Damudar river, which occurred on the 7th October. The level of this flood was six inches lower than the highest recorded level of September 1902 at Edilpur. It did no damage to the Government embankments or to the country on either side; only six minor breaches were caused in the zamindari embankments at Nathu and Mohonpur, of which four were old and two new ones. The flank embankment along the branch channel at Kumirkhola, the protective works at Sasunpur constructed in 1901 also the Birugram embankment, withstood the floods of the year. There was only one flood in the Ajai river on the 8th October 1903. It was 9 feet 3 inches lower than the highest recorded flood of 1899, and it slightly damaged the protective works. The floods in the rivers in the Malda, Purnea, Bogra, Pabna and Bhagalpur districts were of ordinary character and did no injury to the embankments there.

5. Surveys and investigations.—In the Orissa Circle longitudinal sections of all the agricultural embankments in the Mahanadi, Brahmani-Byturni and Akhoyapada-Jajpur Divisions have been prepared; those of the Balasore Division will now be taken in hand. To improve the drainage of the country lying near the Tajpur Embankment in the Contai subdivision in the Midnapore district, surveys and investigations were made, and an estimate amounting to Rs. 11,751 was sanctioned in Bengal Government letter No. 1332*I.*, dated the 12th August 1904, for constructing a drainage channel from Daudpur to Utterpadima. In the South-Western Circle, a survey of the Surjipur khal was made with the object of constructing a new sluice to replace the existing sluice at Surjipur, which had become useless owing to the mouth of the khal having silted up. The right bank of the Peali river from Kharampara to Utterbhag was also surveyed. Another survey was made in connection with the scheme for draining lots Nos. 58 and 59 in the Sundarbans. In the Gandak Circle, cross sections of the Saran main embankment and Churki No. 1 were taken for the purpose of raising the embankment three feet above the high flood level of 1903. An estimate for the work amounting to Rs. 66,877 was approved by the Chief Engineer in letter No. 391*I.*, dated the 19th February 1904.

6. Original Works.—The outlay of the year (without charges for Establishment) under this head amounts to Rs. 43,459 distributed over the different classes of embankments as under:—

		1903-1904.	1902-1903.
		Rs.	Rs.
Class A	... ...	17,649*	23,613
„ B	... ...	25,810	54,564
„ C	... ...	Nil	Nil
„ D	... ...	Nil	Nil.
	Total ...	43,459	78,177

The more important works in hand are briefly as follows:

In the Orissa Circle the original works in progress were the construction of a permanent escape at Achootpur, in the 5th mile of the Bhargovi left embankment and a tie bund at Charigaon. The works completed were the extension of No. 88 embankment on the right bank of the Birupa river; the construction of an embankment on the left bank of the Byturni river at Anandpur; two rubble weirs across the Palasahi and Similia ghais on the bank of the Kharsua river and a retired line of the sea dyke near Chandpur. On this retired line a sum of Rs. 13,658 was expended during the year.

In the South-Western Circle, Rs. 8,627 were expended in remodelling the Mohunpur-Kharagpur road in the Midnapore district. The total expenditure on the work up to the 31st March 1904 was Rs. 44,492 against the sanctioned estimate of Rs. 48,371. Half the cost of the work is borne by the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. The reconstruction of the Shaikpur Inspection bungalow was completed at a cost of Rs. 5,357; the Tangrabechi Inspection bungalow on the left bank of the Hooghly river in the 24-Parganas district was constructed at a total cost of Rs. 4,988.

In the Gandak Circle the construction of a drainage sluice in the sixth mile of the Bazitpur Embankment in the Darbhanga district was in progress. The parties benefited will pay the cost of the sluice. In the Malda district the metalling of 36·20 chains of the northern portion of the Malda Embankment was carried out at a cost of Rs. 4,335. In the Purnea district Rs. 1,518 were expended on the construction of three new spurs, for the protection of the Belwa Embankment.

* This is exclusive of Rs. 6,760, being half the amount expended during the year on the construction of an office for the Superintending Engineer, and on special repairs to the Superintending Engineer's residence which have been debited to this head.

7. Ordinary repairs.—The expenditure on repairs (without book charges for Establishment and Tools and Plant) aggregated Rs. 3,77,762, which is distributed under the different classes of embankments as follows:—

		1903-1904.	1902-1903.
		Rs.	Rs.
Class A	... ...	35,437	41,400
„ B	... ..	2,37,231	2,85,941
„ C	... ...	65,106	45,952
„ D	... ...	6,057	4,469
	Total ...	3,43,831	3,77,762

The expenditure during the year on repairs to the Orissa Embankments was normal. The amount expended in the Balasore Division was Rs. 3,377. The total cost of repairs to the Schedule D Embankments (Class B) in the Midnapore district, lately transferred to the Orissa Circle, was Rs. 41,344, of which Rs. 36,358 were expended on maintenance; Rs. 1,696 on breach-filling; and Rs. 3,296 on retired lines. The maintenance charge was heavy, mainly due to the extensive repairs to the Hijili Sea Dyke, on which Rs. 10,516 were expended. Heavy repairs were also done to the Kalinagar-Hasia and Jalpai Embankments, at an aggregate cost of Rs. 14,805. There were no breaches in the embankments. In the South-Western Circle the outlay incurred during the year on the construction of retired lines was Rs. 66,120 against Rs. 79,172 in the previous year.

In the Burdwan, Hooghly and 24-Parganas districts, there was a reduction in expenditure of Rs. 18,382, while in the Murshidabad district the charge for maintenance was Rs. 6,274 in excess of the preceding year. The expenditure was mainly confined to the construction of retired lines at Majhampur, Mowla and Sujapur, in the 18th and 22nd to 24th miles of the Bhagirathi Embankment (Schedule D, No. 91). In the Midnapore district the total outlay on the new retired line at Harisingpur, Chetua Circuit Embankment (Schedule D, No. 22), was Rs. 26,558, against the sanctioned estimate of Rs. 41,843. The outlay during the year was Rs. 21,637 against Rs. 4,921 in the previous year.

On (Class C) Takavi Embankments under contract in the Midnapore, Muzaffarpur, Saran and Champaran districts, a sum of Rs. 65,064 was expended during the year against the contract provision of Rs. 1,10,606. The outlay incurred on the maintenance of the Gandak Embankments was Rs. 37,769 against Rs. 19,053 in the preceding year The excess was due chiefly to the raising of the Saran Embankments three feet above the highest flood level; to the closing of the breaches in Salimpur Charki; and the construction of a cross bund at Barwaz. The expenditure on repairs to the Midnapore Embankments was Rs. 27,295 against Rs. 26,899 in the previous year.

On (Class D) Takavi Embankments the total outlay incurred on repairs was Rs. 6,057 against Rs. 4,469 in the previous year. The expenditure on the Turki and Daudpur Embankments in the Muzaffarpur district, the Bazitpur Embankment in the Darbhanga district, and the Monghyr Embankment in the Monghyr district, was Rs. 2,331, Rs. 883 and Rs. 929, respectively, against Rs. 2,002, Rs. 861 and Rs. 779 in the preceding year. The increase during the year was mainly due to the transfer of the Daudpur Embankment from Class B to Class D Embankments. There was no expenditure on river protective works. On the Sakri bund, in the Gaya district, which was abandoned—vide Bengal Government orders No. 269*I.*, dated the 6th February 1904—an expenditure of Rs. 51 only was incurred.

In the South-Western Circle the expenditure on the maintenance of the Rajbundi bund, the Tolly's Nala and Madaria Khal Embankments was trifling and calls for no remark.

8. Breaches.—In the Orissa Circle no breaches of any importance occurred during the year. The Adlabad breach in the Bhargovi left embankment has been closed, and in its stead a rubble-paved escape has been constructed to dispose of the excess flood water of the river to the extent of 30,000 cusecs. The expenditure during the year for filling breaches was Rs. 2,227 against Rs. 7,173 in the previous year. In the South-Western Circle the total expenditure incurred in closing breaches and for executing flood damage repairs to the embankments was Rs. 1,209 only, against Rs. 52,317 in the previous year. This great reduction was mainly due to the absence of high floods in the Hooghly, Midnapore and 24-Parganas districts. In the Burdwan district Rs. 1,424 were expended in closing some minor breaches in the embankments caused by one high flood in the Damodar river. In the Gandak Circle, Charki No. 2 of the Saran Embankment was breached in three places below the Barway cross bund during the high flood in the Gandak river in August 1903. Salimpur Charki No. VI was overtopped throughout its length, and was breached in six places. There was only one breach in the Champaran Embankment. The Tirhut Embankment was seriously damaged in two places between the 30th and 33rd miles, and the Lahaladpur sluice in the 33rd mile was washed away on the 16th August 1903. A ring bund was placed round the breach as soon as the flood subsided. The sluice will be rebuilt in 1904-1905. There were no breaches in the embankments in the Northern and Bhagalpur Circles.

9. Retired lines.—In the Orissa Circle the amount expended on constructing retired lines of embankments including slope-cutting amounted to Rs 11,699. In the South-Western Circle the cost of constructing retired lines in the Burdwan, Hooghly, Midnapore, Murshidabad, and the 24-Parganas districts was Rs. 66,120 against Rs. 77,407 in the previous year. In the Gandak, Northern and Bhagalpur Circles no retired lines were constructed during the year.

10. River Protective Works.—In the Orissa Circle, the total outlay incurred on repairs to the revetments and river protective works was Rs. 1,305 against Rs. 5,341 in the preceding year, and Rs. 14,146, the average of the previous five years. In the Gandak Circle the existing spurs of the Saran Embankments were repaired, and in the fifth mile of Charki No. VI, three new bamboo spurs were made, which checked further erosion of the river bank.

11. Financial.—The actual outlay during the year on the Orissa Embankments (Class A) maintained as agricultural works, exclusive of charges for Establishment and Tools and Plant, was Rs. 35,437 against Rs. 41,400 in the previous year; the average rate per mile being Rs. 70. The expenditure on Class B Government Embankments was Rs. 2,43,863 against Rs 2,85,941 in the previous year; the average mileage rate being Rs. 224 against Rs. 260 in 1902-03.

Government has contracted to maintain certain embankments on behalf of the persons benefited at a fixed annual charge in the districts of Saran, Champaran, Muzaffarpur, and Midnapore. The following statement shows the total charges debited to these embankments as compared with the contract payments. The charges include the actual outlay on repairs, together with book charges for Establishment and Tools and Plant. The system under which the establishment charges have been made requires revision, as the figures shown under the head "Maintenance charges" do not disclose a true state of affairs. Until a separate head for establishment is opened out in the accounts, it is not possible to show the actual expenditure incurred in the maintenance of these embankments. The question will shortly be submitted for the consideration and orders of the Government of India.

The sluices of the drainage schemes were used during the year both for irrigation and drainage purposes, and fairly good crops were obtained from the whole of the areas assessed. The income derived from land rent, fisheries, tolls on boats and other sources was credited to the Civil Department direct. Only petty miscellaneous receipts amounting to Rs. 434 were realized by this Department.

13. Drainage Works carried out at the cost of Government but not under the provisions of the Drainage Act.—There was no expenditure on original works during the year. The outlay incurred on maintenance and repairs of the works is given below:—

On the Bullee bhil Rs. 3,926 were spent for repairing and maintaining the escape weirs, sluices, regulators, drainage channels, and dividing embankments, against Rs. 4,074 in the previous year. In the Balasore Division, the Baliaghai main and branch drains were kept open to traffic throughout the year. Rupees 492 were spent on the drains and bungalows. The outer bund of the Sarpai sluice channel was cut for drainage purposes at a cost of Rs. 928; and for silt clearance of the khas tahsil khals and the upper branch of the Sadar khal Rs. 9,357 were expended. The Talputty khal has been widened.

14. Drainage Works carried out under the provisions of the Embankment Act, II (B.C.) of 1882.—The amounts expended are shown below:—

Original Works.—The Telipukar sluice in mile 144 of the Sundarbans Embankment (Schedule D, No. 80) which had been taken in hand in the previous year was completed at a total cost of Rs. 3,373. An embankment on the left bank of the Peali river, nearly seven miles in length with two sluices, was under construction. The amount expended on it during the year was Rs. 7,032 against the sanctioned estimate of Rs. 75,958. For clearing silt from the Kunjapur khal, in the Midnapore district, Rs. 3,654 were expended against the estimate of Rs. 20,172. The funds for this work are provided by Government under the Agricultural Loans Act. For constructing a sluice in the 23rd mile of the Hijili Tidal Canal, Range II, Rs. 446 were expended, against the estimate amounting to Rs. 622. The construction of two sluices was undertaken during the year on the parties depositing the estimated cost, Rs. 1,687 and Rs. 1,891, viz., a sluice in the 15th mile of the Kalinagar Hassia Embankment (Schedule D, No. 45) and a sluice at the 12th mile of the Jalpai Embankment (Schedule D, No. 53).

Maintenance and Repairs.—The Churrial khal drainage sluice and 19 other sluices in the Schedule D Embankments in the 24-Parganas district were efficiently maintained during the year at an aggregate cost of Rs. 2,892.

An estimate amounting to Rs. 1,29,193 for the improvement of the drainage of lands in the Argowal Circuit Embankment (Schedule D, No. 47), in the Midnapore district, was sanctioned by Government in August 1903, and the plans and estimates have been sent to the Collector of Midnapore for disposal under the Embankment Act.

The Magra Hât Scheme, which has been designed for the improvement of the drainage of the central portion of the 24-Parganas district under the Sanitary Drainage Act, has been sent to the Municipal Department of this Government for consideration and for the issue of the necessary notification appointing Drainage Commissioners. The estimate for the scheme is under revision by the Superintending Engineer, South-Western Circle.

The preliminary procedure required for carrying out the scheme for draining the Chalan bhil in the districts of Rajshahi and Pabna under the Sanitary Drainage Act has been taken by the Municipal Department of this Government.

A revised scheme for improving the drainage of the country in the neighbourhood of Dum-Dum by means of the Bagjolla khal was prepared, which included the excavation of a new canal from Dhappa to Bamanghatta, as it was considered essential that this canal should form the outfall drainage channel of the whole of the tract comprised within the Bagjolla Scheme. An estimate for this canal amounting to Rs. 1,93,000 was sanctioned by Government in December 1902. The excavation of the canal has been kept in abeyance pending the decision of the question of compensation for fishery rights; and until this question is settled, further progress cannot be made with the drainage scheme.

The drainage of a tract of country between Magra Hât and Surjipur was obstructed after the rains owing to the silting up of the outfall khal of the Surjipur sluice in the 24-Parganas district, and there was serious destruction of crops. This khal was partly re-excavated during the year at a cost of Rs. 3,986, for which a special grant was made by Government.

An estimate amounting to Rs. 1,349 for a sluice at Syedpur on the 1st mile of the Gugakhally right embankment (Schedule D, No. 12), in the Tamluk subdivision, was sanctioned during the year. It will be constructed by the villagers at their own cost with the aid of the Tamluk Municipality.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution and of its Appendices (A and B) be published in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette, and submitted to the Government of India, Public Works Department, for information.

Ordered also that copies of the Resolution and of its Appendices (A and B) be forwarded to the Secretaries to the Government of Bengal in the Revenue and Financial Departments; the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces; the Commissioners of the Presidency, Burdwan, Patna, Bhagalpur, Rajshahi, Dacca, Chittagong, Chota Nagpur and Orissa Divisions; the Director-General of Statistics; the Superintending Engineers of the Orissa, South-Western, Sone, Gandak and Northern Circles; the Inspector of Works, Bhagalpur Circle; and the Examiner of Public Works Accounts, Bengal, for information.

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO EXAMINE THE WORKING OF THE SEPTIC-TANK INSTALLATIONS IN BENGAL.

PART I.—PRELIMINARY.

Appointment of the Committee.

THE Committee to report on the working of the existing septic-tank installations in Bengal, and on the means which should be adopted to render the system efficient and free from objection, was appointed under the orders contained in His Honour's resolution in the Municipal Department No. 236T.—M., dated 20th April 1904. Colonel S. H. Browne, C.I.E., was appointed to be the President, the Hon'ble Mr. D. B. Horn and Major F. C. Clarkson, I.M.S., to be Members, and the Hon'ble Mr. L. P. Shirres, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department, to be the Secretary of the Committee.

Instructions to the Committee.

2. The Committee were directed in the first instance to ascertain the actual facts as to the existing installations, and to consider carefully the construction and the situation of the structures, and the character, chemical and otherwise, of the effluents which are discharged. They were then required to examine the different methods by which the effluents can be disposed of. Lastly they were requested to advise what changes are required to be made in the existing installations, and in their methods of working, so that the best results may be obtained. Their instructions made special reference to the septic tanks in the mills on the banks of the Hooghly, whose rapid increase has rendered it necessary that the conditions on which this method of sewage disposal can be permitted shall be detemined without delay.

Committee's method of enquiry.

3. In order to give effect to these instructions the Committee circulated a series of questions to the Managing Agents of the various jute mills and to others, and the replies which were received have been printed as an appendix to this report. They personally visited the Gouripur, Kanknarrah, Anglo-Indian, Fort Gloster and Hastings Mills, and examined the installations which had been erected for the workmen at those places, and the effluents which were being discharged into the river. The Gouripur and Fort Gloster Mills were selected because of the excellent results which were said to have been secured at them; the installations at the Kanknarrah and Anglo-Indian Mills were reported to be fairly representative of the remainder; and Hastings was visited, although the installation was not then working, because of the public attention which had been attracted to it. A number of witnesses also attended meetings of the Committee at Writers' Buildings, and gave their evidence orally. Their answers were recorded and have been placed in the Appendix. The Government Chemical Examiner furnished a chemical analysis of the effluent from the Gouripur Mills, and Dr. Neild-Cook, the Health Officer of Calcutta, made bacteriological examinations of the effluents from the Gouripur, Kanknarrah and Titagarh installations, as well as of the river water close to their outfalls, and of the river water near the Pulta intake Captain Rogers, I.M.S., Officiating Professor of Pathology, Medical College, Calcutta, examined the river water bacteriologically, and Dr. James, Special Drainage Engineer of the Bombay Municipality, readily placed at the disposal of the Committee the results of his most recent investigations. Careful observations were taken of the ebb and flow of the tides, and of the discharge of the river Hooghly. The Committee also studied the published reports of the Royal Commission on sewage disposal, and such other recent literature on the subject as they could procure.

Reasons for submission of a provisional report.

4. The Committee are not in a position to give a complete and final report, because the observations for the purpose of ascertaining the fresh-water flow of the river in the dry season have not yet been concluded, and because certain experiments for the purpose of ascertaining whether the effluent can be bacteriologically purified by filtration through sand filters still remain to be carried out. They have however arrived at certain definite conclusions, and they consider it desirable that these should be presented now, both because the conclusions are of practical importance, and because the manner in which, and the extent to which, the final recommendations must be modified by the results of the further enquiries and experiments referred to will be readily apparent.

PART II.—CONCLUSIONS OF THE COMMITTEE REGARDING THE CONTINUANCE OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM OF DISCHARGING INTO THE RIVER HOOGHLY EFFLUENTS WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN BACTERIOLOGICALLY PURIFIED BY FILTRATION THROUGH SAND OR OTHERWISE.

Personal examination of the effluents by the Committee.

5. The results of the personal examination by the Committee of the effluents discharged into the river were on the whole satisfactory.

Appearance of effluents.

6. The effluents were found to be slightly opalescent fluids, containing no perceptible solids, of a slight brownish tinge in colour, and in some cases giving off a faint odour of sulphuretted hydrogen. They were subjected to the incubator test and were found to be non-putrescible. They varied somewhat in purity and freedom from odour, those from the Gouripur and Fort Gloster Mills being the most satisfactory.

Chemical Analysis.

7. The chemical analysis of the effluent from the Gouripur Mill made by the Chemical Examiner to the Government was considered by him to be satisfactory. In regard, however, to the proportions of nitrates and albumenoid ammonia, which indicate the extent to which the liquid has been purified by oxidation, the results compare unfavourably with the reports of similar analyses made in England. The nitrates, which are the ultimate product of oxidation, were only ·1836 per 100,000; while on the other hand the albumenoid ammonia, whose presence shows that oxidation is still incomplete, was as much as ·34 per 100,000. Authorities in England hold that in good effluents the proportion of nitrates should exceed ·5 per 100,000, and that the proportion of albumenoid ammonia should not exceed ·1 per 100,000. In some effluents the nitrates have been found to amount to even 9·0 per 100,000. The degree of purification obtained in the Gouripur effluent cannot therefore be looked on as entirely satisfactory.

Bacterial analysis.

8. The biological characters of the effluents examined by Dr. Cook are not very satisfactory, the numbers of colon bacilli found in them being as large as that ordinarily met with in crude sewage. The reports submitted by Dr. Neild Cook and Captain Rogers differ considerably in details, but they agree in showing that there is considerable bacterial contamination of the river water near the outfalls of these effluents, although this was found to have largely disappeared in the immediate neighbourhood of the Pulta intake.

Survival of pathogenic bacteria.

9. The important question as to the extent to which pathogenic micro-organisms survive the struggle in the septic tank has been investigated by Major Drury, I.M.S., and Captain L. Rogers, I.M.S., and copies of the latter officer's notes on the subject are appended. It was found that whilst the process is inimical to some of these organisms, others survive, so that the effluents are considered to be potentially dangerous. Still more unfavourable results were obtained by Dr. Houston, Bacteriologist to the London County Council, in an elaborate and exhaustive series of investigations which he made in connection with the sewage bacterial beds at Crossness on the Thames. Dr. Houston has shown that effluents of this kind, otherwise unobjectionable, contain large numbers of living pathogenic organisms such as Streptococci: B. Pyocyaneous: B. Enteritidis Sporogenes and some others. He remarks that if Streptococci can resist the biological process, there is small ground for the belief that other germs of a dangerous sort, e.g, the Typhoid bacillus, will be destroyed. He considers that the effluents from the bacteria beds ought to be regarded as hardly if at all more safe in their possible relation to disease than the raw sewage before treatment. A similar opinion has also been expressed by the Royal Commission on the disposal of sewage.

Extent of pollution caused by effluents.

10. The degree of pollution of the river which is caused by the effluents depends not only upon their chemical and bacteriological characters, but upon the rapidity with which further oxidation is produced and the bacteria are destroyed through contact with the river water and by the action of the air and the sun, and upon the volume of water which passes down the river and with which the effluents are mixed.

Further purification through the agency of the river water, the sun and the air.

11 The extent to which sewage effluents are diffused and purified in rivers has been specially investigated in the case of the Thames, by Professor J. Clowes, D.Sc, and by Dr. Houston. Professor Clowes examined the water of the Barrow deep immediately after a fleet of steamers had discharged into it their cargoes of sewage sludge. In this sewage sludge the average number of bacteria was found to be 129,583,333 per cubic centimetre, yet the surface water immediately afterwards was found to contain only 1,940 per cubic centemetre. Four hours afterwards the number of bacteria had declined to 380 per cubic centemetre at the surface, and to 220 per cubic centemetre at 10 feet below the surface. These results correspond with those obtained by Dr. Houston, and as both Professor Clowes and Dr. Houston are well known to be skilled and accurate observers, the results they obtained justify the belief that in the case of the river Hooghly any pollution caused by the discharge of septic tank effluents into it must disappear very rapidly.

Estimate of the volume of the fresh-water discharge of the Hooghly.

12. No record of observations of the volume of fresh water passing down the Hooghly could be discovered, but an estimate, which is believed to have been based on observations, was made about 40 years ago, and the discharge was then taken to be 20,000 cubic feet per second at the driest season. A careful enquiry was therefore instituted for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of fresh water which comes down the river at the present time. The investigation is still proceeding and cannot be completed before the close of the cold weather; but the results which have already been obtained point to the probability that in the months of February and March the fresh-water discharge of the Hooghly does not exceed 2,000 cubic feet a second.

13. The exact calculation of the effect caused by a reduction in the volume of water passing down the river would involve a prolonged enquiry, but a sufficient idea of the relative importance of this factor will be apparent from a simple calculation. The cross section of the river at Pulta at low water is approximately 32,000 square feet, and for the purpose of the calculation it may be assumed that the cross-section is the same at the points below Pulta, and that the fresh water coming down from above pushes the other water before it and does not mix with it. The upward flow of the tide at Pulta lasts about four hours, but when the tide turns all the water that has been held back flows down, and more water continues to flow down until the tide turns again. The quantity of water in the dry season which flows down between two turns of the tide, or say in 12 hours, is $2,000 \times 60 \times 60 \times 12$; and if this is divided by 32,000, the cross section of the river, the quotient gives the length of the portion of the Hooghly bed from Pulta downwards which is filled by this volume of fresh water just before the tide again turns. In other words a particle of water would move 2,700 feet or more than half a mile down the river between two turns of the tide, and in a whole day it would therefore move more than a mile. In the rains with a discharge of 20,000 cubic feet a second the movement will be about ten times as much.

Recommendations regarding the discharge of effluents into the Hooghly.

14. The Committee have very carefully considered and discussed the facts set forth in the preceding paragraphs. They are deeply impressed by the great advance in Sanitary Science which is represented by the septic tank system, and they consider that the replacement of the old insanitary latrines by septic tank installations has effected a marked improvement. The existence of great pollution in the past does not justify the continuance of any pollution in the present or in the future, but nevertheless the fact is of practical importance that the stoppage of the present system would probably increase rather than diminish the pollution, and it will therefore be a misfortune if some means cannot be found of overcoming the objections to the use of these tanks. The chemical composition of the effluent may be brought by suitable improvements up to the standard attained in England, and will then be open to no serious objection. The only danger which needs to be considered is that arising from bacteriological pollution. During the greater part of the year when there is a large and rapid outflow of the Hooghly this pollution in all probability rapidly disappears, and produces little, if any, effect on the drinking water-supply of Calcutta and Howrah. Moreover this supply is filtered by the Municipal authorities, and after such filtration the danger is no longer appreciable. The action of Government must, however, be determined not by the minimum, but by the maximum pollution during the year; in other words by the pollution during the dry months. The volume of water coming down the river is then more nearly comparable to that of English rivers, and in view of the results obtained and the opinions expressed by Dr. Houston and by the Royal Commission on Sewage Disposal the Committee, feel that they have no option but to acquiesce in the decision that effluents which are not subjected to bacteriological purification are potentially dangerous if discharged into a river whose water is used for drinking purposes. Their conclusion therefore is that the effluents in their present condition should not be emptied into the river above the water-works, or so near the water-works as to affect the water-supply. The precise point below Pulta at which a line should be drawn cannot be stated until the observations on the ebb and flow of the tides have been completed, but for the present they recommend that the discharge of the effluents without such purification should be permitted at any point below Tolly's Nala. If it is hereafter found impossible to effect the requisite purification by means of sand filters, or if the effluents cannot be disposed of otherwise than by being discharged into the Hooghly, the question may be reconsidered; but otherwise in view of the sentimental objections which exist, and of the desirability of keeping the water of the port as pure as possible, the Committee are of opinion that the rule now suggested should be adhered to. The sentimental and religious objections to the pollution of the Hooghly have not been discussed, but it will be seen from the minutes of evidence that a difference of opinion exists regarding the latter, and the real objection appears to be sentimental rather than religious, and to be largely due to ignorance of the transformation effected in the nature of the sewage by its passage through the septic tanks. They conclude therefore that the opposition would probably subside if the real facts were brought home to the public, so that the great utility of the new system might be recognised.

PART III.—METHODS OF DISPOSAL OF THE EFFLUENT OTHERWISE THAN BY DISCHARGE WITHOUT FURTHER BACTERIOLOGICAL PURIFICATION INTO THE RIVER.

Other methods of dealing with the effluents.

15. In the preceding paragraph the conclusion was stated that, provided the installations were properly worked, the discharge of the effluents without further bacteriological purification might be permitted into the River Hooghly in the case of mills situated below Tolly's Nullah. For the disposal of the effluents from mills to which such permission cannot be accorded three suggestions are referred to in the Government Resolution, namely :—(1) that the effluents should be run over land; (2) that they should be used as feed-water for boilers; and (3) that they should be bacteriologically purified by filtration through sand before being discharged into the river. No other expedient has been proposed, and therefore only these three have been dealt with.

Disposal of effluent by running it over land.

16. With regard to the disposal of the effluents on land in the neighbourhood of the river Hooghly, enquiries show that the land in the vicinity of many of the mills is submerged for at least three months in the year, that the cost of acquiring the land and conveying the effluent there would be great, and that in many instances it would be necessary to pump the effluent up into a reservoir in order to run it off on to the land.

17. In the rainy season effluents disposed of on land would be quite out of control, and there would be considerable probability of the fluid finding its way into tanks used for drinking purposes, in which case it would prove even more dangerous than if discharged directly into the river. It would, in addition, be disadvantageous from an agricultural point of view, as the land would be saturated with moisture. This method of disposal may therefore be considered impracticable and dangerous during wet weather.

In the rainy season.

18. In the dry season the objections to disposal on land are not so great: the soil however is not a very suitable one for the purpose, and does not stand in great need of the fertilizing properties which these effluents undoubtedly possess, and for which their application to the land is the chief reason. Effluents are not appreciably improved by the process, and there is evidence to show that in some cases they are even deteriorated. They must, besides, eventually find their way to the river.

In the dry season.

19. For these reasons land treatment is not to be recommended when other more satisfactory methods of disposal are available.

Conclusion.

20. In paragraph 6 of the Government Resolution the use of the filtrate as feed-water for the boilers, which was suggested by the Sanitary Board, is referred to, and it is remarked that if this course could be adopted it would apparently solve the problem in the case of the Hooghly Mills. The disposal of the effluent in this manner would in fact remove all the objections which have been raised to the use of the septic tanks attached to those mills; and if the sand filters fail to effect the requisite purification, this resource may prove to be the only one practicable for mills whose discharge would affect the Calcutta and Howrah water-supply intakes. The suggestion has therefore received the most careful consideration.

Use of effluent as feed-water for boilers.

21. The mill-owners and their representatives who were consulted had no rooted objection to the idea of the effluent being got rid of in this manner, but they were apprehensive that there might be trouble with their workmen who had to come into contact with the fluid, and they were doubtful, in spite of the opinion of the Chemical Examiner, whether the fluid might not have some deleterious effect on the boilers.

Objection of mill-owners.

22. As regards the latter difficulty, the Committee find that for the last six years the effluent has been used as feed-water at Hampton in Middlesex, and that there has never been any trouble with the boilers in consequence of this practice. The correspondence on this subject is attached to this report.

Injury to boilers and machinery.

23. The other objection, in regard to the workmen, is one the full force of which can be ascertained only by actual trial, but the Committee is persuaded that the fears which are entertained in this respect are exaggerated. Thus, to take a concrete case, one manager objected that if the suction-pipe were to jam, it might be difficult to get anyone to clear it owing to the idea of effluent being mixed with the water. If all other means failed, however the work to be done is very simple, and a mehter could easily be sent for to do it. The Manager of the Gouripur Mills appears to have taken a clearer view of the situation. He stated that his objections were chiefly sentimental, as the men who clean the boilers are mostly Hindus, and they would probably object to going into the boilers if they knew that the effluent was being used as feed-water. Muhammadan firemen, he thought, would also have the same objections as the Hindus, but their objections might probably give way if they were pressed. It is certainly probable that at first there would be some trouble; but a little firmness, and perhaps at first a little extra expenditure, would overcome the difficulty, and that when once the system was in working order there would be no more trouble on this account.

Difficulties with workmen.

Difficulty of supervision.

24. Mr. Silk and Dr. Cooke have suggested a further difficulty, namely, that even although orders to dispose of the filtrate in this way are passed, such orders will be constantly evaded. The Committee do not however attach much weight to this objection. When once the system is in working order the sentimental objections to it will be soon forgotten, and the motive to evade the orders will disappear. Apart from that, the installation may be so arranged that the filtrate cannot be easily disposed of otherwise, and this, coupled with the liability to Government inspection, may render it both difficult and unprofitable to evade the orders.

Difficulty with surface-condensing engines.

25. This method of disposing of the effluent will answer in the case of most mills. The manager of one concern has however represented that his Company are about to instal a new system of engines which will be surface condensing, and which will therefore require a quantity of water which will be inconsiderable in proportion to the discharge from the septic tanks.

Conclusion.

26. On the whole, therefore, the Committee are of opinion that this method of utilising the filtrate is practicable, and that in some cases it may hereafter be found necessary to insist upon the disposal of the effluent in this manner.

Disposal by filtration through sand.

27. The remaining suggestion is that the effluent should be bacteriologically purified by further filtration through sand. The standard of purity which the Committee suggest is that of the River Hooghly itself at the point at which the discharge into it is permitted. They are strongly of opinion that if such purification can be effected this method of disposing of the effluent may be adopted without appreciable danger to the community. The practicability of the suggestion can, however, be satisfactorily ascertained only by experiment, and arrangements have accordingly been made that this should be done. There is good reason to hope that this method of disposal will prove successful, but as experiment alone can settle the matter it has not been considered necessary to discuss the subject in detail.

PART IV.—Improvements in the existing installations and in their methods of working.

28. It only now remains for the Committee to submit their recommendations regarding the improvements which seem to them advisable in the existing installations and in their methods of working so that the best results may be obtained.

General plan of latrines and tanks.

29. From the descriptions given in the replies to the questions which are appended to this report it will be seen that all the installations are modelled on the same general plan, and that each consists of a latrine fitted with from 30 to 60 seats, which are fixed on the top of an air-tight chamber or tank. The length and breadth of the tanks appear to be regulated to a great extent by the number of seats in the superimposed latrines. Thus the Gouripur latrine has 52 seats in two rows of 26 each, and to accommodate that number of seats so arranged the latrine must be about 60 feet long by 14 feet broad. These are the exact dimensions of the latrine and also of the tank below it. The sewage dealt with is in every case domestic and contains no manufacturing waste, and it does not therefore require to be screened.

Shape of tank.

30. From the descriptions given in the appendices it will be seen that in all cases the length of the tank is from four to five times the breadth. This shape seems to be open to no objection. The sewage should fill about half the tank, and should not be more than five or six feet in depth.

Size of tank.

31. The size of the tank required depends upon the length of time during which the sewage should remain in it, and upon the daily quantity of sewage which is passed into it. The quantity of sewage again varies not only with the number of users, but with the allowance of water for each user. When these data are given the dimensions of the tank required can be worked out. The fact must, however, be borne in mind that a certain number of the workmen will visit the latrine more than once in one day.

How long sewage should rest in the tank.

32. Regarding the period during which the sewage should remain in the septic tank, Mr. Dibdon says it would seem as if any increase of flow above what is sufficient to fill the tank in 24 hours is attended with a corresponding decrease in the quality of the effluent, whilst a reduction in speed to the 48 hours' rate gives very little advantage. If the flow is increased too much, the tank will become filled with sludge before septic action is produced.

How far English experience is a guide.

33. In dealing with English experience, however, it must be remembered that the sewage while passing through the sewers is undergoing septic treatment, so that in all such cases the septic treatment probably exceeds 24 hours. Moreover in England the daily quantity of sewage in proportion to the population is much larger than in India, e.g., the daily quantity at Exeter is 25 gallons a head as compared with only about 3 gallons a head in India. On the other hand in India bacteriological action is more active, so that, cæteris paribus, a shorter period of rest for the sewage in the septic tank might possibly suffice.

Indian experience.

34. In India the experience of septic tanks is limited, but Mr. James, Special Drainage Engineer of the Bombay Municipality, has tested the effluent from different compartments of the septic tank at Matunga after 4, 6 and 8 hours' contact, respectively, and he has found that with sewage having an average temperature of 83·60°F., 55 per cent. of the purification occurs in 4 hours, 82 per cent. in 6 hours, and 84 per cent. in 8 hours. He is satisfied that these results are correct, and that if economy is a serious object in the construction of a septic tank, 6 hours' contact would probably give all the purification for that class of treatment. He would, however, prefer always to allow 8 hours in order to ensure a margin of safety, especially as the flow of sewage is somewhat uneven. In regard to this statement Mr. Disney observes that Mr. James is dealing with much more diluted sewage than is obtained at mills. Mr. Disney himself has stated in his evidence that he considers 24 hours to be about the proper period of rest in the septic tank, but that much depends on the dilution of the sewage; a rest beyond this period having been proved to have had no better results, but rather the reverse, and that experience in England shows that putrefaction sets in after 24 hours.

Recommendation of Committee.

35. At the installations with which this report deals the sewage is ordinarily allowed to remain in the tank for a period of about 24 hours, and the Committee recommend that in any rules which may be laid down for the working of the tanks this period should be prescribed.

Allowance of water for each user.

36. There was considerable variation in the quantity of water allowed for each user. At Gouripur the quantity used was stated to be from 6 to 7 gallons a head, whereas in the Anglo-Indian Jute Mills it was only one gallon a head. These were extreme cases, and usually the allowance was three gallons a head. The quality of the effluent appeared to improve with every increase in the quantity of water used. The recommendation of the Committee is therefore that where possible five or six gallons a head should be allowed, and that in no case should the quantity be less than three gallons.

Special apparatus for flushing.

37. At some of the mills there was in use a modification of Donaldson's patent flushing system whereby each seat is flushed by a specified quantity of water every time that it is used; whereas at other mills the flow of water in the latrine was continuous and did not depend upon the number of users. The former arrangement appears to the Committee to be the more suitable, because it secures a greater uniformity in the strength of the sewage, and they recommend its adoption in all installations.

Overworking.

38. The principal reason why the working of some of the installations was not entirely satisfactory was that they were overworked. Thus at one of the Mills the installation was designed to accommodate only a portion of the workmen, the intention being to make a second installation if the first was a success. It proved more popular than was anticipated, and as the supply of water ran on continuously irrespective of the number of users, the average quantity for each user became no more than one gallon. To prevent such overworking some of the mills use turnstiles which automatically register the number of persons passing through, and this enables the management to check the number of users and to prevent over-use. It is recommended that this mechanical device should be employed at all mills where there are septic-tank installations.

Arrangements for preventing sudden disturbance of sewage in tank.

39. In order to secure an even flow through the tank and to avoid unnecessary disturbance of the contents, it is desirable that the sewage should be discharged into a small chamber at one end of the septic tank, the syphon pipe for emptying the tank being fixed at the opposite end, so that there may be a slow and steady advance of the sewage through the tank. For the same reason it is desirable that the sewage should be discharged continuously from the tank. In order that this arrangement may be carried out it is necessary that the filters should be able to receive the effluent in a continuous flow: in other words the filtration must be continuous and not intermittent. These terms are explained immediately below.

Description of filters.

40. When the sewage issues from the septic tank it passes into filters. These are open masonry tanks which are filled with cubes of broken bricks such as are used for road metal, or with coal or engine ashes or other material. Filtration may be either intermittent or continuous; and it may also be either upward or downward, that is to say the effluent may be admitted to the filter either at the bottom or at the top. The term filtration is somewhat misleading because the process is not one of mechanical straining as in the case of sand filters, but is purely chemical and biological. The effluent is acted on by the bacteria in the filter, which produce chemical changes in its constituents. Hence the filters are somewhat more accurately described as contact beds. If the filtration is intermittent the beds get a rest and are aërated after being used; where it is continuous the beds are in duplicate and are used alternately, so as to secure aëration.

The intermittent system.

41. As an example of the intermittent system the Gouripur filtration arrangements may be described. There are eight contact beds arranged in two sets of four each. The first set of beds is filled with hard burnt jhama bricks, broken into pieces about four inches cube. The finer beds are filled with the same material, but broken into cubes of two inches each. The effluent in the coarse beds is allowed to remain from three to four hours, when it is passed on to the finer beds where the same process is followed. The effluent passes finally from those beds into the river. As soon as each contact bed is emptied it is allowed to rest for aërating purposes, until its turn comes again. The system of filtration at these mills is both intermittent and upward.

The continuous system.

42. The system of filtration in general use at the mills is continuous and downward; that is to say the effluent from the septic tank is allowed to spread over the surface of the filter-beds, and filtration takes place downwards.

Arguments for the continuous system.

43. In regard to the most suitable system of filtration the evidence before the Committee is in favour of continuous filtration. Mr. Disney is of opinion that continuous filtration gives better results than the intermittent upward filtration in use at Gouripur. Mr. Silk is also in favour of continuous filtration, as in his opinion there is the probability when the intermittent system is used that some of the bacteria are washed out on each occasion that the valve is opened to empty the contact beds. It has also been pointed out above that the continuous system helps to secure a steady and even flow of the sewage through the septic tank.

44. The evidence before the Committee was also in favour of downward as opposed to upward filtration. Mr. Wilmot, who has fitted up a number of installations, states that his firm has tried upward filtration, but has found it unsatisfactory. The personal observations of the Committee support this evidence. Another argument in its favour is that with it a sprinkler may be used to aërate the effluent on its way from the tank to the filters.

Arguments for downward filtration.

45. A sprinkler, as its name signifies, is a mechanical device for sprinkling the effluent in drops over the surface of the filter. In some of the installations a rough form of sprinkler is used; but in no instance is it scientifically arranged, so that the tank effluent can be aërated and equally distributed over each square foot of filter-bed. Mr. Wilmot states that his firm has found the most successful arrangement to be one by which the effluent, instead of being discharged from the septic tank into the filter-beds at almost the level of the filtering media, has to pass through a series of troughs and disks so contrived that the effluent is sprinkled over the entire filtering media. As the surface of the filter-beds is small, the Committee are satisfied that the Agents of the Jute Mills, with the assistance of their Engineers, will have no difficulty in designing a sprinkler that will ensure an equal distribution of the effluent over every square foot of filter-bed.

Sprinklers.

46. The Committee are in favour of continuous and downward filtration, and recommend that it should be adopted everywhere, and they recommend also that the effluent should be distributed over the surface of the filter-bed by some form of sprinkler.

Committee recommend continuous downward filtration and sprinklers.

47. The quality of filtering material is an important matter, especially in the neighbourhood of Calcutta where the choice of material is limited. In the opinion of the Committee the most suitable material is hard burnt or vitrified pugged jhama bricks, broken into cubes of suitable size. In India, brick earth is easily procurable so that hama is inexpensive, and is much more satisfactory than either coal or engine ashes which are being used at some of the installations. In regard to the size of the cubes the Committee are in favour of the filtering material being broken into pieces of half-inch diameter in the upper layers, and of from $1\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches diameter in the bottom layers.

Filtering material.

48. The shape of the filter-bed is not, as in the case of the septic tank, a matter of importance. The depth of the filtering material should not, however, exceed 4 feet 6 inches. As regards the area of the filter-beds requisite it may be noted that the Sanitary Record, dated the 14th July 1904, contains a concise account of the sewage disposal of Hanley, a small town in Staffordshire. In that installation the filter-beds are designed to deal with a continuous and constant flow of 200 gallons per square yard in the 24 hours. It is believed that at some of the mills the filter-beds are at work for only about 16 hours a day In these instances the area of filter-beds would require to be increased by one-third to make them equal in efficiency to the installation at Hanley. When the number of gallons to be dealt with, and the number of square feet to be allowed to so many gallons, are known, the aggregate dimensions of the filter-beds required can be immediately ascertained.

Dimensions of filter-beds.

49. In view of the fact that the sewage is stronger than that dealt with in England, the Committee are agreed that the filter-beds should be designed to deal with only 150 gallons per square yard in 24 hours.

Recommendation of Committee determining size of filter-beds.

50. One other suggestion may be made. The Committee are of opinion that the final filtrate should be carried by a pipe to some distance away from the bank and towards the middle of the river. By this means it can at once be mixed with the current; and there will be less risk of its being caught in eddies and remaining near the bank, so as to be objectionable to persons who are bathing.

Recommendation that the effluent should be carried clear of the bank in pipes.

Thanks of the Committee for assistance rendered.

51. The thanks of the Committee are due to the Mill-owners and their Managers for the courtesy with which they furnished every facility to the Committee for carrying on their enquiry, to the witnesses who at a considerable expenditure of time and trouble attended the meetings of the Committee at Writers' Buildings, and to Mr. James, Special Engineer of the Bombay Municipality, who furnished them with valuable information.

Demi-official from—C. A. WALSH, Esq., A.M.I.C.E., Special Inspector of Factories,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

In reply to your demi-official of 30th ultimo, I regret that up to the present I have been unable to trace the article in which it is stated that the effluent was utilized in some mills in America as feed-water for the boilers, but I hope to be able to find this shortly, and will either send you a copy, if procurable, or quote the number and date of paper in which the article appeared. I, however, enclose Scientific American of 14th November. In this you will find an article headed "Biological Purification of Sewage Water," and in the penultimate paragraph it states—

"We cannot prolong these explanations as to bacterial purification further, but we must at least note that the number of the germs cultivable in the effluent matters from the beds is no more than from 5 to 10 per cent. of that found before the treatment. The water is really purified, and is no longer subject to alteration, and may be allowed to flow to the river or be employed for industrial purposes."

A short review on the work of W. J. Dibdin, F.C.S., entitled "The Purification of Sewage and Water" is given in the Indian Engineering of 20th February 1904, in which the following passage occurs:—

"Various directions must be followed to subserve these conditions successfully, but the author remarks that there is no difficulty in obtaining any desired degree of purification. The higher degrees of purity in the effluent can be obtained by an augmentation of the filtering appliances at a comparatively small cost."

Another work is referred to in the Indian Engineering of the 2nd January 1904, called "The Purification of Sewage by Bacteria," by A. J. Martin, M.I.C.E.: both of these papers are published by the Sanitary Publishing Company of London. Presuming the quantity of nitrate and ammonia contained in the effluent was insufficient to any way affect or damage boiler plates, there is still, I fear, the possibility of firemen and cleaners in some districts objecting from ignorance and sentiment to its use for boiler feed!

Dated Calcutta, the 16th June 1904.

From—MESSRS. BARRY & Co., Secretaries and Agents, the Gourepore Company, Limited, To—The Secy., Septic Tank Committee, Government of Bengal, Municipal Dept.

In response to your circular letter forwarding a list of questions of septic tank installations and the septic tank system in Bengal to which your Committee desire answers, we have now the pleasure to enclose herewith a full report by our Manager in reply thereto.

A plan of this Company's septic tank installation and copies of analyses on effluents therefrom prepared by Lieutenant-Colonel D, St. J. D. Grant, I.M.S., Chemical Examiner to the Government of Bengal, are attached to the report.

Trusting that this report will supply the information required.

Replies to questions asked by the Septic Tank Committee.

I.—INSTALLATIONS IN USE.

(1) The installation at the Gourepore Company's Work consists of a 40-seated latrine situated on the top of an air-tight chamber or tank. The seats are flushed out by a modification of Donaldson's patent flushing system. The sewage is led from the latrine to the tank by syphon pipes. From the tank the effluent is led by another syphon pipe through a small strainer or filter made of broken brick, into the contact beds of which there are eight in two sets of four each. From the filters the effluent flows to the river. The cost of this installation was about Rs. 30,000.

(2) About 20,000 to 24,000 gallons of sewage are dealt with daily. The dimensions of the tank are, inside, 60 ft. × 14ft. × 10ft. high. This stands about half full of sewage. It is impossible to say what quantity of sewage the tank could dispose of from a bacteriological point of view, but experience shows that in this case the outlet pipes will not pass much more than they are now doing, i.e., from 20,000 to 24,000 gallons per day.

(3) Six to seven gallons of water are used per head. No surface drainage passes into the tank.

(4) Entirely domestic.

(5) About 24 hours in the tank. From six to eight hours in the contact beds.

(6) Sludge has been found to accumulate in the syphon pipe leading from the tank to the contact beds. Hence it has been found necessary to run off about two feet of sewage from the tank about once in six weeks for the purpose of flushing the pipes. This is all the cleaning that has been found necessary.

(7) The sewage is not screened before entering the tank.

(8) As stated in the answer to (1), there are eight contact beds arranged in two sets of four each. The first set of beds is filled with coarse broken, over-burned brick (jhama) in pieces about 4" cube. The second set of beds is filled with the same material in smaller pieces, about 2" cubes. Each contact bed measures 30ft. x 10ft. x 5ft deep. The system of filtration is as follows:—

The tank effluent passes into the bottom of one of the filter beds in the first set; when this is full it is diverted to the second bed, when the second is full to the third, and when the third is full to the fourth. When No. 2 bed of the first set is full, the connecting valve between No. 1 bed of the first set and No. 1 bed of the second set is opened, allowing the effluent to pass from the coarse to the fine bed. The connecting valve between No. 2 coarse bed and No. 2 fine bed is opened when No. 3 coarse bed is full, and so on. This allows the effluent to remain in the coarse bed from three to four hours, after which the coarse bed remains empty for aerating purposes until its turn comes again. The same process is followed with the fine beds but from the fine beds the effluent flows to the river. Thus the effluent remains altogether from six to eight hours in the contact beds as stated in the answer to (5).

(9) As stated in (8) the filtration is not continuous, each bed standing full about four hours and empty about eight hours; it takes from three to four hours to fill them in addition to this.

(10) No, not as yet.

(11) The installation is about 100 yards from the river (high-water mark in the dry weather). But in the dry season the effluent has to travel one mile before reaching the river; in the rains only about 100 yards or less.

(12) The filtrates are discharged into the river through an open drain which runs down stream parallel to the river for about one mile. This drain is covered by the river during the rains. This open drain also takes all the surface drainage from the works and the water from the boilers when they are blown down, thus still further diluting the filtrates. In the dry weather this drain passes into the main drain from Naihati village before reaching the river, finally meeting the river with the bulk of the drainage from Naihati at Naihati Ghât.

(13) The people have always drawn their water and bathed at Naihati Ghât 30 yards below the outlet of the main drain of the village in the dry season. In the rains the septic tank effluent is discharged into the river right in front of the mill at a point about 100 yards from the two intake pipes for the mill water-supply and about midway between them but considerably nearer the shore.

(14) Before the septic tank was erected the latrines in use were modifications of Donaldson's. The night-soil was carted away by the Company's own carts to the Municipal trenching-ground. Many of these latrines are still in use, as the septic tank is neither large enough nor central enough to enable all the old latrines to be abolished. The bacteriological system is infinitely superior, being much cheaper to work, much cleaner, and compared with the old system, practically odourless except in the immediate vicinity of the latrine itself where the smell is never bad enough to constitute a nuisance.

II.—Effluents and Filtrates.

(15) No.

(16) Analysis by the Government Chemical Examiner, special attention being paid to the oxygen absorbed by the effluent, and to the proportion of nitrates to nitrites.

(17) No.

(18) The filtrate is slightly cloudy in appearance, but clears in a few minutes by settling and exposure to the air. It has a very light smell, but does not purify; the smell disappears very soon. The Chemical Examiner reported that the effluent "was harmless and suitable for irrigation and fit to be allowed to escape into a river."

(19) No experiments have been made here.

(20) I have not used the filtrates as feed-water, but competent chemists have told me that no harm could result from such a course. I therefore see no objection, speaking generally, to putting the effluent into the settling tank for the boiler feed-water except on the score of expense. I could not, however, recommend this Company to adopt this course as I consider it unnecessary here.

(21) No.

III.—River.

(22) Were effluents to be discharged by pipes leading to the bottom of the river, they might perhaps reach the intake of a water-supply in their neighbourhood, but, if so, they would be so diluted as to be indistinguishable from the river water, and quite innocuous.

Naihati being about 15 miles above the Howrah Water-works at Serampore, and about 13 miles above the Calcutta Works at Fulta, the effluent from the Gourepore Company's septic tank cannot possibly affect these water-supplies.

(23) At Naihati the river is never in the least salt or brackish. In the dry season the difference between high and low water is about eight feet at ordinary tides and during flood tide there is a very strong upward flow of water on the surface. I am unable to say if the current is changed throughout its depth, but I believe it is from the fact that the fishermen net fish from the bottom of the river during the flood tide with the opening of the nets pointing down stream. The difference at Nalhati between lowest river level in the dry season and highest flood level in the rains is about 23 or 24 feet. At high flood level the low-lying chur lands are flooded, but the average level of the country is about four or five feet above this.

(24) The Deputy Sanitary Commissioner recently drew samples of river water near the discharge of the filtrates, but the results of the tests have not been communicated to this Company.

(25) I have not heard of any.

(26) I cannot say.

IV.—General.

(27) I do not believe that filtrates such as are discharged from this Company's works can be detrimental to public health. The septic tank here has been in constant use for 20 months and the drinking water for the European and native residents has been drawn from the river in the vicinity of the discharge. This has in no way affected the general good health which has long prevailed in and around the Company's mills.

(28) I do not feel competent to criticise the existing installations, but judging from my own experience, I should say that the main thing to ensure success is to have contact or filter beds of large area.

(29) (a) From the success which has attended the filtration of river water in sand filters, of which we have had considerable experience at Gourepore, I should imagine that very good results would ensue from using a sand filter in addition to the other contact or filter beds.

(b) In most cases that I know of a sand filter would be perfectly practicable.

(30) The Divisional Commissioner in a recent inspection of Nalhati Municipality visited these works and inspected the septic tank. He reported, "I saw the septic tank in the Gourepore Mills; it was working very well and there was nothing objectionable in the outflow."

A tracing showing the general arrangement of tank and filters is attached, as well as the Chemical Examiner's report and analysis.

SEPTIC TANKS.

Answer to Committee's Queries.

1. 32-seated septic tank, 32 automatic flushing tanks, 5 gallons each, depositing tank 8′ × 11′ 8,″ sewage tank 50′ × 11 ′8″; sewage tank discharge pipe 1½″ diameter discharge into a ventilation pit 2′ × 8′; then it is discharged into first filter by 4″ pipe; size of first filter 11′ × 8′; from first filter discharge into second filter by 4″ open drain; second filter is 16′ × 14′. There are two of the latter filter tanks that we use alternately daily; then it goes to the river in an open drain 1,300 feet from the river; approximate cost Rs. 15,000.

(2) The above is used by about 2,000 daily. About 500 pounds of sewage daily. Dimensions of tanks given in No. 1. We think about four times the above quantity could be disposed of by these tanks.

(3) Five gallons per head. No surface drainage pass into tanks.

(4) Yes. Entirely domestic; no manufacturing waste.

(5) We have no idea; these filters being always open for discharge.

(6) No, no. We have cleaned out our filters once in three years and the discharge water is as clean as the day we started.

(7) No.

(8) Passing through khoa and large pieces of brickbats. Two filters working. This is answered in No. 1 question.

I have been so burdened with work owing to the changes that are going on in the river that I have not been able to give your letter very much consideration.

I have, however, ordered one of my young Surveying officers to draw up a note for me on the subject after having explained to him and given him the headings I wanted information on. I enclose his note which I entirely agree with.

When you come down to Calcutta I will be very glad to come over and give you any personal assistance I possibly can on this question.

With kindest regards.

OFFICE MEMO. FOR DEPUTY CONSERVATOR.

DURING the dry season there is undoubtedly an actual movement of water throughout the entire depth, on the flood tide, as far up as Nadia In the freshets during spring tides this upward movement would probably be felt as far as Tribeni Ghât, though it would necessarily be feeble and of short duration.

On the other hand, even at Calcutta there are, during the freshets, intervals of many days when the current runs down stream uninterruptedly, and though the level of the water rises after low water, there is no reversal of current.

That this actual transference of water does not result in overflow and flooding is due to the fact that the level of the water is not constant, but varies, being regulated by the tide wave. This transference during the freshets, when the volume of water in the river is great, only takes place during spring tides, and the level of water at high tide is then abnormally raised, and sometimes comes perilously near to overflowing. If the level of water were fixed at a high point within the containing banks, any influx would necessarily involve an overflow, but these conditions do not obtain in a tidal river.

Calculating for the last three years from daily tests of the strength of the current taken by floats at the Howrah Floating Bridge, the farthest distance afloat would have travelled upstream, if dropped at Calcutta, under the most favourable conditions during the dry season, on the first of the flood tide, would approximately be 20 miles, and the average distance, taking spring and neap tides during the dry season, that is, between the months of December and July, would be 11 miles.

During the dry season when the flood current has most influence, effluent discharged into the river at Calcutta as the ebb current made down would, if held in suspension all the time and not dissipated, be carried by the succeeding flood current 1½ miles (on the average) above the point of discharge.

On the other hand during the freshets none of the effluent discharged on the ebb tide till within two hours of low water would be returned by the following flood current. During neap tides in this season effluent discharged at any time of tide would be carried downstream.

The immersion of the pipes to some depth below the surface would probably retard the transportation of the effluent in both directions up and down stream, as the velocity of the current is generally conceded to be greatest just a little below the surface and decreases to a minimum at the bottom of the stream.

From—Messrs. Jardine, Skinner & Co., Managing Agents, Kankarrah Company, Limited,

To—L. P. Shirres, Esq., Secretary to the Septic Tank Committee, Municipal Department, Darjeeling.

We duly received your circular dated June regarding septic tank installations, and now have the honour, as far as we are able, to reply to your questions—

1. Our installation has 42 compartments and cost Rs. 25,000; it is built with bricks and mortar and has a pucka roof; the floors and walls are laid with marble. The main sewers are made of white porcelain pipes which run through the floor of the tank; they are automatically flushed and are connected with the liquefying compartment by syphons. The effluent has a fall of six feet.

2. The working capacity of the tank is 24,000 gallons, daily displacement 12,000 gallons. This is the quantity of tank effluent which passes through the filter-beds daily. We have another installation of 60 compartments under construction on much the same principle. It will have a working capacity of 30,000 gallons with a daily displacement of 14,000. The filter-beds attached to this installation are six in number, each 30′ × 10′ × 2′ 6′ deep. The filtering media broken jhama brick of different sizes in the first two beds and broken brick and boiler clinker in the last bed—three beds working, three resting. The cost of this installation Rs. 30,000. The two installations to treat the deposit from 7,000 persons.

3. Three gallons per head. No surface drain.
4. Entirely domestic.
5. The sewage remains 48 hours in tank, two hours in filter-bed.
6. The tank is blown off three times a year through a connection at the bottom of the liquefying tank. The matter is black in colour and without smell.
7. The sewage is not screened.
8. Double filtration, four filters each 30′ × 8′ × 3′, two coarse and two fine, filtering media broken brick, boiler clinker.
9. The filters are constructed so as they can either be worked as double contact beds or continuous filters. Two filters working for two days, two resting for two days.
10. The filters do not clog. The first two filters require to be raked on the top occasionally.
11. The installation in use is 400 yards from the river and the one under construction 600 yards.
12. The filtrate is discharged from the tank into an open drain and runs into a large drain which takes the discharge water from the mill.
13. The nearest ghât is about one-fourth of a mile above the discharge.
14. The former system for disposing of the sewage was by trenching. There is no comparison between the two systems.
15. No standard of purification has been fixed.
16. Samples of the filtrate has been taken from time to time and kept in bottles.
17. None.
18. The filtrates are absolutely free from smell and do not putrify.
19. We have not experimented with the filtrates.
20. We would object to use the filtrates as feed-water for our boilers. We have no tank suitable to discharge the filtrates into.
21. No deodorants have been used.
22. Absolutely none.
24. Tests have been made by the absorption of oxygen.
25. Not to our knowledge.
26. The river-bank where not built on or occupied is one common latrine.
27. If the filtrate has been properly treated, it would not be detrimental to the public health.
28. The present installation works satisfactorily: the filtrate is clear and free from smell.

29. After testing we have found that sand is not a good filtering media, as it gets bound together and prevents the oxygen in the air acting on the filtrate. We have had the best results when boiler clinker is used for the filtering media.

30. A reason for the failure in the bacterial treatment of sewage is that sufficient space is not always taken to separate the treatment of the matter in the three different stages. Compressing the three stages into two areas does not give satisfactory results.

Dated Bombay, the 26th July 1904.

From—C. CORBETT JAMES, ESQ., M.I.C.E., Special Drainage Engineer, Bombay Municipality,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tanks Committee, Government of Bengal, Darjeeling.

I REGRET that I have been so long answering the enquiry contained in your letter of the 7th June 1904, but I have lately been exceedingly busy.

I have from time to time continued to test the effluent taken from the different compartments of the septic tank at Matunga after 4 hours', 6 hours', and 8 hours', contact, respectively, and there is no question but that the maximum purification in India takes place in far less time in a septic tank than in England. This is principally a matter of temperature; and while the mean average temperature of sewage in England is usually between 51° and 58°F., in a climate like Bombay it is between 78° and 90°F.

When I wrote the paragraph you refer to at page 159 of "Oriental Drainage," my observations seemed to tend towards a period of 4 hours as being what was necessary for contract in a septic tank, but after making a large number of analyses spread over a considerable period, I find that with sewage having an average temperature of 83·60°F., 55 per cent. of the purification occurs in 4 hours, 82 per cent. in 6 hours, and 84 per cent. in 8 hours. I am satisfied that these results are correct; therefore if economy is a serious object in the construction of a septic tank, 6 hours' contact would probably give all the purification required for that class of treatment, though I should prefer always to allow 8 hours, as it gives a margin of safety, especially as the flow of sewage is somewhat very uneven.

As regards covered and uncovered septic tanks, if a tank is to be covered, then adequate measures are necessary to allow the gas which forms rapidly at a high temperature to flow off freely; if this is not done, purification is much interfered with, and under pressure of gas the bacteria will do little or no work. For this reason, specially if there is a certainty of scum forming on the tank and no use is to be made of the gas, it is preferable from a purification point of view to allow the septic tank to remain uncovered.

I have found that if the effluent of a septic tank after 8 hours' contact is sufficiently exposed to the air, it rapidly purifies and gives good results under an analysis for absorbed oxygen, and I venture to send you a sketch which may possibly be useful to you in dealing with the matter under consideration.

If the effluent is discharged over a flight of steps, as shown in the sketch, it will derive considerable benefit from exposure to air in this way, and there will be an appreciable improvement in its purification even in the short time that elapses in its passing over the steps; this I have proved at Matunga.

If there is any further information that I can give you, you will no doubt communicate with me again.

Dated Calcutta, the 2nd August 1904.

From—DR. J. NIELD COOK, D P.H., Health Officer, Corporation of Calcutta,

To—The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Bengal.

I HAVE the honour to forward to you direct a report on the bacterioscopic examination of samples of Hooghly River water as required by Government order No. 2158M., dated the 15th July 1904.

Bacteriological Report.

IN accordance with Government order No. 2158M., dated the 15th July 1904, Dr. J. N. Dutt, the Corporation Analyst, and I visited the places detailed below on the 23rd July and took samples of septic-tank effluent and river water which were immediately tubed in culture media on board the launch, in order to secure accuracy in the quantitative estimation of bacillus Coli Communis. The following is a list of the samples taken:—

A.—River water 50 yards from the Pulta intake near the end of the ebb tide.

B.—Effluent of the Kanknarrah septic tank.

C.—River water 100 yards from the outfall of the Kanknarrah septic-tank effluent and 20 feet from the shore. The water near the shore was just moving up at the time.

D.—Effluent of the Gouripore septic tank.

E.—River water 100 yards from the Gourepore outfall in the direction of the flow, which was very slight, and 20 feet from the shore.

F.—River water 50 yards from the Pulta intake at the end of the flood tide.

G.—Effluent of the Titaghur septic tank.

H.—River water 100 yards from the outfall of the effluent from the septic tank in the direction of the flow and 20 feet from the shore.

2. The primary object of the examinations made was the qualitative and quantitative estimation of bacillus Coli Communis. There is some difference of opinion as to the essential characteristics of this bacillus. Klein and Houston define it as a motile non-spore-bearing bacillus, possessing a limited number of flagella, capable of fermenting glucose and lactose, of curdling milk with the production of acid, of forming indol in broth culture, reducing neutral red with the production of a green fluorescence, producing gas bubbles in nutrient jelly, of forming a more or less brownish growth on steamed potato, and of producing on the surface of gelatin a dry translucent growth which does not liquefy the gelatin. The bacilli under the microscope appear as cylindrical rods, showing more or less pronounced motility, and they do not stain by the method of Gram.

Boyce and others define the bacillus Coli Communis as a group of organisms with the following characteristics:—

(1) They are non-sporing and non-liquefying.

(2) They rarely stain by Gram's method.

(3) They produce both acid and gas with both glucose and lactose, and may do so with saccharose.

(4) They produce acid in milk and usually also coagulate it.

(5) They produce acid and gas in bile salt glucose broth.

They grow well at a temperature of 42°C.* The accompanying tables show that the bacillus which you call bacillus Coli Communis fully satisfies all the requirements, except Klein's translucent growth on gelatin and the formation of gas bubbles in nutrient jelly, which we did not try on account of the difficulty of working with gelatin in the hot weather when it liquefies at the ordinary temperature of the atmosphere.

3. The bacillus Coli isolated from all the septic-tank effluents and samples of river water presented the same biological and cultural characteristics, so that one description will suffice. Examined alive and unstained in a drop of water, it showed a moderate degree of motility; stained by Van Ermingen's method, it appeared as a cylindrical rod without spores and with one or two long and slightly wavy flagella; grown at a temperature of 42°C. in MacConkey's medium, consisting of peptone, glucose, taurocolate of soda and litmus, it produced both acid and gas. This was the first step in our examination, and its object was to separate the bacillus from the other sewage and water bacteria. From this we inoculated nutrient agar slopes, and from all the samples obtained the same bacillus in pure culture. In both glucose and lactose agar the bacilli obtained in this way from all the samples produced gas formation. In litmus milk they produced both acid and curdling. They formed indol in peptone solution (Dunham's solution) and in peptone broth. They reduced neutral red with the production of a green fluorescence. They formed a copious brownish growth on steamed potato. They did not stain with Gram's method. So I am in a position to state positively that all the samples taken contained the bacillus Coli Communis.

4. The method adopted for estimating the number of b. Coli Communis was to mix 1 c. c. of a sample with 9 c. c. of sterile water and mix them by shaking. One c. c. of this mixture was then mixed with 9 c. c. of sterile water, and again one of the second mixture with a third c. c. of sterile water, and so on up to the 5th dilution. These dilutions may therefore be taken to be 1 in 10, 1 in 100, 1 in 1,000, 1 in 10,000 and 1 in 100,000, and 1 c. c. of each dilution was introduced into a tube or MacConkey's solution. In the case of the septic-tank effluents higher dilutions were made. They were 1 in 10, 1 in 1,000, 1 in 100,000 and 1 in 1,000,000. It is assumed that one bacillus Coli is capable of multiplying in the medium so as to produce the reaction. So if a dilution of 1 in a million produces the reaction, it follows that a millionth part of 1 c. c. contained one bacillus Coli, or conversely that 1 c. c. of the sample tested contained a million b. Coli Communis, and similarly in proportion to the various degrees of dilution. A glance at the first table will show that Sample A contained 100 b. Coli Communis to the c.c., B. contained 1 million, C contained 1,000, D contained a million, E contained 1,000, F contained 10, G contained a million and H contained 1,000.

5. Though only an investigation regarding the presence of b. Coli Communis was asked for in the reference, it was thought advisable to do tests for the presence of the b. Enteritidis Sporogenes of Klein, as some authorities attach importance to the presence of the spores of this bacillus in addition to b. Coli Communis as evidence of contamination.

* Vide Art. "Examination of Water," by Thresh, in Public Health, May 1904, page 466.

The principal test relied upon for the detection of this bacillus is to introduce 1 c.c. of a sample water into a test-tube of sterile milk and heat it to 80°C. for 15 minutes to kill off all non-sporing organisms. As soon as it is cooled, vaseline is poured on the surface to exclude air and also to show the formation of gas. If the sporogenes is present, a large quantity of gas is driven off and breaks up the vaseline plug, and the contained milk is converted into a thin watery whey with a few lumps of casein adhering to the sides of the tube. When the tube is opened, the whey has a smell of butyric acid and is acid in reaction. The bacillus obtained in the whey when inoculated has usually a lethal effect on guinea pigs. This milk reaction was obtained with the samples of river water and with one effluent from a septic tank, which was the only one tried, and three out of six guinea pigs inoculated with the whey died and showed characteristic post-mortem appearances. These are the usual tests, but some doubt is thrown on the result from the fact that the sporing bacillus obtained which was found to grow anærobically would also grow in the presence of air, so that it cannot be considered to be an obligatory anærobic bacillus, but a facultative ærobic one, the bacillus Enteritidis Sporogenes of Klein being described by its discoverer as an obligatory anærobic one. Though for this reason I cannot call the sporing bacillus obtained the bacillus Enteritidis Sporogenes of Klein, yet it must be a very closely allied species, and Houston says: "Nor do we know of any substance which is not objectionable in character, or which has not been associated at some time with matter of undesirable sort, which can effect a similar transformation in milk."* It is possible that our tubes contained the bacillus of Klein mixed with another spore-bearing bacillus which would grow either ærobically or anærobically, though microscopically all the spore-bearing bacilli obtained presented similar morphological characteristics.

No. 36, dated Calcutta, the 6th August 1904.

From—Captain L. Rogers, I.M.S., Offg. Professor of Pathology, Medical College, Calcutta,

To—The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Bengal.

I have the honour to submit the following further report on the bacteriological examination of Hooghly waters sent to the laboratory this week by the Deputy Sanitary Commissioner, Metropolitan Circle. The water denoted A was taken at Pulta at high tide, that B was taken at Pulta at low tide, while C was taken 40 yards below the outflow of the septic tank at dead low tide: —

	Total per c. c.	Coli per c. c.	Comma b.	Sporogenes.
A.	16,000	56	Present	Nil in 50 c. c.
B.	1,600	5	Present	Nil in 100 c. c
C.	27,800	420	Present in some numbers.	Sporogenes found in 100 c.c. in very small numbers.

In the case of A and B quantities of the waters, after concentration by passage through a porcelain filter, varying from 2 to 100 c.c., were also tested for coli bacilli, and they were found to be present in every tube. All the waters were very much thicker, owing to their containing much suspended matter, than in the samples submitted on a former occasion, which were taken a few days after a very heavy rainfall. The water taken from near the septic tank exit shows higher numbers, both total and of coli add comma bacilli, than did those at Pulta, but the latter also show a high degree of bacterial pollution.

Dated Calcutta, the 9th August 1904.

From—Messrs. Duncan Brothers & Co., Agents, Anglo-India Jute Mills Company, Limited,

To—L. P. Shirres, Esq., I.C.S., Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

We have the honour to give below replies received from our Manager to the questions set forth in Government Resolution No. 286T.—M., dated Darjeeling, the 20th April 1904:—

1. The building is pucka throughout with the exception of the roof which is of corrugated iron. The floors are laid with French tiles. Main sewers are in the floors of the tank and composed of white procelain pipes and attached to the liquefying compartment by syphons and automatically flushed. Cost Rs. 19,000.

2. The estimated quantity of sewage dealt with is about 30 cwt. per day. The dimensions of the tanks are, length 71½′ × width 17½′ × 8½′ in height, and 46 seats.

3. The quantity of water used is 3,000 gallons per day, thus allowing one gallon per head of workers. No surface drainage passes into the tanks.

4. The sewage is entirely domestic and contains no manufacturing waste.

5. The sewage passes through the tank during the day (daylight to dark), but after, the latrine is not in use.

6. Sludge does not accumulate in the tank as some is let off once a month. It is not necessary to clear out the tanks periodically when this is done.

7. The sewage is not screened before admission to the tank.

8. System of filtration is broken bricks, boiler clinker and ashes. Four filters are attached measuring, two each 33½′ × 11′ and 34′ × 11′.

9. The filtation is continuous either in one set of filters or the other, two resting while two are working. Ninety-six hours is the time allowed for resting.

10. The surface at times has to be removed and fresh material put on, say once in six months.

11. One thousand three hundred and sixty-seven feet is the distance from the river.

12. Discharged by open drain.

13. People bathe on the upper and lower sides of the discharge drain close to the mouth and take water therefrom without compunction.

14. The old system was to carry away by night-soil carts. It had nothing to recommend it, and even although methers were continually employed in cleansing the latrine, it always had a bad smell. The methers had also the habit of dumping the deposit in the nearest convenient pool during the rains to save taking to the trenching ground which is about a mile distant from the mill. The bacteriological system does away with all that, and with the exception of the first week or two has practically no smell. The health of the operatives has also improved since the introduction of this system.

15. No standard of purification has been fixed.

16. Dr. Schulten made analytical test on a sample of effluent after flowing 900 feet in an open drain and 40 feet before entering the river which turned out as follows:—

Reaction—faint alkalinous, colour—whitish turbid, odour—strongly putrefactive, turbidity—flocculent matter and sediment

In 100,000 parts of the original water.

Suspended organic matter	...	...	...	3·40
Ditto inorganic do.	...	...	...	5·00

In 100,000 parts of the filtered water.

Total solids	...	...	...	40·00
Sulphide of Hydrogen gas		...	...	0·16
Ammonia	...	...	...	0·75
Nitrous Acid	...	...	..	Traces.
Nitric Acid	...	...	...	None.
Chlorine	...	...	...	7·81
Organic matter	...	...	...	92·90

17. No.

18. Nitrates. Nearly so. Not to my knowledge.

19. No experiments have been made by me as yet, but I think it is worth trying.

20. Filtrates have not been tried to my knowledge in this country for feed-water for boilers. I would object to do so on the ground that should the suction jamb, none of the natives would go and clear away the obstruction, and many mills draw their drinking-water from this source direct.

21. No deodorants are used.

22. No risk whatever.

23. I have always understood there is no salt in the water above Hooghly Bridge. I am certain none exists above Barrackpore.

24. Not to my knowledge.

25. I have not heard of any.

26. One cannot walk along the river bank in the neighbourhood without failing to see the pollution of the river by human deposits. Dead bodies are also placed in the river by domes in order to save the money for wood.

27. I do not.

28. More filter-beds if the present is not sufficient and mixed with the boiler discharge to river.

29. Never having tried sand filter-beds in connection with septic tanks I cannot say.

30. I am of opinion that it would not do for a boiler feed on account of the reasons given, but for irrigation purposes I think it would be a success—more so if taken direct from the septic tank.

In forwarding these replies for the consideration of your Committee, we desire to record our strong dissatisfaction at the system of trenching hitherto in vogue in Kankinara.

The trenching ground is situated close to the railway station between the main line and the siding which leads to the Anglo-India, Fort Gloster Branch, and Alliance Jute Mills, and our European Assistants who pass along the line daily testify that the stench which hangs over the neighbourhood (especially in the evenings immediately after sundown) is so dense and so sickening as to defy description. This state of affairs is in our view nothing short of a menace to the public health of the district. We hope therefore that your Committee will encourage any steps that are taken for doing away with this very marked offence.

Dated Calcutta, the 20th August 1904.

From—G. W. DISNEY, Esq., District Engineer, Muzaffarpur,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

I HAVE the honour to submit my report on the septic-tank installations at the Hooghly Mills, seven of which I have inspected, recording therein my impressions and suggestions for improvements, as requested by your Committee.

2. Gouripore Jute Mill.—At the Gouripore Jute Mill the size of the septic tank to working level is 60′ 0″×14′ 0″×5′ 6″=4,620 cubic feet = 28,875 gallons, the water-supply or dilution being 6 to 7 gallons per charge. Taking the former and allowing for a 24 hours' rest in the septic tank, 4,812 charges is its maximum working capacity or 9,624 charges with a 3-gallon dilution. Assuming the work people use the latrine twice daily, the area is sufficient to treat the sewage of 2,406 persons with a 6=, or 4,812 with a 3-gallon flush. As about 4,000 persons use the latrine daily, the probability is the period of rest in the septic tank is much too short. The ratio of dilution to period of rest is a question that has not as yet been satisfactorily solved as far as I know. Automatic-flushing cisterns incapable of being tampered with by the persons using the latrine should be provided so as to properly control the water-supply.

The ratio of length to width, and of cubical contents to surface area of the septic tank, works out to 4·3 and 5·5. In the Exeter designs these are 7·1 and 6 respectively. The tank therefore is too short. This is I consider an important point, as it is advisable to have a fair length of tank through which the sewage must pass.

The filter-beds are designed for intermittent upward filtration; better results are obtained from percolation contact-beds over which the effluent is evenly spread by sprinklers. The beds are arranged in groups, one aerating while the other is in use, and double filtration is given, the area of filter space provided being 8×30′ 0″×10′ 0″×5′ 0″ or 266 square yards. Assuming the rate of flow on to the filter-beds to be 200 gallons per superficial yard in 24 hours, the area provided is sufficient for 53,200 gallons or nearly double the actual requirements. Good percolation contact filters can therefore easily be made here, and double contact arranged for.

A very similar case to this is at Hampton on the Thames where the sewage is dealt with by triple contact bacteria beds (Dibdens) composed of coarse, fine and fine (sic) sand, the difficulty in level being overcome by an aerator effluent lift; this is practically a fountain and is of great value in aerating the filtrate.

An efficient distributor to evenly sprinkle the effluent over a rectangular filter-bed has not, as far as I know, yet been made.

3. Kharda Jute Mill.—At the Kharda Jute Mill a new installation has been started within the last six weeks, and represents the latest type in use at the mills. The septic tank is reported to be 91′ 0″×17′ 0″×5′ 0″=7·735 cubic feet =47,845 gallons, the ratio of length to width being 5·3 and of cubical contents to surface area about 5. The average number of work people employed in the mill is 4,000; and assuming each uses the latrine twice daily, with a 4-gallon flush, the quantity of sewage to be disposed of in the septic tank amounts to 24,000 gallons. In other words the tank is large enough to provide for 47,850÷3=15,940 charges or 7,970 persons, say 8,000, double the actual immediate requirements of the mill.

The existing arrangements for water-supply are in my opinion deficient. This is governed by tipping troughs on the roof of the latrine which are assumed to discharge at stated intervals and thus flush out the soil pipes. It is I consider much preferable that each deposit be washed down into the septic tank by its own independent flush of water, as thereby more even mixing is ensured The sewage is introduced into the septic tank in the middle of its length and not at the far end from the effluent outlet. This is in my opinion a mistake, as the liquid has only to traverse half instead of the full length of the tank and unequal mixing may be the result. The ventilation of the septic tank is I consider insufficient: only one ventilator is provided at the far end from the effluent outlet. This may cause a considerable pressure of gas inside the tank.

The filter-beds are reported to be 4×29′ 6″×14′ 0″= the equivalent of say 1,650 superficial feet at 184 square yards, with a rate of flow of 200 gallons per superficial yard in 24 hours. The provision made would suffice for 36,800 gallons or 12,800 gallons in excess of the existing actual requirements, provided an efficient means of distributing the effluent over the beds is introduced. At present it is allowed to flow over them by gravitation. The filters are in duplicate and provide for double contact.

Waterfalls or cascades in the drain leading the filtrate away to the canal into which it is discharged, and not into the Hooghly itself, would be advantageous.

4. The Kharda installation does not come, strictly speaking, within the scope of the reference; but as it is quite a new one, I consider it advisable to record my opinion on it

5. The installations at the Shamnaghur, Titaghur and Standard Jute Mills have been constructed by Messrs. DeCosta & Co. and are all of very similar design. The latrines are provided with 30 seats and are said to be designed for 3,000 persons daily, with the exception of the one at the Standard Mill in which the number is reported to be limited to 1,000 charges. The seats are provided with automatic-flushing arrangements which discharge a nominal flush of 3 gallons at each operation, but these are frequently tampered with as alluded to in the description of the Gouripore Installation.

Standard Jute Mill.—The septic tank at the Standard Mill is reported to be 51′ 0″ × 24′ 0″ × 7′ 6″ which equals 9,180 cubic feet or 57,670 gallons. If only 1,000 charges of 3 gallons are admitted daily only 3,000 gallons of sewage is dealt with. Even taking the height of the effective water level at 5′ 0″ instead 7′ 6″, the capacity of the tank works out to 38,250 gallons or say the equivalent of the space required for 6,000 persons daily, at 6 gallons a head (two flushes). The ratio of length of tank to width is nearly 2 to 1.

The filter provision is said to be six filters of 6′ 0″ × 6′ 0″ 3′ 0″, worked on alternate days, giving an aggregate of 216 square feet or 24 superficial yards. This provides for 4,800 gallons at a flow of 200 gallons per superficial yard, or sufficient for 1,600 charges of 3 gallons each. The installation is therefore working at 600 charges daily below its full power as determined by the filter area, but the design is a badly balanced one.

In this type of septic tank the effluent is distributed over the filters by several different devices, none of which are satisfactory; and only single contact is given: a considerable amount of headway is unnecessarily lost; the filtrate is discharged into the river through covered drains, and the ventilation of the septic tanks appears to be deficient.

6. Provided the installations I have seen are not overworked, an even dilution provided, and the effluent efficiently distributed over the filters, it would be easy to ensure a very good filtrate being obtained. It would also be easy to arrange for a second contact after the filtrate has left the percolation beds, through a fine filtering medium or through sand, and æration of the final filtrate in the drain leading from this by cascades or water-falls would further improve matters. I am in favour of the final filtrate being discharged gradually into the river, if this is decided on, as by doing so it will become more thoroughly mixed with the river water.

7. As regards the turning of the filtrate over land, I find on reference to my notes that at the Camp Farm, Aldershot, 1,500 acres of land were required for the treatment of 1,000,000 gallons of crude sewage by broad irrigation, but there the land is under-drained. This is probably the best worked sewage farm in England.

At the Matunga Sewage Farm, Bombay, which has an area of 5·02 acres, 20,000 gallons of effluent daily from the septic tanks are disposed of in irrigating it during the dry-weather months (James); but the dilution there is much greater than obtains in the mill filtrates.

Dated Rishra, the 22nd August 1904.

From—H. M. Scott, Esq., Manager, Hastings Jute Mill,

To—The Hon'ble Mr. L. P. Shirres, Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

With reference to my interview, on Friday last, with the Committee appointed to enquire into the working of septic tanks, I ought to have mentioned, in discussing the possibilities of using the discharge from the tanks as feed-water for boilers, that, in a few months' time, it would be utterly impossible for us to use it in this way even were it found to be non-injurious to boilers.

When I expressed my willingness to make experiments in this direction, I was referring to our present boilers, which are of the Lancashire type. We are just completing, however, an entirely new system, which will be working in a few months' time from now; and as this plant is surface condensing, the quantity of make-up water required is so little that it is inconsiderable in proportion to the discharge from our septic tanks.

Dated Uttarpara, the 22nd August 1904.

Demi-official from—Raja Peary Mohun Mookerjee,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

With reference to your demi-official No. 317, dated the 20th instant, I beg to return herewith the notes of my evidence given before the Septic Tank Committee corrected and approved by me.

RAJA PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE, C.S.I.

The Raja wanted permission to read extracts from two books which he said fully represented his views on the subject and then read the following extracts:—

"In the present unsettled and unsatisfactory state of knowledge, the guidance of chemical analysis cannot be unreservedly followed.

Not long ago the House of Commons threw out a Bill with regard to a Water Company about whose water there were six different opinions, and although they said it was pure water yet above the intake of the Company, the water received the drainage of several towns with a population of 90,000.

Professor Huxley asked the President of the Commission if there was any known method by which if a drop of Pasteur's solution were placed in a gallon of water its constituents could be estimated. The President said it was doubtful. Huxley said that every cubic inch would contain 50,000 to 10,000 bacteria.

Mr. Shirres.—When was that?

Answer.—Not long ago, but I have lost the book.

The Raja continued.—Water may be chemically pure and yet as deadly as prussic acid.

There is not sufficient evidence to decide whether cholera evacuations are infectious from the moment of their discharge or must undergo some putrefactive or fermentative changes subsequent to their escape from the body.

Question.—When was the book published?

Answer.—In 1890. Second edition of Parke's Hygiene.

Question.—Do you think that fresh evacuations are less harmful than after they have undergone putrefaction?

Answer.—It is not so harmful, because as soon as they drop into the river they are eaten up by fishes and other animals, but in the septic tanks they undergo a sort of fermentation and therefore they are much more injurious than fresh fœcal matters.

Colonel Brown.—Is that your opinion?

Answer.—That is Dr. Parke's opinion.

Question.—You mean to say that Dr. Parke's opinion is that fresh evacuations are not so injurious as what has undergone some fermentation?

Answer.—That is my opinion supported by Dr. Parke.

Question.—Are you aware that Dr. Parke's book was published when septic tanks were not in existence?

Answer.—Very likely. I do not know that.

The Raja continued.—Distilled water infinitesimally polluted with a few grains of enteric fever stool would probably be passed as pure and wholesome by the biologist as well as by the chemist.

Then again Dr Parke said that chemical re-agents may be very efficient deodorisers and the removal of offensiveness is not equivalent to destruction of infection.

Rivers are capable of a certain amount of self-purification by natural means, but it is impossible to say how long the flow must be before it is effected.

Question.—We want your opinion and your objections to the system of septic tanks.

Answer.—I have strongest objections to it, both sentimental and religious, as well as on sanitary grounds. It is quite abhorrent to our feeling, and so far as I have gone into the matter on the basis of scientific authorities, it is altogether dangerous to the health of the public.

Question.—Is it not the fact that the Ganges at Benares receives discharge from all the drains of the city?

Answer—Yes. But although you find thousands and thousands of men worshipping the Ganges there, not one touches a drop of water for drinking or cooking purposes.

Question.—Then you admit that the Ganges is impure?

Answer.—Yes for the time being and to a certain distance.

Question.—Have you ever seen a septic tank?

Answer.—No.

Question.—Have you seen any discharge of the sewage in the form of effluent?

Answer.—No; I am told that it is almost like clear water.

Question.—Then your objection is entirely on sanitary basis?

Answer.—Sanitary as well as sentimental.

Question.—What do you mean by sentimental?

Answer.—The water will be polluted. It is abhorrent to our feelings.

Question.—You do not object to it from a religious point of view?

Answer.—I do. Both on sentimental and religious grounds.

Question.—What do you mean by religious?

Answer.—Our religion says "Apa Narayan," i.e., water is God. We say rivers are goddesses. Not even the most ignorant people would spit into a tank or any water. It is God itself.

Question.—Would you be surprised to hear some of your pundits say that rivers cannot be polluted in a religious sense? Ganges itself is holy and nothing can pollute it in a religious sense. Is it not the case?

Answer.—That is not it. I would be surprised to hear that. In the long run it cannot be polluted, but immediate pollution is possible in the religious sense.

Question.—In a religious sense?

Answer.—Yes, in a religious sense.

Take the similar case of a tank which is polluted. We pour into the tank 100 kalasis of Ganges water in order to purify it after pollution.

Question (Mr. Horn).—If scientific opinion be to the effect that septic tank effluents are harmful if directly discharged into the river, would that remove your objections on sanitary grounds?

Answer.—My objections on sanitary grounds will then be removed; but it must be the opinion of the highest authority in the world.

Mr. Horn.—You still have objections on sanitary grounds?

Answer.—In the face of what I have read it is my opinion that it is wholly objectionable.

Question (Mr. Shirres).—The book you refer to was published in 1890 when septic tanks were not in existence.

Answer.—But the arguments hold good.

Colonel Brown.—Do you consider that the river water will be quite pure supposing there are no septic tanks?

Answer.—In my part of the country the water is polluted every day by the discharges from the mills.

Question.—Do you think there will be any serious inconvenience by the discharge of effluents into the river?

Answer.—Yes. It will be a shock to the people's feelings and also on sanitary grounds.

Question.—How do you think the effluent to be dangerous to health?

Answer.—I have come to think so from the views in the text books I have read.

Question.—What books are they?

Answer. Dr. Parry's and Dr. Parke's books.

Question.—That is an old edition. Are there any other books which you know?

Answer.—No.

No. 51, dated Rishra, the 23rd August 1904.

From—Babu Baman Das Banerjee,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee, Calcutta.

With reference to your demi official No. 321, of the 20th instant, I have the honour to return the notes taken by the shorthand writer of my evidence before the Committee on the 30th ultimo, after necessary corrections as desired by you.

Babu Baman Das Banerjee, Rishra.

I am a resident of Rishra, where the Hastings Mills have started a septic tank.

Colonel Brown.—In fact there is no septic tank at work yet.

Answer.—It was started once but it has been stopped by the orders of Government we hear. It worked for some time.

Question.—Will you oblige us by your opinions on this subject and giving us the objections which you have, and the general feeling of the people?

Answer.—In Bengal, admittedly the river is the chief water-supply to the vast population living on both sides. Thousands of people daily bathe and draw water from the river for drinking, religious, and domestic purposes, in close proximity to the places where the effluents from the septic tanks have been arranged to discharge. These tanks are thus a source of discomfort to them and a serious menace to their health. The place where the septic tanks of the Rishra Hastings Mills were arranged to discharge their contents is very close to a pucca public Bathing Ghat, having Shivalayas (temples of the god Shiva) on both sides, being only about a hundred yards from the ghat and the temples, where thousands and thousands daily bathe, draw water for drinking and other useful purposes, and offer their pujah. It is generally believed, and I share that belief, that the discharges from the riparian mills, especially those from the Paper and the Bone Mills, into the river Hooghly, between Calcutta and Gariffa on the one side and Howrah and Hooghly on the other, have already contributed in a substantial measure to the unhealthiness of the people, who mostly use the river water for all purposes. Although I am not a medical expert and my opinion is not founded on any scientific analysis of the discharges from the Paper and Bone Mills as well the septic tanks, yet so far as their colour and abominable smell would indicate, they seem to me to be very repugnant and consequently injurious to health. During the few days (about a week) in February last that the septic tanks in the Rishra Hastings Mills were at work, there was such an awfully bad smell issuing from the tanks—which were constructed on the Grand Trunk Road at its junction with the Bathing Ghat Road and Dewanjee's Street, and in the heart of the town of Rishra, where the respectable residents live with families, and close to a line of shops and hotels over a dozen in number, and, what is repugnant to Hindu religious feelings, just in front of and close to a Hindu temple of public worship—that the people living within a few acres on all four sides felt themselves most discomfortable, and the nearing shop-keepers had to close their shops. The whole locality and even the European quarters within the mills premises and on the river side became so much affected that the kind proprietor of the mills, Mr. Adam Birkmyre, who had fortunately been there at the time, did, in disgust, close the tanks, and kindly assured us that on no account would he allow the discharges to run into the river, and would direct the use of the tanks, provided he obtained permission from Government to lay down pipes under the Kashmahal lands for the purpose of carrying the discharges to the fields and marshes, and he was pleased to write to me: "I am firmly convinced that no water from any septic tanks should be allowed to enter the sacred Hooghly." (Letter produced to the Committee; copy to be kept.) The lands to the immediate west of the mills are Kashmahal lands.

It is a known fact that year after year foul epidemics like cholera and small-pox decimate the towns of Rishra, Serampur, Mahes, and Chatra, and from the proverbially unhealthy Rishra bustis, very close to the septic tanks, where about 20,000 mill hands including night-workers live in compact mass, and for the improvement of which Government have undertaken to spend nearly a lakh of rupees, as centres, these diseases spread far and wide. The septic tank operation and particularly its connection with the river will, it is generally and justly believed, add to the continuous insanitary condition of the locality.

2. Apart from the fact that the river Hooghly is the chief source of water-supply to by far the largest population, the river is held most sacred by the Hindus. It is an object of veneration and worship. It is the receptacle of the ashes of the honoured dead. It is the emblem of purity and is associated with thoughts of eternity, of endless birth in the endless ages to come, until the purified soul is absorbed in the Divine Essence of Brahma. Such an object of veneration, linked in our minds with our holiest associations, should not be polluted by loathsome discharges of resolved fœcal matter. The pollution of the river is viewed by all Hindus as a great sin. As to the isolated instance of committing nuisance stealthily on the river by a few low class men and boatmen, the practice is not at all allowed in the Shastras, which call it a great sin. The practice of committing nuisance on the river banks has been made penal under the British rule.

Besides, the nuisance such as committed by boatmen is few and far between, and instantly destroyed by fishes and other animals, whereas the discharges of the septic tanks will at once be mixed up and assimilated with the drinking water drawn from the immediate neighbourhood.

The above objections may to some extent be removed or modified by directing the discharges from the septic tanks to be led to the fields and marshes, by carrying them through under-ground drains in the populated parts and, thereafter, through open drains into the fields, where they may with advantage be used for irrigating and manuring purposes, as the kind proprietor of the Rishra Hastings Mills has undertaken to do. This is quite practicable in the cases of the mills situate within the Hooghly district, as the natural slope of the land is not towards but away from, the river, and towards the fields; and in the case of Rishra Mills there are open and existing drains running from the mills direct to the fields along the border of the Khasmahal lands. As to the other mills, where such diversion is not possible, owing to the level of the land and the vast expenses to be incurred in consequence, the question of utilising the septic tank water for the boilers, or the construction of big tanks at reasonable distances from the septic tanks, to serve as reservoirs of the effluents, and then transforming the watery substances into gas or vapour, by some mechanical process, or the periodical removal of the effluents by large liquid refuse carts to distant marshes, may be considered.

Question (Mr. Shirres).—You speak about the punishment. Do you know how and why they are punished?

Answer.—They are punishable under Act V for committing nuisance.

Mr. Shirres.—I think they are punished for exposing themselves in a public place and not for committing nuisance in the river banks.

Answer.—I am not quite sure. But so far as I remember we have got a printed prosecution form in which the question is asked and recorded,—"Have you committed nuisance in the bank of the river or not?"

Mr. Shirres.—You say that you object to the sewage going into the Ganges because it pollutes the water. Is that pollution in the physical sense or in the religious sense?

Answer.—Of course I am not a medical authority or expert. So my objections are more in a religious sense than in a sanitary sense.

Question.—Is not the Ganges a religious river?

Answer.—Yes.

Question.—Can the Ganges be polluted in a religious sense?

Answer.—Practically it can. As I am not well versed in Shastras I cannot say that.

Question.—What do you think your Pandits will tell us if we consult them? And if they tell us that the Ganges being a holy stream it cannot be polluted, would you object to that?

Answer.—There are sanitary, sentimental, and religious objections.

Question.—But if your Pandits tell us that the running water of the Ganges cannot be defiled by impure matters being discharged with it, won't you accept that opinion?

Answer.—Of course we might accept it, but not to our heart's content, to be frank.

From—Babu Nalin Bihar Sircar,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

I beg to return the notes taken by the short-hand writer of the evidence lately given by me before the Committee, with a few verbal corrections. I am sorry I overlooked sending the papers back earlier.

BABU NALIN BIHARI SIRCAR.

Question.—Have you considered this question at all?

Answer.—About the septic tanks? I cannot say I have studied the question of septic tanks; but I have considered the question of pollution of river water by discharge of refuse matter from the various mills situated on both banks of the river from Calcutta to Naihati.

Question.—What is your opinion about the septic tanks?

Answer.—I do not know much of the septic tank and its working; but I am, as I have already stated, interested in the question of the pollution of the water of the river Hooghly.

Question.—In what respect?

Answer.—In respect of the discharge of sewage matter from the mills into the river. As a member of the Calcutta Corporation I brought up this question before the Commissioners so far back as 1892. Dr. Simpson was then the Health Officer of the Corporation and he was requested to submit a report after making a full enquiry into the matter. For the information of this Committee I submit copies of the proceedings of two meetings of the Water-supply Committee of the Corporation held on 20th May 1892 and on 11th July 1894. The former contains the grounds of complaint by the public and the latter the Report of the Health Officer (Dr. Simpson). Under a Resolution of the Commissioners in meeting the Health Officer's Report was forwarded to Government for such action as they might think necessary to take in the matter.

Question.—You know nothing of the septic tank?

Answer.—No. Practically nothing.

I raised the question of pollution of river water near about Pulta in 1892 in the interests of the filtered water supply of Calcutta. What I wanted was that there should be thorough enquiry into the whole question with a view to the prevention of the river water being polluted by discharge of foul matter from the mills.

Question.—Was your objection to taking water at Bally?

Answer.—No; at Pulta, not Bally. Pulta is the place where river water is pumped up for supply to Calcutta after filtration.

This report of Dr. Simpson had to be sent up to Government because the Corporation could not do anything in the matter, the river being altogether outside their jurisdiction I tried to find out what Government had done in the matter, but I could not get hold of any papers in the office of the Corporation.

Question.—Would you be surprised to know that after a careful analysis, Government had found out that there was no pollution at all?

Answer.—That may be so. But this much I know as a fact, that ever since people have been bitterly complaining of discharge of refuse matter from the mills. They complain of some oily black scum, emitting very offensive smell, discharged from the mills, that floats all over near the river bank and sticks to the body of those who come to bathe in the river. This is no doubt very disgusting and highly objectionable.

Question.—Is it the oil that they object to?

Answer.—Yes They object to the oily substance, the black scum, that floats about in large quantities as noxious, offensive, and most disgusting.

Question.—You think that effluents from septic tanks are more or less objectionable?

Answer.—That I think would depend to a great extent on the nature and character of the effluent.

Question.—Can you tell us what the objections are to the system?

Answer.—I have no personal knowledge of the effluents from septic tanks, in particular. The effluents from the mills that caused the oily black scum to float about are objectionable both on sanitary and sentimental grounds.

I know the residents of Naihati have very strong objections to the discharge of refuse matter from the Gouripore Mills. The river has for the last few years got very much silted up on the Naihati side from the Bridge to the Railway Ghat on the south, and people of Naihati have to walk across this chur land to reach the river. Between the river and its permanent bank on the Naihati side a narrow creek has formed, running along the chur land parallel to the river, close to the bank. This creek is blind at its north end, but discharges itself into the river at its south end near the Railway Ghat The whole of the liquid sewage matter from the Gouripore Mills is discharged at the north end of this creek and during flood-tide remains floating on the surface of the water to the great annoyance of those who use the water. Sometimes many a carrier of drinking water has been seen to take water from this creek instead of from the river at a distance. In my opinion the Gouripore Mill authorities should cut a channel across the chur land in front of their mills and discharge all sewage matter into it. If this were done, perhaps the creek, which is objectionable on other grounds also, may get silted up, for it is believed that the flow of liquid matter from the mills to a great extent helps to keep it open. And this liquid matter, it is bitterly complained, consists of not only refuse from the mills but crude sewage matter (excreta) from latrines and urinals within the mills compound.

Question.—Do you think this will be less objectionable if the discharge from the Gouripore mills were to pass through a pipe and let out into the river some fifty feet from the bank?

Answer.—I think it will depend upon how far the effluent is innocuous. If the effluent could be made absolutely harmless, the objections on sanitary grounds should give way. But I doubt if objections on sentimental grounds would be less.

Question.—What is your objection to it?

Answer.—I strongly object to sewage matter being allowed to flow into the river in which people bathe and from which they take water for drinking, cooking, and other domestic and religious purposes.

Question.—If the sewage is carried under the water and discharged at a distance?

Answer.—The objection is to the sewage matter being discharged into the river at all, no matter whether it flows from the bank on to the surface of the water or under the water at a distance.

Question.—Is there any sentimental objection to the discharge of sewage?

Answer.—All depends upon the nature and character of the sewage matter discharged. The greater the nuisance, the more vehement would be the objection.

I may inform the Committee that there was a time when in Calcutta all the excreta used to be thrown into the river and actually crude sewage would float on the water; and the nuisance was taken as a thing they had got to tolerate. Here also if this practice is allowed to be introduced, they will have to tolerate it. If it could be avoided it would be better. That is my view.

Question.—Would anybody object to a man's defecating on the edge of the water?

Answer.—Certainly, everybody would object. Hindus in particular; for there are very clear and distinct injunctions in the Shastras against pollution of water used for domestic purposes. In Manu Sanhita it is laid down that water should not be polluted by making water in it or defecating therein, or throwing phlegm into it, or by washing therein cloths smeared with fœcal matter, etc.

Question.—In any water?

Answer.—In any water from which water is taken for the purposes of bathing, cooking, or drinking.

Question.—Is this objection sentimental or religious?

Answer.—It is a religious objection, the injunction of the Shastras having probably been based on sanitary grounds.

Demi-official from—Rai Abinash Chandra Banerjee, Bahadur,
To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

Having been sick, I regret for the delay made in returning the notes taken by the shorthand-writer of my evidence before the Committee. I now return them herewith after correction.

Rai ABINASH CHANDRA BANERJEE, Bahadur.

Question.—Will you give us your opinion on this subject? What are the objections of the people about the septic tanks?

Answer.—Well, so far as I know, the conversion of sewage of the public latrines and of the mills into liquid and discharging it into the river, after being purified through some process, will be strongly objectionable; even the very idea that sewage is discharged into the river Hooghly after purification will be shocking, and I do not know how far it will affect the taste of the water. So far as I know, the effluent from the Bally Paper Mills is thrown into the Bally khal, and neither we can bathe into the river nor we can drink the water. When the effluent is thrown into the khal, we cannot bathe in the river (people generally bathe in the morning); such an amount of noxous smell is emitted from the water. Some times we have to draw the water for drinking purposes, and we cannot use it even after purifying it by some process.

Mr. Shirres.—It is not the effluent? When I was going to say something about the nuisance committed by the Bally Paper Mills by the discharge of the effluent from the mills into the khal, a gentleman remarked that "we are talking of septic tanks and not of the Paper Mills."

Rai Bahadur.—Even the discharge of the effluent is objectionable, as it comes from night-soil.

Question.—Then your objections are on sentimental grounds?

Answer.—Sentimental and religious.

Question.—Do you mean to say that the river is to be defiled from religious point of view?

Answer.—Yes, it is. Even in the Manu Sanhita we find that no one should commit any nuisance in the river.

Question.—It is not any ordinary river. Don't you think the Ganges can never be polluted?

Answer.—That is impracticable. I meant that it is impracticable that the Ganges can never be polluted.

Question.—What do you say about the droppings from the boats, etc.?

Answer.—An orthodox Hindu will never commit any nuisance from the boats.

Question.—But we have seen some.

Answer.—That is sometimes done by boatmen, etc. (some ignorant people), and that we cannot help. It cannot be stopped by anything but legislature.

Question.—Is that from a religious view?

Answer.—Yes it is. A religious Hindu never uses the refined sugar even.

Question.—Would you be surprised to hear that some of your pundits hold that the running water of the Ganges cannot be polluted or defiled?

Answer.—I am not competent to say that, as I am not well versed in Sanskrit and Shastras. But apart from religious point of view, on the sentimental grounds it is quite objectionable.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

In reply to your demi-official No. 327, dated 22nd August 1904, on the subject of septic tank installations, I beg to enclose a statement giving the information called for therein and a tracing showing roughly the various mills and the proposed dumping grounds for the effluent.

One of the mills mentioned as being in the 24-Parganas in the list accompanying your demi-official—the Victoria Jute Mills—is in the district of Hooghly, and I have submitted no information about it.

1. Titaghur Paper Mills.
2. Fort Gloster Jute Mills (branch).
3. Alliance Jute Mills.
4. Dunbar Cotton Mills.
5. Kennison Jute Mills.

The mills noted in the margin (shown in the tracing, but not given in your list) also are situated in this district; but as they do not possess septic tank installations, I have given no particulars regarding them.

The present filter-beds attached to the various existing septic tanks are mostly situated in low land, and it will be necessary to pump the effluent up into a reservoir in order to run it off to the proposed sewage farms.

BENOY KRISHNA BOSE,

The 5th September 1904. District Engineer.

No. 392, dated Calcutta, the 9th September 1904.

From—MESSRS. MARTIN AND COMPANY, Managing Agents, Arathoon Jute Mills Limited,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

We have now the honour to hand you replies to the various questions relating to septic tanks and filters contained in the Resolution No. 2361.—M., dated 20th April 1904.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS RELATING TO SEPTIC TANKS AND FILTERS.

Question No. 1.—We have two septic tank latrines at the "Arathoon Jute Mills," each worked on a somewhat different principle. One, with ten seats, erected by Messrs. DaCosta and Company. This latrine is supplied with water through "Donaldson's" patent cisterns (one to each seat) containing two gallons, with which the pan is flushed automatically at each visit; the discharge on leaving the tank is put through a filter-bed, the filtering material being charcoal and small clinker; there are two of these beds which are used alternately, while the one is being filled, the other is discharging.

The other tank, erected by Mr. W. R. Philp, has thirty seats, supplied with water from a tank containing thirty gallons, tipping automatically, about every three minutes, independent of the number that may use the latrine;—there are in connection with this tank, four filter-beds, filled and discharged successively, the water remaining in each about two hours.

Question No. 2.—The estimated amount of effluent, discharged from the small tank, is about 2,000 gallons, and from the large one, 9,000, daily, or a total of about 11,000 gallons per working day of fifteen hours.

Question No. 3.—No surface drainage passes into the tank.

Question No. 4.—Entirely domestic.

Question No. 5.—Two hours in each filter.

Question No. 6.—Have not found it necessary to clean out the tanks.

Question No. 7.—No.

Question No. 8.—There are four filter beds in connection with the "Philp" tank, and two on the "DaCosta."

Dimension of "DaCosta" filters.—10′ 0″ × 5′ 8″ × 3′ 0″ × 2.

Dimension of "Philp" filters.—25′ 0″ × 10′ 0″ × 4′ 0″ × 4.

Filtering material.—Broken bricks and clinker.

Question No. 9.—From the tank, continuous run during the day, rest during night-rest about two hours in each filter-bed.

Question No. 10.—Filters do not clog.

Questions Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17.—[No answer.]

Question No. 18.—Very slight odour.

Not aware that the "filtrates" have been tried as feed water for boilers—have not done so myself, and would not care to do so, except, perhaps, in the case of a single small boiler.

Questions Nos. 19, 20.—[No answer.]

Question No. 21.—No "deodorants" have been used.

Question No. 22.—Not near the river.

Questions Nos. 23, 24, 25, 26.—[No answer.]

Question No. 27.—Judging from the effluent discharges from our filters we have no hesitation in saying, that the discharge of properly and sufficiently filtered effluent, into the river would not be detrimental to the public health.

Dated Chinsurah, the 10th September 1904.

Demi-official from—H. D. CAREY, Esq.,
To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

In reply to your demi-official No. 826, of the 22nd August, on the subject of septic tanks, I enclose a report by the Subdivisional Officer, Serampore, on the subject of land available for the effluent of the tank at Hastings Jute Mill. The nearest land at all suitable for the purpose is nearly a mile away, and I can hardly call that site suitable. Personally I should feel very disinclined to try the experiment unless it could be carried out by some one who is an expert in the management of septic tanks in damp and flooded districts.

From—S. STINTON, Esq., Subdivisional Officer of Serampore,
To—The Collector of Hooghly.

IN reply to your note on Mr. Shirres' demi-official of the 22nd August, calling for a report on the land available for running out the effluent of the Hastings Jute Mill's septic tanks, I have the honour to reply as follows.

2. There is no land available in the vicinity of the mill. To the east of the mill is the Hooghly; to the west the Grand Trunk road. There is a strip of land, about half a mile in width, between the Grand Trunk Road and the Railway, the east part of which is occupied by the khas mahal bustí and the village of Rishra; the west part consists of pan plantations, various kinds of garden lands, plantations and tanks. This part is plainly unsuitable for the discharge of the effluent. The only land which can be considered for the purpose consists of a tract of open paddy-fields west of the railway lines and north-west from the septic tanks.

3. The accompanying plan will give an idea of the nature of this tract which has been marked CCC and DDD. The area marked AAA is from its nature unsuitable, and has been included in the larger scheme of Rishra basti improvement. The area BBB which is paddy-fields in khas mahal lands is unsuitable because it slopes down towards the Railway line. The line XXX represents the watershed, land to the west of which drains towards the Dankuni bhil some four miles distant. The only land available therefore is CCC and DDD. CC consists of paddy-fields interspersed with patches of jute and some trees. DDD is a large expanse of open paddy-fields sloping gently towards the north west and is perhaps the least unsuitable for the purpose.

4. The soil of all these open paddy-fields is clayey loam, the clay preponderating in the lower levels where the effluent would naturally discharge.

5. The area available is at least 700 bighas; the cost of acquisition per bigha about Rs. 70. An area sufficient to deal with daily discharge of 3,000 gallons would be necessary. This could be found without difficulty during the dry season, when the soil, though it contains a large proportion of clay, has absorbent power. During the rains, however, the soil of the whole neighbourhood becomes thoroughly soaked and the effluent would simply increase the volume of surplus rain-water which flows off the surface of the land. It would thus find its way partly into the surrounding tanks and partly into the natural drainage channel which leads to the Dankuni bhil. This bhil would be the best place for discharge, but its distance—it is 5 miles from the mills—is prohibitive.

6. I have taken the levels, and find that the levels of the fields at BBB are 3 feet below the main hole where the effluent at present discharges. Pumping, therefore, would probably be not necessary if the pipes were laid across the watershed to some point in CC or north-west to DD.

7. There is a culvert under the Railway line at F through which the pipe could be laid.

8. The distance from the tanks to a suitable point of discharge is about three-fourths mile in a straight line, and not less than a mile following the line which the pipe would probably take.

9. There is no light soil or sand in the neighbourhood suitable for running the effluent; and in the case of Hastings Mill this method is less suitable in my opinion than the present system of discharge into the Hooghly.

Dated Calcutta, the 12th September 1904.

Demi-official from—Dr. J. Nield Cook, D.P.H., Health Officer, Corporation of Calcutta,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

Your demi-official No. 1, dated the 7th instant. I enclose a note in which I have embodied my evidence and dealt with the points raised by the President of the Septic Tank Committee.

NOTE.

The quality of the effluents from the septic tanks may be considered under two heads—chemical and bacteriological. Judging by the few chemical analyses on the record, I am of opinion that after making allowances for the high proportion of organic matter in the sewage to be dealt with, the effluents are not so good as they should be. The amount of nitrates is much too low and the oxygen absorbed is much to high. Considering that the climatic conditions are more favourable to bacterial action than in Europe, I believe that a chemically better effluent might be obtained. The points to be regulated are the proportion of water to faecal matter, the size of the tank and time allowed for resolution, the area, depth and material of the filter-beds and the manner of filtration. I believe that the last mentioned is the most important, as the extent to which nitrification is obtained depends mainly on it. Most of the authorities on the bacterial treatment of sewage are agreed that contact beds are much inferior to continuous filter-beds five feet deep made of coal or coke in quarter inch cubes at the surface and larger below, and that it is essential that the tank effluent should be dropped on the surface by mechanical distributors, so as to fall like drops of rain. Continuous filter-beds should be used intermittently. I believe that the effluents from the mills would be much improved if this system were properly applied. As regards the bacteriological state of the effluents, Clowes and Houston have stated that the effluents from bacteria beds ought to be regarded as hardly if at all more safe in their possible relation to disease than the raw sewage before treatment. This would appear to be the case with the effluents I examined, for I found that at least a million b. coli communis to the cubic centimetre were present, which shows that bacteria whose habitat is the alimentary canal are discharged into the river nearly as freely as if no process whatever were adopted. I believe that at the present time a European Assistant in one of those mills has enteric. The enteric bacillus is closely allied to the bacillus coli, though not quite so viable under ordinary conditions, and in spite of the great dilution of the effluent in so large a river, I believe it to be possible for some out of the millions of enteric bacteria from such a case or cases if poured into the river to be taken up at the Calcutta or Howrah intakes several miles lower down, to pass through the sand filter-beds and to cause a few sporadic cases in the town. The chances may be against this happening, but it must be regarded as a possibility, and sporadic cases of enteric do occur in the town which I am unable to trace to any source.

2. I made a rough calculation, taking the estimated discharge of all the septic tank effluents, the number of b. coli to the cubic centimetre in these effluents and the amount of water in the river, and arrived at the conclusion that the septic tank would yield 10 b. coli to every cubic centimetre of river water. Other sources of pollution would yield at least as many and probably more. As a matter of practical observation I found fewer near the Pulta intake at high tide than at low tide, for I got a reaction with $\frac{1}{10}$ cubic centimetre of river water at low tide and only with $\frac{1}{1}$ cubic centimetre at high tide. With the Calcutta filtered water I do not generally get a reaction with less than 1 cubic centimetre.

3. I found a bacillus which gave the usual reactions of B. Enteritidis Sporogenes, but the bacillus of Klein is an anaerobic bacillus, that is to say it only grows in the absence of air. My bacillus grew readily in the absence of air, but would also grow in the presence of air, so I can only regard it as a closely allied species. I have no doubt about its being a sewage bacillus.

4. The pollution of the water was of such a degree as to constitute a possible danger in the water-supplies of Calcutta and Howrah.

5. If it is found that sand filtration works satisfactorily and the filters do not get clogged up with suspended matter and are not worked too fast, I think that it would probably intercept from 70 to 95 per cent. of the contained bacteria. If the resulting effluent were subsequently retained in an intercepting tank or reservoir, I believe that it would be best for the mills above the water-works to discharge it on the flood tide so that it would first be carried up the river, and so have more time to get thoroughly mixed with the river water and be exposed to the sun in the shallower reaches above. It has been stated that sunlight kills these bacteria. This is the case when they are exposed in culture in a thin layer to the direct action of the sun's rays, but in a large bulk of water like the river sunlight has but little effect. Still, slight as it is, it may be worth while to take advantage of it as suggested.

6. The best index of water-borne disease in Calcutta is cholera. This disease has steadily diminished with the extension of the town filtered water-supply. It is a matter of practical experience that sand filtration generally prevents cholera.

Such localized outbreaks as occur now can generally be traced to importation from places of pilgrimage, to the use of the water of Tolly's Nala or the canal, or of tanks or wells, and quickly disappear after the source is dealt with and cut off from use. The only time I have traced cholera to the use of filtered water was immediately after the great floods about four years ago.

7. This is difficult question to answer. It is an axiom amongst medical officers of health that sewage cannot by any known process be converted into drinking-water. So long as there is any possible source of pollution a supply of drinking-water cannot be regarded as safe. In the case of certain supplies that are known to be free from any source of contamination a few b. coli have been found, and an endeavour has been made by certain authors to fix a standard number of this bacillus which may be considered permissible. At first sight it appears illogical to say that a water containing three should be condemned and one containing one bacillus less should be passed, but the idea is that small numbers of b. coli in a good water-supply may be derived from fish or the droppings of birds and not from gross animal pollution. In this sense it is said that a water may be regarded as pure if 50 to 100 cubic centimetres are required to produce a reaction, and that a water is contaminated if a reaction is obtained with 1 cubic centimere, 5 cubic centimtere, or 2 cubic centimetres. I think that in this way a water would be regarded with grave suspicion if 2 cubic centimetres or less gave a reaction, that it would be regarded as not altogether above suspicion if 20 cubic centimetres gave a reaction, but that it would be acquitted by any jury of experts if 50 to 100 cubic centimetres were required to demonstrate the presence of a single colon bacillus.

8. I cannot avoid the conclusion that the discharge of septic tank effluents into a river used for the drinking water-supply of a city is a danger to the health of that city. There is no getting over the fact that intestinal bacteria capable of producing disease can survive the septic processes of purification and live for perhaps a fortnight or so in the water of a river. The logical conclusion is that in order to ensure safety the effluents should be sterilised or diverted into some other channel. It has been suggested that the effluents should be sterilised in the mill boilers. I am certain that the mill managers would never carry out this system, and I am of opinion that there is no practicable method of sterilising a large volume of chemically purified sewage like a septic tank effluents. As regards diversion it has been suggested that the effluents should be disposed of on land. At first sight this appears to be the natural solution of the difficulty, as the organic matter of the sewage has been resolved into its constituent mineral matters in the very best form for the food of plants, so that on economic as well as sanitary considerations it would appear that it should be utilised in this manner. But it is not always possible to obtain command of a sufficiency of land to meet the requirements of the case, and if land is available it may not be suitable for the purpose. In the present case I am doubtful whether land is available, and I know that the heavy soil of an alluvial delta is most unsuitable for sewage farming, as it does not allow of free percolation which is the first essential to success: added to this there is a heavy rainfall for some months of the year, so that the land receives as much fluid as it can dispose of. So I arrive at the conclusion on practical considerations that it is very doubtful whether diversion on to land would afford even a comparatively satisfactory solution of the difficulty. So, as there is no practical way of sterilising the effluents or of diverting them into some other channel, I am of opinion that the rational course to be adopted is to minimise the danger by improving the system of treatment in order to obtain the best possible effluent. If any one objects to this course that Government is thereby giving its official sanction to a measure endangering the lives of the people he can be challenged to prove that the discharge of septic tank effluents into the Hooghly has ever produced an epidemic of water-borne disease in Calcutta or Howrah. So far as my knowledge goes, and I have been more or less on the watch for a number of years, no single instance can be quoted, and though it might be difficult to distinguish between possible causes of water-borne disease in Calcutta or Howrah, the ships that carry our water and no other would afford conclusive evidence if it were a dangerous water to drink, but so far as my information goes, the officers in charge of ships have a high opinion of it and have never attributed ill effects to its use.

9. Holding as I do a brief for the Corporation of Calcutta in the matter of their water-supply, I would suggest to your Committee to consider the advisability of moving Government that a sanitary survey of the river be made to ascertain the sources of pollution other than septic tank effluents, which I believe to be a graver menace than the septic tank effluents, and that a report be made to show to what extent such sources of pollution are preventible and at what cost measures for dealing with them could be carried out. I know it will be said that this is a counsel of perfection. The same was said when the question of dealing with the pollution of the English rivers was first taken up, but the Rivers Pollution Commissioners after a few years of work have effected a very material improvement in the condition of the rivers of England, and I see no reason why similar measures over, say, 50 miles of the banks of the Hooghly and its tributary streams should not effect an equally material improvement in its condition. It may not be effected all at once, but I think that the time has come to institute measures with that object in view.

Demi-official from—C. A. WALSH, ESQ., A.M.I.C.E., Special Inspector of Factories,
To—L. P. SHIRREFF, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Dept.

YOUR letter of the 7th instant only reached me on the 12th owing to its being addressed to 15 Chowringhee instead of 14 Camac Street; hence delay in replying to the above.

1. I think there are sufficient septic tank latrines in use to enable Government to determine the necessary size of the septic tank for a given number of seats, together with the area of contact beds (or surface) and capacity of filters for the efficient working of this system.

2. The length and nature of the channel between the filter and the river assist considerably in purifying the effluent judging from observation. I noticed in the Anglo-Indian septic latrines the effluent a few yards from the river was like a small stream of spring water perfectly clear and odourless; this may, I presume, be attributed to the large filter area (contact beds) and to the effluent running along a course for some distance, the channel of which was overgrown with vegetation.

3. I should not advocate storing up the effluent and discharging it at night; the small quantity running throughout the day is insignificant in a large tidal river like the Hooghly, even if every mill on both sides of the river were to adopt this system. I quite approve of the suggestion to carry the effluent out some 80 feet below low water line, and this might be carried out at all mills, whether in the vicinity of bathing ghats or not.

The suggestion to run the effluent out at the commencement of the ebb-tide for all mills below Calcutta and Howrah intakes appears practicable, and at the commencement of the flood-tide for all above the intakes. I am, however, of opinion that the effluent can with little cost be brought to such a state of purity that it would be immaterial when it was discharged.

4. I have written to a firm of Engineers in London that have erected several large septic sewage installations for information and corroboration of a statement made by a Mr. Bennet, now engaged on the sewage works at Cawnpore; he (Mr. Bennet) informed me that the pumping engine boilers at one of these installations was entirely fed from the effluent; no other feed-water was supplied: if it can be satisfactorily proved that the small quantity of nitrates contained in the effluent will not cause pitting or deterioration of the boiler plates, there would be little or no objection on the part of mills using the effluent as feed-water; there is every possibility that it may act as a scale remover, and be generally beneficial to boilers! I have not as yet had a reply to my letter.

5. The mills are generally surrounded by mill quarters and bazars, and unless the effluent could be pumped a great distance, it would not, I think, be conducive to health to flood the land daily with the effluent. There appears to be sufficient rain and moisture in this part of Bengal throughout the year without recourse to artificial watering. In the Upper Provinces this suggestion would have been practicable and advantageous to the cultivators.

6. I have no hesitation in advocating the discharge of the effluent into the river.

7. The restriction referred to should be carried out, viz., the outlet taken well out into the river. If the effluent is not perfectly clear and free from solid matter, additional contact filter-beds could or should be added. If it is known that passing the effluent over vegetation before entering the river assists in purifying it, there would be little difficulty in all new latrines in providing a long and wide channel for this purpose.

8. From what I have read and from what I have seen of the septic system in Bengal, the mills or firms erecting them have not paid sufficient attention to the importance of filling the contact beds with large hard material, such as clinker or slag. Most of those I have seen appear to be filled with small ashes which soon become consolidated, thus partly destroying the efficient working of the aerobic microbe, which apparently require all the oxygen that can be procured

I think it is not generally realised that if 20 large mills adopted the septic tank latrines, and taking the daily number of men using them in each mill at 1,700 (the average at Fort Gloster), and allowing one gallon of water to each man, a tank 10 yards square and 6 feet deep would suffice to contain the whole quantity. When it is then remembered that the mills are distributed between Budge-Budge and Hooghly, a distance of some 30 miles, the so-called pollution from effluent would be nil.

To—The Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

IN reply to your demi-official No. 319 of the 20th ultimo. I beg to send herewith the corrected form of my evidence given before the Septic Tank Committee on the 30th July 1904.

PANDIT YOGISA CHANDRA SASTREE.

Professor, Sanskrit, Doveton College.

MR. SHIERES questions.

Sastree answers.

Question.—Your name is Yogisa Chandra Sastree?

Answer.—Yes, Sir, my name is Yogisa Chandra Sastree.

Question.—Are you still a Professor of Sanskrit in the Doveton College and an Examiner of the Calcutta University?

Answer.—Yes, Sir, I am a Professor of Sanskrit in the Doveton College and an Examiner of the Calcutta University.

Question.—Would you tell us what you know of the river Hooghly? Is it a sacred river to the Hindus?

Answer.—The main current of the river Ganges has been divided into two streams at Supghati, some miles north of Jangipur in the Murshidabad district, and one of them has flown southward to the Bay of Bengal having Murshidabad, Katwa, Santipur, Hooghly, Serampore, Barrackpore, Howrah, and Calcutta on its banks, and the other has flown eastward and has been united with the Brahmaputra, having Boalia, Sara, Pabna, Kustia, Goalundo, etc., on its banks. The former (the stream that flows towards Calcutta) is called the Hooghly by Europeans, but the Hindus call it Bhagirathi or Ganga. The latter (the stream flowing eastward) is known by the Hindus as Padma. The river Hooghly, i.e., Bhagirathi, is the most sacred river to the Hindus. We bathe in it to get rid of sins. We drink its water for the same purpose. We worship deities as well as offer oblations to our departed ancestors with its water. Our Sastras say that the Ganga is possessed of special sanctity in all the Yugas (ages).

Question.—Do you think that according to Hindu Sastras, any sewage, if thrown or flows into the Ganges, will defile its water in a religious sense?

Answer.—I do not think that according to Hindu Sastras the water of the Ganges will be defiled in a religious sense, if any sewage is thrown or flows into it. The Ganges water is pure in itself, and therefore it cannot be defiled or be impure by any means whatever, while it is in current. But when it is kept in any pot it may be defiled in certain cases, such as, if it is kept in a pot in which wine was kept before; if it is touched by a non-Hindu; and if it is mixed up with well water (Barahapuranam). There is also a process for purifying such Ganges water. I like to submit hereafter an elaborate note on this subject supporting my views.

Question.—What are the points of objection to the sewage flowing into the Ganges?

Answer.—It is very disgusting to bathe in such water or drink it. I was told that the effluents are injurious to health; but as I am no authority in sanitary science, so I am unable to say anything more than this at present.

Question.—Then it is clear that the Ganges water cannot be polluted in a religious sense?

Answer.—Yes, it is clear that the Ganges water cannot be polluted in a religious sense while it is in current.

Question.—Who are the Pandits from whom we can get opinion on this subject?

Answer.—You can examine Mahamahopadhyaya Chandra Kanta Tarka'ankara, Pandita Kaliprosanna Bhattacharya, and Satisachandra Vidyabhusana of the Presidency College, Calcutta.

Question.—Would the opinion of those gentlemen carry equal weight with yours?

Answer.—Yes, I think so.

Question.—Are there any authorities among the Nadiya Pandits?

Answer.—Yes, there are many. But if you want Nadiya Pandits, you may invite Mahamahopadhyaya Rajkrishna Tarkapanchanana, and Pandit Rajanikanta Vidyaratna

From—A. E. Silk, Esq., Sanitary Engineer, Bengal,

To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

I have the honour to report, for the information of your Committee, that I had occasion to be at Rishra yesterday, and so I took the opportunity, to inspect the Septic Tank Installation at the Hastings Mills. No notice had been given of my visit, and I was accompanied by the Subdivisional Officer. I found there was very little smell in the neighbourhood of the installation and the whole process appeared to be working well. I drove past the installation down the Trunk Road, and if there was any smell there, it would be very difficult to say whether it came from the septic tank or from the foul drain and the busti on the west of the road. As a matter of fact I found nothing worse than the ordinary busti smell.

To—L. P. Shirres, Esq., Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

In reply to your demi-official No. 28.T., from the Lieutenant-Governor's Camp, dated 7th September, asking for a note on my evidence before the Septic Tank Committee, I enclose a statement on the subject which I think contains all the essential points of my evidence, and a concise statement of my views on the subject is given at the end of paragraph 3. If there are any questions which were asked me to which I have not given any reply in this statement I shall be glad to answer them on hearing of their nature.

NOTE ON THE POLLUTING ACTION ON WATER OF SEPTIC TANK EFFLUENTS BASED ON BACTERIOLOGICAL EXAMINATIONS OF THE HOOGHLY RIVER AND OF THE PRESIDENCY JAIL EXPERIMENTAL SEPTIC TANK EFFLUENTS.

1. The destructive action of the septic tank on Pathogenic organisms.—The liabilty of septic tank effluents to cause dangerous pollution of any water into which they are discharged will depend on the variety and number of pathogenic organisms they contain. This will in turn depend on the variety of pathogenic bacteria of intestinal origin, together with the degree to which this number is increased or decreased by the favourableness or the reverse of the conditions obtaining in the septic tank to the growth of the organisms in question. Early in 1902 I submitted a report on this aspect of the question to the Government of Bengal based on an experimental investigation carried out in the Medical College Laboratory. (A copy of this was handed to the President of the Committee when I gave evidence.) The method adopted was to pass the effluent of the septic tank through a porcelain filter to free it from all bacteria, and then to add different pathogenic bacteria to this sterile effluent and watch the effect on them under anaerobic conditions such as obtain in the septic tank itself. The results briefly were that the typhoid bacillus died out in from three to four days under these conditions, while the organisms of cholera, dysentery, Malta fever and staphylo- and strepto-cocci died out within two days; the chemical products in the septic tank effluent being thus highly inimical to these organisms. Under the conditions of the septic tank, in addition to this chemical action, the struggle for existence would also be inimical to these pathogenic organisms, so that their exposure to its action would be even more detrimental than the above data indicate. All except possibly the typhoid bacillus might therefore be expected to be destroyed by the septic tank process, while the typhoid organisms would be adgreatly reduced in numbers, so that from this point of view the process is a decidedly advantageous one.

2. The potential danger of the septic tank effluent owing to contained pathogenic organisms.—Although the septic tank process is inimical to certain pathogenic organisms which may be present in night-soil, nevertheless the effluents cannot be regarded as harmless, for I could still easily find in it the bacillus enteritidis sporogenes and various streptococci, while the time the night-soil remains in the tank is not long enough to be certain to destroy all typhoid bacilli which may enter it; so that it must still be regarded as liquid sewage of a potentially dangerous nature. At my suggestion further experiments were carried out on the effluent of the Presidency Jail septic tank, after passing over a bed of aerobic bed, by then running it over a piece of land which was subdrained, and examining the fluid escaping from the ends of the subsoil pipes. By this means a further purification to the extent of a decrease of from 75 to 93 per cent. of the organisms present was obtained, but even after this treatment the b. enteritidis was still easily obtained from minute quantities of the fluid, while the coli group were found to be reduced in a lesser degree than were the total organisms. The final effluent after this filtration through soil had, therefore, still to be regarded as liquid sewage which should not be discharged into any small body of water which might possibly be used for drinking purposes.

3. Recent bacteriological examinations of the Hooghly river water to ascertain the degree of pollution caused by the septic tank effluents entering it.—Two estimations at different times of the number of organisms in the Hooghly water, both near the intake at Palta and also not far from the point where a septic tank effluent was being discharged into the river respectively, have been made by me. The first examination was carried out at the end of the hot weather, although heavy rain had fallen about a week previouly. At this time from 3,000 to 8,000 organisms per c. c. were found, but the water taken from the point nearest the outflow of the septic tank did not show larger numbers than the water from just above Palta. The second examination was made early in August, that is at the height of the rains, when samples were taken from Palta at low and high tide respectively and from a point forty yards below the outflow of a septic tank. The first two samples showed 1,600 and 16,000 total organisms and 5 and 55 coli bacilli respectively, while the last showed 27,800 and total count and 420 coli bacilli per c. c., while the b. enteritidis sporogenes was also found in small numbers in 100 c. c. of this last sample. It is evident from these figures that the river water at forty yards from the septic tank outflow showed clear evidence of pollution; but as such an effluent contains as a rule several million organisms per c. c., it is also clear that even at this short distance the effluent had already been enormously diluted, and at a distance of two or three hundred yards it is probable that no pollution could be detected by bacteriological examination as in the first examination. It is, therefore, evident that the impure nature of the Hooghly water as a whole is not dependent in any appreciable degree on the influence of the septic tank fluids discharged into it, but rather on the surface drainage of the surrounding country, which is inevitably fæcally polluted, specially owing to the habits of natives in resorting to the banks of khals and other low-lying water when relieving themselves. I am, therefore, of the opinion that if a limit of a mile or so above and below the intake of the municipal water-supplies is kept free from any discharge of septic tank effluents no harm is likely to ensue from them, as long as they are first purified as far as possible by passage through sand, or being run over soil where this is feasible, for such purified effluents will be much less likely to contain pathogenic micro-organisms than the crude surface fæcal contamination which inevitably enters the river in far larger amounts after every shower of rain, and which will be considerably decreased by the extensive use of septic tank latrines by large numbers of the mill employees owing to the destructive action of the process on these virulent organisms which I have shown to occur.

Demi-official from—A. E. SILK, Esq.,
To—The Secretary, Septic Tank Committee.

As requested in your demi-official No. 38.—T., dated the 7th instant, I send herewith a note for record in the proceedings of the Septic Tank Committee.

NOTE.

I. (1) Do you think it will be possible for the Committee to frame regulations, which might be prescribed by Government laying down for a certain number of users?

(I) The minimum size of the septic tank to be used.

I. (1) I do not consider that this would be possible, for in my opinion this is a matter which entirely depends on the strength of the sewage At Exeter where the sewage amounts to about 25 gallons per head per day it passes through the septic tank in less than 24 hours. In India, the sewage amounts to only about 3 gallons per head, and is therefore a very strong sewage, and I do not think the organic matter in it can be broken down so quickly in spite of the damp, moist heat, which is so encouraging to the bacteria of putrefaction and fermentation, because there is less oxygen available from the smaller quantity of water. It must be remembered that no attempt has been made in England to frame such regulations. There it is universally agreed that each sewage must be treated on its merits. In India, it is true we are not bothered with manufacturing wastes, but, as the Committee are aware, varying quantities of water are used. It would, I think, be premature to lay down regulations of this sort; there are not sufficient data to go on.

I. (2) The surface area of filters.

I. (2) The opinion that I have expressed in regard to the size of septic tanks applies largely also in this case The size of the filter must depend on the quantity of water used per head. What is required in an aerobic filter is that its area should be such that no part of it should ever be flooded

I. (3) The cubic capacity of the filter.

I. (3) Possibly there is some confusion here between filters and contact beds. The cubic capacity of a filter is of no importance compared with its surface area. In a contact bed, the capacity is of importance, as it has to contain a few hours' discharge of sewage. The capacity of a contact bed must depend to a large extent on the material that it is filled with. If a porous material, such as coke, is used, the bed will obviously contain more sewage than if an impervious material, such as stone metal, were used. I do not think therefore it is possible to frame regulations on this point.

I. (4) If the effluent is discharged into the river, the length and nature of the channels between the filters and river.

I. (4) I do not consider it would be possible to frame regulations in respect of this until we knew more about the rate of absorption of oxygen by filtrates per length of channel. Personally, I should say the sooner you can get the filtrate to the river the better, for it will be more quickly oxidized there than by just running down a narrow channel, or in some cases, a covered in pipe.

Speaking generally, it must always be borne in mind that if a septic tank or a filter is overworked, it will at once become a nuisance, and as far as my experience goes, the managers do not like nuisances of this sort in their mills.

II. What is your opinion of the plan which was suggested at the meeting that the effluent should be allowed to accumulate in a tank at the edge of the river, and discharged therefrom at night?

II. In my opinion this is merely a plan for putting mill-owners to unnecessary expense. A small trickle of filtrate during every second of the 24 hours will be much more efficiently and quickly purified by the river water than a comparatively large discharge in a few hours, whether at night or not. It must be remembered that it is not sewage that is being discharged, but merely a filtrate from which all putrescible matter has been removed. At many sea-coast towns in England crude sewage is discharged directly in the sea; but I am not aware that this has interfered with the enjoyment of bathing during the summer. The whole of the filtrates from the septic tank installation at Exeter go into the narrow little Exe but that does not, to my certain knowledge, interfere with bathing in the summer. It is a well-known fact that the banks of the Hooghly and of the khals running into it are daily used for purposes of defecation and that there is a large boat population who defecate into the river, and yet the water, after filtration, is supplied to Calcutta and Howrah.

III. What is your opinion of the proposal to use the effluent either directly, or after being discharged into tanks, as feed-water for boilers?

III. Theoretically this is a complete solution of the problem, for the filtrate would be rendered absolutely sterile and quite potable, but I am afraid, from what I can hear from mill managers, that it is not practicable and will lead to difficulties with the fireman. I am perfectly certain that if Government considered it necessary to order that the filtrates should be disposed of in this manner, the order would be constantly evaded.

IV. Do you think all or any of the mills should be compelled to turn the effluent on to the land?

IV. Most certainly not. The soil is unsuitable, and sewage farming requires constant attention, and there is no land within reasonable distance of any of the mills, except Gouripur, that could be used for the purpose, and if so used, that the mill managers could be expected to supervise. Then, what will become of the filtrate during the rains? It will be a case of pouring water on the land that has already got quite as much as, if not more than, it wants. Besides, what land does for the sewage and other organic matter has already been done in well-aerated filter beds.

V. Do you think the Committee should advise that Government should allow the discharge of the effluent into the river?

V. In my opinion no possible harm will be done to any body by the discharge of filtrates from the septic tank installations on the mills into the river Hooghly, and I shall not be prepared to alter this opinion until a series of experiments and examinations, similar to those the London County Council have made on the Thames during the past seven years, have been carried out. If each of the existing mills disposed of its sewage by the septic tank system the total discharge of non-putrescible filtrates entering the Hooghly would be one cubic feet per second, but it would not, of course, all be discharged at one point. There are 22 mills north of Calcutta, so that at each mill the discharge would be $\frac{1}{22}$ cubic feet per second or 17 gallons per minute. The discharge of one average ebb tide of the river Thames near the outfalls of the London sewers has been observed to be 16,156,000,000 gallons and as the ebb tide runs for 7 hours, the quantity is equal to 38,466,666 gallons per minute. I submit that it is not unfair to assume that the discharge of a tide on the Hooghly is the same as that in the Thames. So that during the ebb tide, i.e., for 14 hours out of 24,374 gallons of filtrates would be mixed with 38,466,666 gallons of river water during every minute of that period, roughly, a dilution of 1 in 100,000.

I am fully aware that the biological character of the filtrates should be considered; but unless and until a careful and systematic examination of the water in the river Hooghly can be arranged for, I must be guided by the conclusions arrived at in other places by those who are more qualified to form an opinion than I am. In this connection I would therefore quote the following opinion, expressed by Dr. Ideal in his evidence before the Royal Commission on sewage disposal:

"Although with any new scheme it is difficult to obtain direct evidence as to its ultimate effect upon a river water which is subsequently to be used as a drinking supply, one must recollect that under existing circumstances the removal of all kinds of bacteria from the river water is attempted by those who desire to use such water for drinking purposes, so that, even assuming that bacterial systems tend to increase the bacteria in the river, they do not make any new departure necessitating a reconsideration of our methods of water purification. Even if an anaerobic treatment alone resulted in an effluent which possessed toxic properties disastrous to a small river, it must be recollected that no process is at present suggested which does not involve a full and efficient aerating filtration as a final method of purification, and it is the pathogenicity of such filtrates upon which information is wanted. Satisfactory evidence on most of the systems is now available, from which, I think, we are justified in concluding that even if towns on a river like the Thames adopted bacterial schemes, the pathogenicity of the London water-supply would not be affected.

"At Exeter, Dr. Cartwright Wood, examined the tank effluent, the filtrates, and the river water before and after admixture. Both inoculated with these fluids and incubated for forty eight hours had no effect upon rabbits or guinea-pigs when 2 c.c. was injected subcutaneously. When inoculated for eleven days, the tank effluent and the water at Belle Isle contaminated with the untreated town sewage were found to be mortific, but the filtrate and the water at Salmon Pool Weir, some little distance below the town, contained so little mortific material of any kind that even with this severe test both animals remained alive and perfectly well."

I submit that Dr. Rideal's opinion is entitled to serious consideration and should carry great weight because he is a perfectly independent observer, and has no sewage disposal system of his own to push. Moreover all his publications show that he is an extremely practical man and does not take his stand on a counsel of perfection or nothing at all.

VI. If so, would advise any, and if so, what instructions?

VI. I do not consider any restrictions as regards discharge of filtrates into the Hooghly necessary. I would however suggest that no outlets below the level of the effluent pipe or valves should be permitted in the septic tanks. When it becomes necessary to empty a septic tank entirely, the septic sewage should be pumped out of the tank into carts and then trenched. Further that no urine must be passed on to the filters directly. Urine greatly assists in the decomposition of the solid fæces. If the Committee however consider that some restrictions are necessary, I would suggest for their consideration that all filtrates that are discharged into the Hooghly within one mile of the intakes of the Calcutta, Howrah or other water-works, must be subjected to a process of slow filtration through sand, similar to that which obtains in water works

VII. Please give your opinion on any other points which you think of much importance.

VII.—There is one point which in my opinion deserves the serious consideration of the Committee in framing their recommendations, and that is the legal aspect of the case. In this connection I beg to append a copy of the Advocate-General's opinion on the subject of the pollution of the Hooghly by the Bally Paper Mills.

CALCUTTA,

No. 1308.B., dated Calcutta, the 22nd April 1893.

From—W. H. GREGG, Esq., Secretary to the Sanitary Board, Bengal,
To—The Legal Remembrancer to the Government of Bengal.

I AM directed by the Sanitary Board to forward in original a letter from Messrs. Orr, Robertson, Burton to the address of the Chairman of the Howrah Municipality for favour of, an expression of an opinion as to how far and under what law the polluting of the river Hooghly by the discharge from the Bally Paper Mills can be stopped; for, since it has been decided by Government that the intake for the water works, which are being carried out under the supervision of the Sanitary Board, should be situated at Bally, this discharge from the mills, which, in the opinion of the Sanitary Board, is a nuisance, should certainly be prevented from going into the river, if possible, or at any rate lessened to a great extent.

The return of the original papers is requested.

No. 1854-93, dated Calcutta, the 13th April 1893.

From—MESSRS. ORR, ROBERTSON, AND BURTON, Solicitors, Calcutta,
To—The Chairman of the Howrah Municipality.

WE have been instructed by our clients Messrs. George Henderson and Company Agents of the Bally Paper Mills Company, Limited, to address you with reference to the water-works which, they are informed, you intend to erect on the banks of the Hooghly, about 1½ miles south of the khal on the banks of which the Company's mills are erected.

2. Our clients wish to take this, the earliest, opportunity of pointing out to you that the discharge water from their mills runs into the khal, and that the khal discharges itself into the river when the tide begins to ebb or recede, and that therefore in fixing upon a site for the proposed water-works so near to our client's mills, which have been established and working on their present site for so many years (about twenty) you are running a possible risk of pollution for which our clients will decline to be in any way responsible, as you are so doing with your eyes open, and after full and sufficient notice.

3. Our clients would respectfully submit to you the advisability of selecting some site for the erection of the proposed water-works further up the river and to the north of our client's mills, where no such risk as mentioned in the last paragraph could arise.

No. 191, dated Calcutta, the 11th May 1893.

From—T. T. ALLEN, Esq., Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs,
To—The Secretary, Sanitary, Board, Bengal.

In reply to your No. 1308.B., dated the 22nd ultimo, I have the honour to say that I considered it proper to ask the Advocate-General for his opinion on the question involved, and I now enclose a copy of that opinion. Two important points have to be made out: (1)That the discharge of refuse from the Bally Paper Mills into the khal constitutes a public nuisance, (2) that the Howrah Municipality have a right to the Hooghly water pure and fit for drinking.

2. The fact that a river is a public navigable river does not necessarily carry with it that it shall be also potable. If, as a fact, the river is fit for drinking, and generally used for drinking by the public, any person defiling the water, so as to render it less fit for that purpose, commits a nuisance. But this is already done in a thousand ways every day by all the ships lying in the river, by all the corpses thrown into it and by the numbers who resort to the banks for bathing.

3. The Bally Paper Mills throw their refuse into the khal; if this refuse were thrown elsewhere, I apprehend, the khal would remain what such khals are, little better than a sewer for the neighbourhood. I think it very doubtful therefore if the fact of nuisance can be established. The District Board or Municipality have no more right to pure water below the khal than any one of the public, and the simplest course is to draw their supply from above where the khal enters, if a marked difference exists.

4. The original papers are herewith returned.

OPINION.

THERE is no doubt that to pollute the waters of a public navigable river in such a manner as to endanger the health or materially to affect the comfort of the public exercising their rights in regard to them is under the Common Law indictable nuisance (see Rex versus Medly 6C. and P. 292 and Broom's Common Law, 4th edition pages 914-916), and where the pollution is such in character and extent as thus to constitute a public nuisance, proceedings will, though there be no evidence of any damnum, lie on the broad ground that the nuisance is an infringement of the law which tends to injure the public by interfering with the exercise of their common rights (see Wood versus Wood 18C.J. Excheq. 305; 3Ex.748 Attorney General versus Cockermouth 18 L.R. Equity 172; 44L.J. Chancery 8 and Attorney-General versus Shrewsbury and Kingland Bridge L.R. 21 Ch. Div. 752).

Assuming therefore that the khal into which the Bally Paper Mills discharge the water is a public one, and the effect of such discharge into the khal and subsequently into the river, is to pollute the waters of both in such a manner as to constitute a public nuisance, I am of opinion that the owners of the Bally Paper Mills can be prosecuted under sections 268 and 283 of the Indian Penal Code. The fact that the Bally Paper Mills have for over 20 years been discharging their water into this khal will not be a ground of defence or extenuation, as in the case of public nuisance prescription will not avail (see Attorney-General versus Corporation of Barnsly W.N. 1874 and Rex versus Cross, 3 Camp, 224).

I must add that the nuisance complained of here is not of that nature or character as will justify proceedings being taken under chapters X and XI of the Criminal Procedure Code.

G. C. PAUL,
Advocate-General.

The 9th May 1893.

MY opinion has proceeded upon the assumption that the act complained of is a public nuisance, and the water-works have the right to draw the water for their purposes. I thought they were authorized by an Act to do so. I have been since informed that such is not the case. That being so, the act complained of would not be a public nuisance but merely a damnum sine injuria to private rights which have no legal foundation and are self-assumed.

YOUR demi-official No. 325, dated the 22nd August 1904.

The Managers of the Fort Gloster, Howrah Jute Mills, Ganges Jute Mills, and Howrah Iron Works have been consulted.

The Manager of the Fort Gloster Mills writes that the land all round the Mills is submerged for at least three months in the year during the rains, and the disposal of the effluent over the land is therefore impracticable. As regards the Howrah Jute Mills, the nearest land available for the purpose would not only be costly but it is situated too far away from the Mills. The Howrah Jute Mills will start new works shortly and the Manager says that unless the Mill is allowed to run the effluent into a khal which passes through the Mills compound to the river, there will be no other alternative but to erect latrines on the ordinary principle. The Ganges Jute Mill and the Howrah Iron Works have no land available within a reasonable distance for the disposal of the effluent.

In my opinion the Mills should certainly be allowed to run the effluent into the river provided they are not situated near to the intake or sources of supply of drinking water. If Government persists in prohibiting the passage of the effluent into the river, the Mills will be compelled to fall back on the out-of-date ordinary latrine system

IN reply to your demi-official No. 314 of the 27th ultimo, I beg to send herewith the note for the consideration of the Septic Tank Committee.

A NOTE ON THE SEPTIC TANK INSTALLATIONS IN BENGAL.

INTRODUCTION.

ON the 30th of July 1904, I gave evidence before the Committee, which has been appointed to enquire into the working of the septic tank installations in Bengal In course of my giving evidence I promised to send them an elaborate note, expressing my full views on the subject that whether the Ganges water, while in current, can or cannot be defiled by any means whatever. In the following pages I have expressed my views on the said subject, in accordance with the injunctions of the Hindu Sastras and the Hindu practice. I have also increased my note by adding to it the sections on the criticisms of the evidences given by other pundits, which the Committee asked me also to do.

I visited the septic tanks in the Gloster, Gouripore and Kankinara Mills. The first two, as it seems to me, are working well. The Septic tank in the Kankinara Mill is at present working badly; but a new one is under preparation, and I hope it will be working well.

I do not find any necessity to describe the construction of the septic tanks I visited and the characters of the effluents flowing from them into the Ganges. But so far I should say that the colour of the water entering into the Ganges is never black. It is just the same as that of the water of a river during the rainy season. I did not perceive any bad smell of the water entering into the Ganges; but the water entering into the filters smelt very badly.

In all over my note I have used the word "dirty water" for "anirmala jala" or "apariskrita jala" and the word "defiled, polluted or unholy water" for "apabitra jala." "anirmala" or "apariskrita" is used in a physical sense, but "apabitra" is used in a religious sense.

SECTION I.

The authorities of Hindu Religious Practice.

The following are the authorities of Hindu religious practice:—

(a) The Vedas (Rik, Yojus, Saman and Atharva).
(b) The Brahmanas (Aitareya, Taittiriya, Tandya and Satapatha, etc.).
(c) The Kalpas (Asvalayana Sutras, Katyayana Sutras, and Latyayana Sutras, etc.).
(d) The Smritis (twenty Samhitas beginning with Manu Samhita and the books originated from them, such as Raghunandana's Tatvas, etc.).
(e) The Puranas (Bhagabatam, Varaha, Vamana, Brahmanda, Brahma, Bhabishya, Brahmavaibarta, Narada, Skanda and the Ramayana and Mahabharata, etc.).
(f) The Tantras (Mahanirvana, Kularnava, Brahmayamala, Rudrayamala, Yoginee, etc.).
(g) The practices of persons having no malice and secular attachments.

All the above named books together with (g) are the authorities, according to which merits and demerits are ascertained by the Hindus. Whatever may be their injunctions must be obeyed by a Hindu, after acquiring their true imports by right reasoning. Manu, the greatest law-giver, says:—

"A wise man, having considered all these Sastras with the intellectual vision, should ascertain his moral practice in accordance with the injunctions of the Vedas."—Manu II. 8.

SECTION II.

The Ganges.

The river that rises from the Himalaya Mountains and having Haridwar, Kanakhal, Benares, Patna, Murshidabad, Nadia, Hooghly, Barrackpore, Howrah and Calcutta on its banks, falls into the Bay of Bengal, is known by the Hindus as the Ganges—the most sacred river to them. The main current of this river has been divided into two streams at Supghati (Sooti ?), a few miles north of Jangipur in the Murshidabad district. The stream that flows through Murshidabad, Nadia, Hooghly, Howrah and Calcutta is named by the Europeans as Hooghly; but this is the Ganges according to the Hindus. The other stream (main current) is called the Padma flowing towards Rajshahi.

As to the origin of the Ganges, it is stated in the Bhagabatam, that while Vamana, an incarnation of Vishnu, was taking the three worlds as a gift from the King Bali, he placed his left foot on Brahmanda, causing a hole in it, through which a stream of water came out.

This stream of water thus sanctified by the holy touch of his foot fell on the Dhrubaloka and then once on the Sumeru, the abode of Brahma, and lastly on this earth. This is the Ganges —the most sacred river to the Hindus. It is a very ancient river also, as we find its name in the Rigveda—the most ancient book of the Aryas. The sage Prachatas says that the Ganges has been produced from the foot of Vishnu, and it is famous by the name Dharmadrabee, i.e., the current of merits. The water of the Ganges and its deity are inseparately connected with each other, i.e., the water itself is the deity. In support of this we may cite the following authorities:—

(a) "পরং ব্রহ্মস্বরূপায়া গঙ্গায়াঃ, etc." (Of the Ganges which is similar to the Supreme Being, etc.).—Skanda and Maitryapurana.

(b) "তবেহগঙ্গাং সংস্পৃশ্য ব্রহ্মরূপাং সুপুন্যদাং, etc." (By touching the Ganges—the form of the Supreme Being, etc.).—Naradiyapuranam.

(c) "ইমং মে গঙ্গে যমুনে শুতুদ্রী. etc." (Oh, Ganges, Oh, Jomuna, Oh, Sutudri, accept my oblations, etc.).—Rigveda.

This is the oldest authority that can be quoted to show that a Rishi conceiving the river Ganges as a diety prayed to accept his ablutions.

Hindus believe the water of the Ganges to be sacred in itself. Their Sastras are the roots of their belief. As to its natural sanctity, we can quote the following:—

(a) "গঙ্গাং পুণ্যজলাং প্রাপ্য, etc." (Having reached the sacred-watered Ganges, etc.).—Brahmandapuranam.

(b) "প্রণমেৎ প্রাতরুত্থায় গঙ্গাং পুণ্যজলাং শুভাং, etc." (In morning one should salute the Ganges of sacred water, etc.).—Bhabishyapuranam.

(c) "সমর্থা যেন পশ্যন্তি গঙ্গাং পুণ্যজলাং শিবাং, etc." (Those who having ability do not see the sacred-watered Ganges, etc.).—Mahabharata—Danadharma.

(d) "কৃতকৃত্যো ভবেন্মর্ত্যো গঙ্গাং পুণ্যবকেবলাং, etc." [A mortal gets success (by touching) the sacred-watered Ganges, etc.]—Brahmapuranam.

Section III.

The Greatness and Powers of the Ganges.

That the Ganges is an all-powerful and all-purifying deity, as stated in the Hindu Sastras, will be evident by the following:—

(b) Effect of uttering the name of the Ganges.—"Even remaining at a distance of 100 yojanas (800 miles), if the name of Ganga is uttered, then the sins of previous births are destroyed."—Vishnupuranam.

(c) Effect of going to the Ganges.—"Those who have gone to Ganga have gone to heaven."—Mahabharatam.

(d) Effect of seeing the Ganges.—"A mortal gets rid of all his sins by seeing the Ganges."—Bhabishyapuranam.

(e) Effect of touching the Ganges water.—"A man is forsaken by all sins by touching the Ganges water."—Barahapuranam.

(f) Effect of bathing in the Ganges.—"By bathing in the Ganges water the sins of every description are destroyed instantly."—Vishnupuranam.

(g) Effect of drinking the Ganges water.—"On attains the effect of the aswamedha sacrifice when he drinks even a handful of Ganges water"—Bhabishyapuranam.

(h) Effect of dying in the Ganges.—"It is doubtless that a man attains salvation by dying in the Ganges with knowledge, and attains the abode of Brahma when dies without knowledge."—Kurmapuranam.

(i) Effect of throwing a man's bone into the Ganges water.—"The same effect is acquired by throwing one's bone into the Ganges within ten days of his death as he would have acquired by dying in it."—Smriti.

(j) Effect of hearing the glories of the Ganges.—"Those who hear the glories of the Ganges, also get rid of innumerable sins."—Babishyapuranam.

Section IV.

The forbidden acts in the Ganges water.

In Brahmandapuranam it has been stated that one must abandon the undermentioned thirteen acts after reaching the Ganges water:—

(1) Cleansing (after the evacuation of excrement).
(2) Washing of the face (after a meal).
(3) Sprinkling (of other water).

N.B.—The word "soucham" in the text (1) and the word "strakam" in (3) may also be translated by "evacuation of excrement" and "making water," respectively.

(4) Throwing in flowers, etc. (previously used for worshipping any other deity).
(5) Rubbing off the dirts (of body).
(6) Shampooing.
(7) Sports in water of Ganges).
(8) Receiving a donation.
(9) Showing the want of faith towards Ganga.
(10) Showing attachment to any other pilgrimage.
(11) Eulogizing of any other pilgrimage.
(12) Changing the clothes and washing of them.
(13) Swimming.

It should be here borne in mind that the above prohibitions of the Brahmandapuranam do not mean to say that the water of the Ganges shall be defiled by those acts. The wise sages have enjoined some of them simply to keep the Ganges water free from dirts and some for inducing firm devotion to the Ganges; but not at all to protect it from defilement. According to Hindu notion, dirty water and defiled water are two widely different things, inasmuch as the latter can never be used for the purpose of worshipping the deities or offering oblations to ancestors. Hindus of true type are unable to accept their Rishis to be such irrational beings as can think that the Ganges water can be defiled by showing attachment to and eulogizing of other pilgrimage as referred to above. For these reasons we must understand from those prohibitions that if anybody disobey them, he shall be a sinner of committing forbidden acts, and shall be liable to expiation; but his acts can never pollute, defile or make impure or unholy the water of the Ganges.

Section V.

Whether the water of the Ganges while in current, can or cannot be defiled by any means whatever.

In Section II of this note it has been shown that the Ganges water itself is a deity, and that it possesses special sanctity, and in Section III its greatness has been established by quoting passages from the Puranas. Now, it is to be considered here that whether the Ganges water can or cannot be defiled by any means whatever. By "defiled" is meant here "made unholy," i.e., unfit for performing the religious rites. We can come to a right conclusion of this by judging the case in two ways, viz, (1) considering the Ganges water as a common river water; (2) considering the Ganges water as a special sacred river water, the specialty of the Ganges being advocated in our Sastras.

Let us first decide if the Ganges water, when considered as a common river water, can be polluted or not, and even if polluted can remain as such, so as to become unfit for religious purposes. We should have used here the phrase "water in general," i.e., water remaining in any place wherever. But as we have no concern with any other water in the present case besides the water of a river, so the phrase "water in general" has been avoided.

In the Hindu Sastras (mentioned in Section I) nowhere it has been expressly stated that a river water can be polluted, nor it has been stated that a river water cannot be polluted by sewage (ordure, urine, etc.) if thrown into it. What we find in them is only that sewage should not be thrown into a river water (Manu IV, 47). We also find in them the rules by which a river water can be purified, when we read in Manu that "a river is purified by its current" and in Vishnu that "a river is purified by its current carrying away all slime and mud" (Manu V, 108, and Vishnu XXII, 91). From the above statements we should infer that the prohibition for throwing sewage into a common river water is meant for keeping it free from defilement or unholiness, otherwise the Rishis would not have set down a rule for its purification. Hence we are obliged to accept that a common river water can be defiled if any sewage is thrown into or if any sewage effluent flows into it. But can it remain as such which will make it unfit for performing our religious rites, and by which the Hindu community will be affected religiously? The only rational reply to the above questions can be that a common river water cannot be said to have been polluted or to have remained as such virtually, inasmuch as it is purified by its current at the very moment when any sewage or sewage effluent comes in contact with it. (Manu and Vishnu as quoted before)

We therefore come to the conclusion that even if the Ganges water is considered as a common river water still it cannot be virtually defiled and remain as such.

Now let us consider the second point, whether the Ganges water, when it is accepted as a special sacred river water, can be defiled or not by the connection of any sewage, and even if it can be defiled whether it can remain as such in which condition it will be unfit for religious purposes.

Ancient Rishis, the makers of the Hindu Sastras, have attached special sanctity and singular greatness to the Ganges water. There is no such sin as cannot be got rid of and no such merit as cannot be acquired by bathing in it. They have described its origin from the foot of Vishnu, the protector of the universe; they have related its remaining in the clotted hair of Siva, the destroyer of the world. If such water may be subject to defilement, then all the Sastras amount to merely farcical narrations.

In the Hindu Sastras it has nowhere been mentioned that the Ganges waters, while in current, can be defiled by any means whatever, nor it has been stated that it cannot be defiled. We also do not find in them any rules for its purification when it may be defiled as in the case of other river water. We simply find in the Brahmandapuranam that thirteen acts have been made prohibitive in respect of the Ganges water, in which throwing of ordure, urine, etc., is included. Now, it may be asked, why were those prohibitions made? Were not they made for keeping the Ganges water free from defilement? The reasonable answer to those questions, according to the Hindu Sastras, will be that the prohibitions were made for keeping the Ganges water free from any dirts, and not for protecting it from defilement. If they were made to protect the Ganges water from defilement, then we would have found in the Hindu Sastras the prescription for the purification of it again. We do find it nowhere in the Hindu Sastras. If it is said that there is no necessity of making any special rule to serve the purpose, as the injunction, "a river is purified by its current," which has been made for common rivers, will be enough to purify the river Ganges also, then it may be enquired again, why should there be any necessity of making special prohibitions for protecting the Ganges from defilement, inasmuch as the prohibitions made in case of a common river water are quite sufficient for the Ganges water too. And thereby the Ganges water gets equal footing with common river water, which goes against the Hindu Sastras. Moreover, in case of its being equal to common river water, there can be no objection raised from the religious ground, because it has been shown before that a common river water cannot virtually be polluted inasmuch as it is purified by its current.

It can be said as well that all prohibitions were not made for protecting something from its being defiled, as, for instance, we may mention that Manu has prohibited a junior (in age, learning, etc.) from advising a senior (in age, learning, etc.) (Manu IV, 57). Does the above prohibition mean that a senior shall be polluted if advised by a junior? Certainly not. The prohibition simply teaches modesty. So the prohibitions made in the Brahmandapuranam in respect of throwing ordure, phlegm, etc., into the Ganges, were meant for protecting the Ganges water from being dirty; but most of them for inducing firm faith and religious veneration to the Ganges, because the Rishis, who declared the Ganges naturally pure, never dreamt that anybody would think the Ganges water could be polluted by any means. If they did so, they would have prescribed any particular rule for its purification. Moreover, they were fully aware that it would be sheer foolishness on their part to make or admit a thing so sacred, which is subject to defilement. They also knew that it is inevitable for the Ganges water to come in contact with ordure, urine, etc., and even knowing this they did not prescribe any rule for its purification. Therefore we must hold that according to them the Ganges cannot be defiled, i.e., they, in fact, did not consider the Ganges subject to pollution.

Now, let us admit, for the sake of argument, that according to the prohibitions, mentioned previously, the Ganges can be polluted. But we can in no way admit that it can remain in the state of pollution, inasmuch as it is purified at the very moment when any filth comes in contact with it according to the law that "a river is purified by its current." When it cannot remain in a defiled state, then it is clear that it cannot remain unfit for the performance of religious duties. So no objection can be reasonably raised from religious grounds.

Moreover, the Hindus find every day and know that more than thousands of men (crews of boats and others) are evacuating excrement and discharging urine in the Ganges water, and while bathing they notice lumps of ordure floating on its surface; but still they perform their religious rites with it without any hesitation. Had it been the belief of the Hindus that the Ganges water could be polluted in a religious sense, they would have ceased to perform their religious duties with it; but they have not done so as yet. When they meet with any ordure floating on the Ganges, they drive it away by causing waves in the water and perform necessary works This proves that neither in practice nor in belief do the Hindus admit that the Ganges can be polluted. This practice cannot be said to have been invented in modern times, but they have been in vogue from time immemorial.

Under these circumstances, I am of opinion that the Ganges water, while in current, cannot be defiled by any means whatever, and no objection can be raised from the religious point of view if any sewage is thrown or any sewage effluent flows into it.

Section VI.

Sanitary Points.

Although I am not well versed in the sanitary science still from common sense and my consultation with the sanitary experts I am enabled to state the following for the consideration of the Septic Tank Committee:—

(1) The Ganges is consisted of an enormous volume of water. Besides, ebb and flow tides are regularly occurring in it twice in 24 hours. How can it still become unhealthy by any filth?

(2) The foul water effluent from the filters oxygenates when it mixes with the Ganges water and not before its mixing up with the Ganges water.

(3) The effluent becomes purified by air and light before it comes in contact with the Ganges water. The light and air are two great purifiers according to the Hindu medical science.

(4) A few years ago a Civil Surgeon as well as a private chemist proved by experiment that the Ganges water is possessed of such natural purifying elements as can destroy any unhealthy and injurious bacilli the moment they come in contact with it..

SECTION VII.

A criticism of the evidences of Mahamahopadhyaya Rajakrishna Tarkapanchanana and Pundit Rajanikanta Vidyaratna of Nadiya.

(a) General remarks.—Mahamahopadhyaya Rajakrishna Tarkapanchanana has made his evidence a suicidal one by establishing one view in one place and destroying the same in another. As, for instance, he says that "the Ganges water being pure in itself it cannot be polluted in a religious sense" (his reply to 25), and a few words after, he, knowing it full well that a river is purified by its current, but suppressing it, says that "if sewage effluent is discharged into the river (Ganges) we cannot do any religious duties with that water." If the Ganges water cannot be polluted in a religious sense, then why should he be unable to do religious duties with that water, if any sewage is thrown into it? This sort of self-contradiction is not wanting in other places of his evidence. I will show them in proper place hereafter.

(b) The purport of his evidence.—Although the Ganges water cannot be polluted in a religious sense still one should not throw any sewage into it, for the sewage being an emitic object can cause hatred towards the sacred water (Ganges).

(c) Mahamahopadhyaya Rajakrishna Tarkapanchanana is mainly of same mind with me. He differs in the following point, viz., when he says—"suppose a quantity of crude sewage is floating on the surface of the water, it is true that we can nevertheless take water from some distant place from that filth, and can use it, as the filth does not impure the whole river, but only that much of it in which the raw sewage is floating; but when the sewage sludge is liquified and mixed with water, we consider the Ganges water wholly impure." This is a good instance of his self-contradiction. The cause of the water being impure is the connection of sludge. When the sewage floats on the surface of the water it makes the water impure for the same reason as when it mixes up with it. Mahamahopadhyaya Tarkapanchanana still considers it as impure in part at one time, but considers it wholly impure for the same reason at another time. Mahamahopadhyaya Tarkapanchanana should have known that when a crude sewage floats on the water, its smallest particles become united with the waters surrounding it, and serves the same purpose as when it mixes up with them. It is strange enough that a learned man like him did not know this fact and made his views suicidal.

Benares is well known to Mahamahopadhyaya Tarkapanchanana. Perhaps more than once he had been there. He surely performed his religious rites some time sitting on the Dasaswamedha Ghata or any other Ghata near it. He knows also that the liquified sewage was mixing up with a part of the Ganges water a little higher up the river from him. Did he ever cease to perfrom his religious rites for that reason? I am sure he never even dreamt of ceasing to perform his religious duties under such circumstances. An orthodox Hindu, living on the bank of the Ganges with a bit of common sense in him, sees with his own eyes the water of his sacred river mixed up with all sorts of impure things—both solid and liquid. This is his daily experience. Does he on that account consider the water impure? We emphatically say—never.

(d) The evidence of Pundit Rajanikanta Vidyaratna does require no separate criticism. He says that he cannot fully accept my opinion, which means that he partly accepts it. I am unable to understand in what point he agrees with me. He not only differs from me, but also from Mahamahopadhyaya Rajakrishna Tarkapanchanana, because he (Rajanikanta) says that the Ganges can be polluted in a religious sense, which is not the opinion of Mahamahopadhyaya Rajakrishna Tarkapanchanana, because he expressly said—"Ganges being pure in itself, it cannot be polluted in a religious sense."

SECTION VIII.

Remarks on the evidences of Pundits Kali Prasanna Bhattacharya and Satisa Chandra Vidyabhushana of the Presidency College.

1. Pundit Kali Prasanna Bhattacharya says—"Ganges is looked upon by the Hindus from two aspects: (1) the deity, and (2) the water. The deity cannot be polluted, but the water can be." He does not say anything besides this. It is clear that he dealt with the question from a subjective as well as from an objective point of view. When he says that "the Ganges cannot be polluted," he means to say that the water of the Ganges cannot be polluted in a religious sense, it being sacred in itself (from subjective point), and when he says that "the water can be," he means to say that the water of the Ganges can be polluted in an objective or physical sense, i.e., it can become dirty I have shown before that the deity Ganges and the Ganges water are both the same thing, inasmuch as we do not use the deity for purifying ourselves but the water. Hence, from his words—"the Ganges cannot be polluted" we should know that, according to him, the Ganges water cannot be defiled. His note has been written very cleverly.

2. Pundit Satisa Chandra Vidyabhushana's memorandum can be considered as certifying his versatile erudition; but it deals with the point very little, which the Committee expected to know. The dates of the Vedas and anything of such character were not required. His other views have been discussed in my note and therefore they require no criticism here; but I should say that the passage which he quotes for the disposal of effluents into land, can also be quoted in favour of the disposal of effluents into water.

In conclusion, I beg humbly to suggest the following for the consideration of the Septic Tank Committee:—

That an effluent of hot water coming from the mill may be mixed up with the effluent coming out of the filters. Thus being a combined effluent, it may enter into a tank and remain there during the day time. And thus being purified by air and light this water may be discharged into the Ganges between 7 P M. and 4 A.M. when the Hindus generally do not perform their religious rites. The necessity of mixing up with the hot water is to destroy any injurious or unhealthy bacilli. The diagram below will clear up the idea:—

Demi-official from—C. A. WALSH, Esq., Special Inspector of Factories,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I HAVE just received the enclosed letter regarding some enquiries I made on the subject of using the effluent in boilers which may be of interest to you.

2. I have lately inspected the Khardah Jute Mill, and the septic latrines there far surpass anything I have yet seen as regards the purity of the effluent, due apparently to the design and large area of contact filter-beds; it is quite clear to me that if these latrines are properly designed with ample filtering-beds, no objection would be raised regarding the discharge into the rivers. I believe this latrine cost Rs. 24,000, but it is the largest in Bengal and well worth a visit.

Dated Westminster, S. W., the 16th September 1904.

From—MESSRS SHONE AND AULT,
To—The Vice-President and Secretary for the Commissioners for the Inspection of Boilers, Bengal.

WE now have the pleasure to forward to you a letter we received in answer to your enquiry re the effect on boilers of using sewage-effluent waters within them for generating steam. The letter of Mr. Hughes speaks for itself, and we are glad to be able to send it on for your information.

Dated Hampton, Mdx., the 13th September 1904.

From—T. HUGHES, Esq.,
To—ISAAC SHONE, Esq., Civil Engineer, Westminster.

IN reply to yours of yesterday's date, I beg to inform you that we have had our steam-boilers at work since October 1898, and the water used in the boilers is the effluent water obtained from the sewage after treatment in bacteria beds. We have never used any other water, and we have no other supply of water on the works.

We have never had any trouble with the boilers as a result of using the water. I have been most careful in trying to find corrosion in the boilers, and I have never found a trace of it.

There is a slight incrustation, and that readily leaves the plates when dry; it really falls off except on the top of the main tube, where all the heat is, and even then it is easily removed. There is a little more incrustation in the boilers when working non-condensing; but when using the condensers, the boilers have practically no scale or deposit, and the tubes are now as clean as they were when the boilers were made.

The boilers are cleaned every two months, that is to say, that after a boiler has been in use for two months it is then stopped and cleaned and again put in use after standing two months when the other boiler is in use in the meantime.

It is to be clearly understood that the effluent used is free from suspended matter, and is what has passed through a fine bacteria bed which is practically in the form of a filter, and that it is not the effluent of a septic tank which might contain a good deal of suspended matter.

The amount of nitrates usually to be found in our effluent is 2 to 2·5 parts per 100,000.

Dated Calcutta, the 11th October 1904.

Demi-official from—BABU NARENDRA NATH SEN, To—RAI SURENDRA NATH MITTER, BAHADUR.

I RETURN, after correction, the notes of the evidence given by me before the Septic Tank Committee, and in doing so have to express my regret for the delay that has unavoidably taken place. The fact is that the notes were somehow mislaid.

P.S.—The question ought to be corrected by the gentlemen who put them.

BABU NARENDRA NATH SEN—

Q.—Have you studied the subject of septic tanks?

A.—I cannot say that I have studied the subject much. I have heard a great deal of the Indian feeling in the matter. I got short notice. It was only yesterday that I got the notice, so I had not sufficient time to study the subject, but I must say that the Indian feeling in connection with the question is very intense indeed. This practice of discharging the effluent into the river is a nuisance and should be put a stop to, because the people not only drink the water of the river, but they also bathe in it, especially those people who live near the mills. They make use of the river for drinking and bathing purposes alike. I must ask you to consider whether this is not a grave question, not only for the Hindus, but also for all who make use of the river water for various purposes. The number of mills is increasing daily on both sides of the river, and we must remember that we all drink the water of the river, though filtered it is true. If these discharges from the mills are allowed to flow into the river in large quantities, and the quantities, I daresay, will go on increasing every year, then the question assumes a still more serious aspect. There is a suggestion in a letter which I received yesterday that it is proposed to adopt this method in all the riparian municipalities. If that be so, we must be very careful before we adopt it. There are two methods of dealing with the sewage—one is that by means of incinerators, and the other by septic tanks. In my opinion septic tanks are objectionable in themselves. Probably the septic tank system is the most satisfactory method of dealing with the sewage sludge of a town, but the question is whether the sewage sludge should be allowed to flow into the rivers or into the fields, or it would not be better to trench the sewage in lands that might be obtained for the purpose. In the first place the natural level of the country is far away from the river and always towards the fields; and it is well known that the cultivators attach a great value to lands which have been used for trenching purposes, as the trenching grounds always yield a better income, and they are not only profitable to agriculturists but they actually pay well the zamindars who always demand a large price for them. I am sure that if instead of allowing the effluent to be thrown into the river, quantities of lands are purchased and made use of as trenching-grounds, these trenching-grounds will find much favour with the cultivators. It will not only improve agriculture, but will also be a means of removing the complaint which has now been raised against the discharge of sewage into the river. I do not see why, when we have got such a better method of dealing with the sewage, we should allow the sewage to be discharged into the river, into the sacred stream, the Ganges. But apart from the religious aspect of the question, there are very grave sanitary objections to the discharges being allowed to be poured into the river; and I am sure that all sanitarians will agree with me in thinking that if the present practice be put a stop, it would be by far the better. In England all towns on the coast, I see, make use of the sea, and sewage sludge is shipped, and sent in steamers, specially built for the purpose, to the sea at some distance, and discharged there. Of course, that is actually out of the question here; but, having regard to public health, having regard at least to the question of health of such a large population as live on both sides of the river, I contend that we should carry the effluent into the neighbouring fields instead of allowing it to be discharged into the river.

Question—Mr. Shirres. - Would you tell me what you think more objectionable—to allow the sewage of 2,000 persons to be thrown into the river or 2,000 persons' sewage to be thrown into the fields?

Answer—The latter is certainly less objectionable.

The septic tanks are, so far as they go, not at all objectionable in themselves, as I have said already, but we should determine the method of dealing with the sewage. The system has been in use in England since 1876.

Mr. Shirres.—The incinerator at Entally in Calcutta is used for rubbish, and not for sewage.

Babu N. N. Sen.—I know the incinerator at Entally in Calcutta is used for rubbish, and not for sewage. But an experiment was made at Goragachha some years ago for dealing with the sewage there. It proved a failure, and then it was stopped. I myself went to Goragachha and found the incinerator at work there for the purpose of disposing of the sewage. It was Mr. Harrington who started the incinerator for rubbish at one place and for sewage at another.

Q. Mr. Clarkson.—You want the effluent at the sewage passing over lands?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know the localities where the septic tanks are?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Can you . . . . . if the effluent is to be . . . . . in rainy weather?

A.—Some inconvenience will no doubt be felt in the wet season, but not in the dry season. Municipalities have to suffer such inconvenience at present.

Q.—Do you think it would be less injurious if it is allowed to go into a tank than into the river Hooghly? We want your opinion.

A.—No.

There is a proposal, I am told now, to have a separate route to carry the domestic sewage or the foul water of the houses during the rainy season, in the dry season domestic sewage being allowed to go into the canal or river. The proposal is for considering why there should not be a separate route in the rainy season for domestic sewage being carried into fields, and, as I have said, the natural level of the country is towards the fields, and not towards the river.

Q.—Do you look at the question from a sentimental point, supposing it can be saved from sanitary injuries? Do you think that sentimental or religious feeling will object to it?

A—No, I am not at all looking at it from a sentimental or religious point of view. People ought to look at it from the sanitary point of view. We must know that in the neighbourhood of these mills there is a large number of coolies who are allowed to live. They have got their habitations there, and they drink the water of the river and bathe in it and also use the water for cooking purposes.

Q.—I think you are speaking of Rishra and Hastings Mills.

A.—I am speaking of Hastings and Wellington Mills. I do not know how far the Hastings Mills have stopped working the septic tanks.

Q.—It is a tidal river and a vast mass of water. Do you think additional filtration would be required?

Answer—I read in an article in the Encyclopædia Britannica that in case of towns situated on rivers above the range of tidal water, the further purification is effected either on land or by means of artificial filters, or the combination of the two.

Question—Are there any religious objections? To what extent their position is based? Are there any leaders who may be consulted on the subject?

Answer—I have no religious objections to the septic tanks themselves. That is, I say again, the best method yet discovered of dealing with the sewage, but a great smell is emitted from the effluents.

Mr. Shirres.—You talk of a great smell, but two days ago we went and visited some mills, and we felt no smell at all.

Mr. N. Sen.—The effluents might have been fresh.

Mr. Shirres.—No. They are continually discharging.

Mr. N. Sen.—May be. I am not an authority on that point.

Mr. Shirres—Are there any representative people?

A.—It is not very difficult to know who the representative people are.

Mr. N. Sen.—What are the mills you went to see?

Mr. Shirres.—About half a dozen mills we saw. The Gouripur Mill Works are the best. Absolutely no smell.

Mr. N. Sen.—We do not go to see how these septic tanks work. Sometimes they may be choked up, and we do not know who looks after the working of these tanks. That is a matter of great importance. It is a question also whether the septic tanks should be open or closed tanks.

Mr. Shirres.—Do you think it will be wiser to arrange a party of gentlemen to see the septic tanks?

A.—Yes. Many people do not know what the septic tanks are, and it will be very good, of course.

Q.—Can't we get some gentlemen who may go by launch and see the septic tanks at work? Yes; such gentlemen among the Hindus, as Sir Guru Das Banerjee, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Chandra Madhub Ghose, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Sarada Charan Mittra, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Ashutosh Mukhopadhyaya, and among the Muhammadans, Nawab Amir Hussain Bahadur and Mirza Shujjat Ali Beg, Khan Bahadur, may be invited.

I think you may write to the Marwari Association, the British Indian Association, the Central Muhammadan Association, the Bengal Landholders' Association and the Indian Association and invite them to depute their representatives.

To—The Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

HEREWITH I send you a copy of demi-official letter of 24th instant from Mr. J. G. Dean of the firm of Messrs. Anderson, Wright & Co. regarding the Khardah septic tank installation. Please have it printed and distributed. I should like to have three spare copies.

Dated Calcutta, the 24th October 1904.

From—J. G. DEAN, ESQ.,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, P. W. Department.

IN reply to yours regarding Khardah septic tank installation.

The latrine contains 60 seats. The size of the tank is 84′ × 14′ × 7′.

There are two sets of filtering beds; each consisting of a coarse filtering bed 30′ × 14′ and one fine filtering bed 21′—7″ × 14′ which are used on alternative days, so as to allow the one which is not being used to get aired.

The filtering material is khoa (broken bricks).

The quantity of water used per head is about three gallons.

The filtration is continuous during the day, say, from 5 A.M. to 8 P.M., but is stopped at night, when the latrine is not being used.

No sprinklers are used.

The flushing arrangement is automatic and worked from tipping tanks on the roof, which can be regulated to act at intervals as required. This secures a strong flush of water right through the latrine every few minutes.

We find the latrine works very well, and there is practically no smell.

PANDIT KALIPROSANNA BHATTACHARYA, M.A., Professor, Presidency College, hands over a note on the subject to the Committee.

Question.—Do you come from Nadia?

Answer.—I came from the Presidency College.

Question.—You tell us that any organised system of throwing in objectionable matter into the sacred river is most repugnant to all sections of the Hindu community on religious grounds? Do you mean to say it is objectionable in Benares also?

Answer.—Yes. Even in Benares it is objectionable. I have cited good many authorities to show that it is most prohibitive and improper.

Question.—But, as a matter of fact, can the water of the Ganges be impure in a religious sense?

Answer.—Ganges is looked upon by the Hindus from two aspects—1) the deity, etc., (2) the water. The deity cannot be polluted, but the water can be.

Question.—So in a physical sense it can be polluted, but Gangaji (in a religious sense) cannot be polluted?

Answer.—The deity cannot be impure, but the water can be polluted.

Question.—What subject do you teach in the Presidency College?

Answer.—Sanskrit.

Question.—Do you teach Shastras?

Answer.—In the University curriculum there are epics and dramas only Question.—You have considered this subject I think?

Answer.—Yes

Question.—Then from a religious point of view you do not think it can be polluted?

Answer.—The Ganges is pure in itself; but the water if mixed with impure things can be polluted.

NOTE.

The Ganges.

The river Ganga is looked upon by the Hindus not only as a sacred river, but also as a living deity, who is worshipped on the Dashahara day annually in the month of May by every sect of the Hindu community. The Goddess is also worshipped by all classes of Hindus, high or low, in all their religious ceremonies.

The river is held to be sacred not only be the Hindus, but even by the Buddhists. The Dalai Lama of Tibet requested Warren Hastings for a piece of land on the bank of the Ganges, in order that he might bathe in it every day by a proxy, and Warren Hastings granted, in compliance with his request, a piece of land of 150 bighas at Ghoosoory opposite to the northern quarter of Calcutta for the delegates of the Dalai Lama to live in. This land is still in the possession of the ascetics (the Saniasis).

A survey of the literature of the Ganga-worship shows that Ganga-worship, like the worship of Shiva and Vishnu, was established in very ancient time. It has all the five elements of worship which constitute a cult, with this peculiarity that while either cults are sectarian, the Ganga-cult is universal among the Indian people, Hindu, Buddhist and Jaina. The Buddhists and Jainas, though they differ from the Hindus in various matters, consider a plunge in the Ganges as an act of great merit.

The list of works on the Ganga worship is as follows:—

(1) Ganga lahari.
(2) Ganga-batarana.
(3) Gangabatamachampu.
(4) Ganga-Vakyabali—a very ancient book quoted by Hemadri.
(5) Ganga-Sraddha.
(6) Gangashtaka, attributed to Kalidas, Valmiki and Sankaracharyya.
(7) Gangashtaka, No. 2.
(8) Gangastotra-Satanama
(9) Gangastottara-Satanama.
(10) Gangastaba in Kalikapurana.
(11) Gangastabaraya.
(12) Gangastuti.
(13) Gangastava-Brahmavaivartapurna.
(14) Ganga-snanabidhi.
(15) Gangapivshalaheri.
(16) Ganga-saptami.
(17) Ganga-kavacha
(18) Ganga-pushpanjali.
(19) Ganga-Vaktitarangini.
(20) Ganga-Vaktiprakasa.
(21) Ganga-mahatmya (Bhabishyapurrna).
(22) Gangasataka.
(23) Ganga-kritya-viveka, quoted by an author who wrote in 1250 A.D.

Most of these are authoritative books quoted by Roghunandana, their copies are found in libraries, the Catalogues of which have been prepared by competent scholars in both Europe and India.

From the Hindu point of view, the Ganga-worship began early in the treta-yuga, ... about 24 lakhs of years before this, but from a European point of view, it was regarded as a great worship and a principal source of salvation even in the second century A.D.

In the work entitled Chittabisudhiprakarana (চিত্তবিশুদ্ধিপ্রকরণ) by Aryya Deva, a Buddist preacher, written about 200 A.D., there occurs the following passage :—

"গঙ্গাবারি অবেক্ষ্য কিং" Salvation occurs from bathing in the Ganga. It shows that even at that age Ganga-worship was considered to be a part of Indian religion.

The Ganga-worship being thus established, any act of irreverence done towards the sacred river is considered by the Hindus as an act of sacrilege, and, therefore, any organised system of throwing in objectionable matters into it (the sacred river) is most repugnant to all sections of the Hindu communities on religious grounds.

Now I beg permission to cite the Sanskrit texts on this subject :—

1. "The following thirteen (or fourteen) are to be avoided in the sacred-watered Ganga :—

"(1) Cleansing (after a stool); (2) washing the face (after a meal); (3) sprinkling in (of other waters); (4) throwing in flowers, etc. (after a worship); (5) rubbing off the faecal matters; (6) shampooing; (7) sport; (8) acceptance of gifts; (9) disrespect to Ganga; (10) preference to any other sacred place; (11) the praise of any other sacred place; (12) the change or cleansing of cloths, and (13) the crossing over."

In the place of (1) there is another reading "throwing in ordure and urine."—Ganja-mahatmya Bramhandapurana.

2. "Ganga should not be entered into by one who is besmeared (with oil) or who has got dirt (on his person)."—Prayaschittatatwa-Skandapurana.

3. "Those that go to Ganga, go to heaven.—Gangavakti-Dannadharma.

4. "The gods always desire the human shape to be rightly devotional and to have the advantage of bathing in Ganga."—Gangavaktitarangini-Kalikapurana.

5. "Stool and urine must not be made in fire, cemetery, nor in furrowed land nor in a hole (in the earth), nor in a palace of sanctity, and nor at the intersection of four roads—Usanas, Chapter II, 36-39.

6. "The votary to Ganga must not throw into the water, in the bed, phlegm or sputum, blood, hair; nor should he strike his hand and feet into the waters."—Gangavaktitarangini Bhabishyapurana.

As for the purity of water in general, I may be permitted to cite the following texts :—

1. "Ordure and urine must not be thrown into water." - Veda.

2. "Never should one make a stool or urine with his shoes on nor in furrowed land, nor on a street and nor in waters."—Pastamba Dharmasutra, first prasna patala 11, verse 18.

3. "Never should one make a stool or urine having in his front fire, the sun, water, a Brahman, a cow or a god "—Apastamba Dharmasutra, prasna patala 11, verse 20.

4. "Similarly spitting in water is to be avoided."—Apastamba Dharmasutra, prasna patala 11, verse 19.

(N.B.—It should be noted here that the date of this work is about 500 B.C.)

5. Brahma asked the waters to take the load of the sin of killing a Brahmana (the highest sin) on which they replied : "Yes, we are willing to take the highest sin on us, but how could we be free from such a curse?"

On which Brahma said :—

"This sin shall enter him and shall dwell in him who will throw phlegm or sputum, urine and ordure into you (the waters) taking you to be weak."—Mahabharata, Santiparva, Mokshadharma, Chapter 283.

6. Bharat says to Kausalya :—

"Let him get the sin of a seller of water and of the giver of poison at whose consent my brother (Rama) has gone to the forest."—Ramayana, Ayodhyakanda, Chapter 75, verse 55.

7. On the death of Abhimanyu, his beloved son Arjuna thus swears :—

"If I fail to kill Jayedratha (the killer of my son) I would get the fate of those that throw phlegm or sputum, ordure, or urine into the waters."—Mahabharata Dronaparva, Chapter 72, verse 30.

8. "The first waters of a flow-tide, the water any how disturbed (or made foul), and also waters from a sacred river running into another are never to be taken."—Ganga Vakti-tarangini Yajnavalka.

A Hindu always utters this prayer before entering the Ganges :—

"Your water, O Goddess, is a means to my ascent to heaven, so pardon me, if I touch you with my feet."

THE SEPTIC TANK SYSTEM.

1. Construction of the Septic Tank.

I visited the Gouripore Jute Mills near Naihati on the left bank of the Hooghly (Ganges) on Sunday the 14th August 1904 at 4 P.M. Mr. R. N. Mukherjee, the overseer of the mill, kindly explained to me the construction of the septic tank there. The latrine of the mill seems to be excellent. Six gallons of water are automatically left off by each man using the latrine. The discharge of the latrine passes through a syphon in a macerating tank, which has got port-holes at the height of three feet. The main tank, which is seven feet high, draws off liquid through these port-holes. At a height of three feet from the floor there is in the tank a perforated pipe which takes a bend and enters into a trap, which contains broken bricks to catch hold of any solid particles that may come along with the liquid discharge. The discharge from the trap is taken away by a four-inch cast-iron pipe successively to two sets of filters, which are about 300 feet away from the tank and are filled with broken pieces of porous bricks. The discharge from the filters is finally let off through a brick built drain into the char land and thence through a kutcha open drain into the river.

2. Characters of the Effluents.

Though every thing goes on well in the septic tank system; there are however a few points which I venture to mention here for the consideration of the Septic Tank Committee—

(i) Light and air, which are two great purifiers, being absent the decomposed excreta in the main tank, macerating tank, and trap, may produce noxious gases and dangerous germs of disease. The effluents may carry those injurious things into the water of the river.

(ii) The broken pieces of bricks and porous sands may not trap all the solid particles of the latrine discharge. Some of the solid particles may be carried along with the discharge into the river, making thereby its water unfit for drinking and bathing purposes.

(iii) The solid particles that are caught hold of by the bricks and stands will gradually be heaped up. How will they be disposed of? Are they not injurious to health?

(iv) The suspended solid particles are said to be desintegrated by some worms produced, in the night-soil of the septic tank in the course of twenty-four hours. The discharge in passing through the tank is said to absorb most of the gases due to the disintegration.

Is not the disintegration problematic? The absorption of the gases by the discharge is also a matter of doubt. At any rate discharge in absorbing the gases must be polluted and render the water of the river impure and poisonous. What becomes of the worms that eat up the poison and dilute the solid particles?

(v) The latrine discharge that is finally let off into the river seems to be very impure as it is black in colour, the natural colour of water being white.

(vi) There is also an unpleasant smell, while the smell of pure water is sweet.

(vii) There seems to exist in the discharge an oily substance. What is it?

(viii) The taste of the discharge is unknown.

(ix) Six gallons of water are mixed with the night-soil and urine in the case of each man using the latrine. Thus the volume of foul matter to be disposed of is enormously increased.

(x) The septic tank system of removing sewage is very costly.

3. Disposal of the Effluents.

In my opinion the effluents of the septic tank instead of being let off into water should be thrown on land. The land possesses the power of absorbing and assimilating solid practicles. There the gaseous and other matters of the effluents will also be purified and assimilated by air, rays of the sun, etc. The effluents will thus not only be perfectly disposed of but will also serve to irrigate the land into which they will be left off. Owing to the disintegration or suspension of solid practicles the effluents will no doubt lose some of their agricultural value, still they will contain some ingredients which will fertilize the land; if it is found impracticable to let off the effluents into land, they may be connected with the Municipal drains of the locality.

4. Mufassal Municipalities.

The septic tank system is hardly needed in the Municipalities in the mufassal, where there is plenty of cultivable land to which the night-soil in its crude state might be applied as manure. The urine also might, in the case of some of particular plants and trees, be used for agricultural purposes. There should be a large tract of land under the mufassal municipality where the night-soil and urine might be used in agricultural.

5. Objections against letting off effluents into water.

It is objectionable to let off effluents of the septic tank into rivers on the religious ground. In the Vedas (2000 B.C.—600 B.C.) special sanctity is attached to water. It is looked upon as a god that cleanses us of all our sins (vide Exhibit A). The "Sacred Laws of the Aryyas" as contained in the Socio religious Institutes of Manu, Vishnu, and others (600 B. C.—100 A. D.) make direct prohibition against the defilement of water (vide Exhibit B). A river that has been rendered impure by hard things, is no doubt purified by its current carrying away those things; but a river that has been polluted by liquid discharge cannot be purified by its current (vide B). The Purans (300 B. C.—800 A. D.) forbid throwing impure substances into the Ganges (vide Exhibit C). The Tantras (800 A. D.—1600 A. D.) likewise maintain the sanctity of the Ganges. Modern Hinduism in Bengal, which commenced with Raghunandan (about 1600 A. D.), prescribes penitential ceremonies for those who cast filths into the Ganges, as is evident from the Prayaschitta Tattva, etc. It is one of the fundamental rules of Buddhistic religion not to pollute water (vide Exhibit D). The Hindu religion, which looks upon water as a god, considers it a sacrilege to let off the effluents into water in general and into the Ganges in particular. The Buddhist religion is also opposed to it.

In performing Sandhya (prayer) in the morning, evening, and midday we are to pray to water to free us from all sins. In performing Tarpana (libation of water) we are to offer water to our dead ancestors (vide Exhibit E). It will certainly be repugnant to our feelings on the sentimental ground to imagine that the water to which we are praying and the water which we are presenting to our forefathers are mixed with the discharge of latrines.

On sanitary ground, too, the effluent should not be let off into water. The black colour, unpleasant smell, and the specific weight of the effluent show that it is very much different from pure water, and is altogether unsuited for drinking and bathing purposes (vide Exhibit F).

If the Governor of Bengal and the Septic Tank Committee are convinced that the Hindu regulations regarding water are not inconsistent with reason, they may be implored to cast a glance over Exhibit G.

The Hindu religion advocates throwing filthy matter into the earth, which alone possesses the power of dissolving everything (vide Exhibits F and H).

EXHIBITS.

A.

THE VEDIC AGE (2000 B.C.—600 B.C.).

The first creation of God.

In the Vedas (Rigveda, X·129; Taittiriya Brahman, ii. 8, 9, 3; Satapatha Brahman, X·6, 5, and XI·1, 6, 1) water is mentioned thus:—

Originally there was nothing here. This was enveloped by darkness. There was neither entity nor non-entity. One Being breathed calmly. Desire first arose in Him. This was the bond between entity and non-entity. He created water. There was then water and only water. The Being threw impregnating energies into it. Then the universe sprang up. Who knows, who here can declare, whence has sprang, whence, this creation? The Gods are subsequent to the creation of this universe; who then knows from what it arose? From what source this creation arose and whether any one made it or not? He who in the highest heaven is its ruler, He knows, or even He does not know.

The purifying power of water.

In the Vedas (Rigveda, X·17, 10, and i. 23, 22 and X·75, 1, and Vi. 52, 10 Vajasaneya Sanhita 4, 2; Atharvaveda Vi·51, 2) the waters (rivers) are thus celebrated:—

May the Waters—the mothers—cleanse us, may they purify us with ambrosia; for these goddesses bear away defilement; I come up out of them pure and cleansed.

O Waters carry away from me whatever sins I have committed—the sins of violence, cursing, and falsehood. Waters, let the poet declare your transcendent greatness in the abode of the worshipper. Waters, you are the medicines and dear mothers of all things fixed and moving.

B.

THE SMRITI PERIOD (600 B.C.—100 A.D.).

Prohibition against defilement of water.

Manu (in his Dharma-sastra or sacred Laws of the Aryas, Chapter IV, verses 46, 48, 56) observes:—

Let not the house-holder void urine in water or looking towards the water (river). Let him not throw urine or fæces into the water, nor saliva, nor clothes defiled by impure substances, nor any other impurity, nor blood, nor poisonous things.

Purification of defiled water.

Manu (in his Dharma-sastra V. 108) says:—
"a river is purified by its current"

Vishnu (in his Dharma-sastra or Socio-religious Institutes, XXII, 91,) says:—

"A river is purified by its current carrying away all slime and mud."

Gautama (in his Dharma-sanhita 1·42) observes:—

"Purification (from defilement) by unclean substances has been effected when the stains and the bad smell have been removed."

Manu (Dharma-sastra V·127) observes:—

Of the three things declared by gods to be pure, one is "that on which no taint is visible."

C.

PAURANIC AGE (300 B.C.—800 A.D.).

The circumstances under which the Ganges came down from the Himalayas into India on her way to the ocean are described at length in the Ramayana, Book I, Chaps. 41-42-Vishnupurana, Book II, Chap. 8; Devibhagavata, Chap. IX; Brahmapurana; Brahma; vaivartapurana; Skandapurana; Agnipurana; Kasikhanda; Bhavisyapurana; etc.,

Sanctity of the Ganges.

The Purans mentioned above describe the sanctity of the Ganges thus:—

By looking at the Ganges one attains knowledge, wealth, health, fame, and honour.

By touching the water of the Ganges one is freed even from the sins of killing Brahmans, cows, and preceptors.

By bathing in the Ganges one is cleansed of hundreds of grave sins.

The messengers of death, like the antelopes at the sight of lion, run away from one who bathes in the Ganges.

By drinking a mouthful of water of the Ganges one attains salvation.

By washing the body with the mud of the Ganges, one becomes brighter than the sun.

Water of the Ganges must not be defiled.

In the Ganges the undermentioned thirteen acts are forbidden:—

Evacuation of excrement; rinsing the mouth, sprinkling, throwing flowers, washing away filth, shampooing, sport, accepting gifts, showing want of faith, eulogizing any other sacred place, changing clothes, striking and crossing (Brahmanda-purana).

D.

BUDDHISTIC VIEW (543 B.C.).

In the Chapter on Patimokkha in the Vinaya-pitaka there is a list of rules, 227 in all, which the Buddhist monks are bound to follow in their daily practices. Of these rules there are seventy-five which the laymen too have to observe. Regarding the rules Buddha says: "It behoveth all to train themselves according thereto in concord, in pleasantness, without dispute." One of the rules which are binding on monks and laymen alike is:—

"Not into water will I throw excrement, or spit. This is a discipline which I must observe."

Regarding the filtration of water Buddha says in the Vinaya-pitaka, Cullavaga, IV,13,1 as follows:—

"As water cannot be drunk without destroying the lives or living things, I allow, O brethren, the use of a strainer . . . . . I allow, O brethren, the use of a double strainer . . . . . I allow, O brethren, the use of a filter."

E.

Tarpana.

(PRESENTATION OF WATER.)

Tarpana is a religious rite in which libations of water are given daily or periodically to devas, rishis, ancestors, men, and others. The substance of a few mantras (recited on the occasion) of Tarpana are given below:—

O my fathers come and accept this handful of water. May this quench your thirst.

Those of my ancestors who were burnt by fire or even those who were not burnt—may they accept this presentation of water and receive full satiety.

Those members of my race who had no sons or relatives—may they too receive this offering of water and be fully gratified.

I present this libation of water, may it gratify the whole world from Brahma downwards to the grass.

Sandhya.

(Prayers.)

Sandhya is the prayer which is recited in the morning, evening, and mid-day by members of twice born castes. An extract from the Sandhya is given below :—

May water bless me—water of the desert, island, ocean, lake, well, etc., May water cleanse me of all impurities.

O water thou art blessed—thou givest us food in this life and carriest us in the presence of Brahma in the next life. Like the affectionate mother thou distributest to us a portion of thy nectar-like fluid. May we be gratified with a portion of the fluid with which thou refreshest the whole world.

F.

Hindu Philosophy (600 B.C.).

Characteristics of pure water and the sewage.

According to the Hindu philosophy the crude sewage, like all other composite things, consists of five elements, viz,—earth, water, fire, air, and ether, in disproportionate quantities. The qualities of the five elements are stated (in the Vaisesika Sutra, Book II, Chapter I, and other works on Vaisesika and Nyaya philosophy) as follows:—

Elements.	Their qualities.
Earth	Smell, taste, colour, touch, sound.
Water	Taste, colour, touch, sound.
Fire	Colour, touch, sound.
Air	Touch, sound.
Ether	Sound.

The sewage is said to be perfectly dissolved when the earthly element thereof is deposited on earth, the watery element enters into water, the fiery element is mixed with the atmospheric heat, the airy element is added to the air, and the cathereal element is absorbed in the other. Now, this sort of dissolution can never be effected by the septic tank. The present method of reducing the sewage to liquid by means of the septic tank does not seem to be a perfect system. The atoms of earth and water being quite different from each other, the earthly portion of the sewage can never be converted to perfect water. If the effluents of the septic tank are thrown into a river, their dissolution will commence there. At the time of the dissolution the water of the river cannot but be polluted. As the effluents cannot be altogether dissociated from earthly atoms (that is, hard substances), is very probable that there will arise bad smell in the river at the time of the dissolution of the effluents there. In fact the effluents of the septic tank do emit bad smell. Moreover, the water being mixed with the earthly atoms (or hard substances) it will be unsuitable for drinking purposes. The blank colour of the effluents show that they are not pure, for the proper characteristics of pure water are stated thus: In water the colour is white, the taste sweet, the touch cold, the fluidity natural (Vaisesika Sutra, Book II, Chapter I, Aphorism 2).

King's Duty.

A King who duly protects his subjects receives from each and all the sixth part of their spiritual merits; if he does not protect them, the sixth part of their demerit also will fall on him.

Whatever merit a man gains by worship, etc., the king obtains a sixth part of that, in consequence of his duly protecting his kingdom. (Manu, VIII. 304, 305.)

Purification of Land.

Land is purified by the following five modes, viz., by sweeping, by smearing it with cow-dung, by sprinkling it with cow's urine or milk, by scraping, and by cows staying on it during a day or night. (Manu, V. 124.)

Land is purified by scouring, by plastering it with cow-dung, by sprinkling, by scraping, by burning, or by letting cows (or goats) pass (a day and a night) on it.

(Vishnu, XXIII, 56-57).

Earth, fire, water, cow-dung, air, the rays of the sun, and the light of the moon are declared to be great purifiers. (Vishnu, XXII, 88).

MAHAMAHOPADHYAYA RAJ KRISHNA TARKAPANCHANAN OF NADIA.

Question.—What is your name?

Answer.—Raj Krishna Tarkapanchanan.

Question.—Where is your residence?

Answer.—Nawadwip.

Question.—Can Ganges water be polluted from a religious point of view.

Answer.—In our shastras, the discharge of any filthy substance into the river is strictly prohibited, as we have to use the water for bathing, cooking and drinking purposes

Question.—Can Ganges water be polluted by the discharge of any filth from a religious point of view?

Answer.—Ganges being pure in itself, it cannot be polluted in a religious sense, but so long as we can see or know that some sort of nuisance is committed into it, or any filth is floating on the water, or that the sewage effluent is discharged into the river, we cannot do any religious duties with that water; we cannot offer that water to our Gods with our full heart.

Question.—Can Ganges water be polluted in a religious sense?

Answer.—No, it cannot be.

Question.—Have you seen any septic tanks?

Answer.—No.

Question.—Do you like to go with us in a steamer and see one of the installations?

Answer.—I do not think it necessary to do so.

Question.—Can you give us your opinion generally on the subject?

Answer.—Yes. In my opinion the effluent from the septic tanks should not be let go into the Ganges water, as it tells much upon our feelings and also because if we do any religious work with the water in which the sewage sludge or any other filthy substance is discharged in any form we cannot do that work with our full heart and hence we do not get the desired benefit from such a religious performance; and also we cannot offer that water to our Gods. So, since it tells upon our religion and our feelings, the effluent should on no account be allowed to be discharged into the Ganges.

Question.—What do you think of the effluents that are discharged into the Ganges near Benares?

Answer.—So long as the filth is within our sight and knowledge the water is impure, but when it is out of sight or beyond our knowledge we do not think the water to be impure.

Question.—Do you know that at Benares the effluent is discharged into the Ganges?

Answer.—Yes.

Question.—Then you mean to say that Ganges there is impure?

Answer.—It is impure so long as the impure substance is in touch with it.

Question.—In that case Ganges ceases to be sacred?

Answer.—So long as it is in contact with sewage sludge or any impure thing it is not sacred.

Question.—Who makes it pure again?

Answer.—When the filth is carried away or is deposited on the bed of the river it is pure again.

Question.—Do you accept the views of Pandit Jogesha Chandra Shastri?

Answer.—No, not fully.

Question.—In what points do you differ from his views?

Answer.—He says that when the Ganges water is in current, it can by no means be impure. But my view is this: suppose a quantity of crude sewage is floating on the surface of the water: it is true that we can nevertheless take water from some distance from that filth and can use it, as the filth does not impure the whole river but only that much of it in which the raw sewage is floating, but when the sewage sludge is liquified and mixed with water we consider the Ganges water wholly impure.

Question.—Is your last statement your own opinion, or is it the opinion of your Shastras?

Answer.—All that I have said is the opinion of our Shastras and nothing my own.

Question.—Then Ganges water is not pure in all parts of the river?

Answer.—No. We cannot draw Ganges water for religious purposes from all parts of the river. Where we know the water to be pure we can draw it for religious purposes, but where we know that it is mixed with anything impure we cannot draw it for such purposes.

MR. ASHWORTH (GOURIPUR MILLS).

Question.—There has been a suggestion that the effluent should be passed overland instead of into the river. Could you manage to do that?

Answer.—There is no difficulty in the dry season, but we cannot do it in the rainy season.

Question.—Supposing that you substitute for the present system the sand filtration?

Answer.—That could be done if desirable. But would it be more efficient than the present system? You are reducing the efficiency of the present system and substituting another instead.

Mr. Shirres.—The idea of the sand filter is that a very large number of bacteria are destroyed in passing through the sand.

Colonel Browne.—(Showing a plan.) This is an idea to minimise the risk.

Mr. Ashworth.—The idea could be carried out in Gouripur, but there might be some difficulty of building the reservoir owing to the sandy soil and the high tide.

Mr. Shirres.—There was a question of passing the effluent overland.

Answer.—This could be done in the dry season, but the land would be under water in the rains. The other lands in a suitable position are unsuitable owing to their being covered with mill waste for some depth.

Question.—Is there any land behind the mill?

Answer.—There is a land behind the mill, but we will have to pump the effluent up.

Question.—Is land very valuable there?

Answer.—The price has gone up considerably of late years. We had to pay Rs. 3,000 for two bighas of land last year.

Question.—One of the suggestions is that the effluent be passed into the tanks from which water for feeding the boilers is drawn.

Answer.—As far as I can ascertain from the information furnished by chemists I have consulted this course would not damage the boilers; but my objections to it are chiefly sentimental, as the men who clean the boilers are mostly Hindus, who would probably object to going into the boilers if they know that the effluent was being used as feed water. Muhammadan firemen would also have the same objections as the Hindus, but their objections might probably give way if pressed.

Another objection is the initial cost. This would probably be about Rs. 5,000 as the tanks are long way from the filter beds. But the sentimental objection is the chief one.

Remark by Committee.—Filtering the effluent through sand would not be necessary if it is put into the boilers

Colonel Browne.—Considers that the system in vogue in Gouripur is not the best that the effluent should run in contract beds from the tops

Mr. Ashworth.—I could not see much difference between filling the contract beds from the top or from the bottom.

Colonel Browne.—It requires some mixing the effluent with water.

Mr. Ashworth.—I knew Mr. Silk's opinion was that it is better to fill them from the top.

Colonel Browne.—The evidence I had of late was that the continuous system of filtration was the best

We could no doubt alter our sytem to the continuous system. It will be necessary to sprinkle to distribute the effluent over the bed.

Mr. Shirres.—We like to try some experiment of feeding the boiler with the effluent.

Mr. Ashworth.—I would not like to be the pioneer in that experiment.

Pandit Rajani Kanto Vidyaratna of Nadia.

Question.—Do you accept the views of Pandit Jogesha Chandra Shastri?

Answer.—I cannot fully accept the opinion of Pandit Jogesha Chandra Shastri.

Question.—In what points you differ?

Answer.—In my opinion water of the Ganges can be polluted in a religious sense. In that point I differ from Pandit Jogesha Chandra Shastri.

Mr. H. M. Scott (Hastings Mills).

Question.—Have you started to work septic tanks?

Answer.—Yes. We resumed the working, about two weeks ago, the alterations having been completed.

Question.—There is a proposal to use the effluent as feed-water for the boilers, what do you think of it.

Answer.—I am afraid, this would not do at all, as it would be very injurious to boilers and engines.

Question.—Supposing that it will not injure the boilers, could it be done?

Answer.—Yes, easily in some cases where surface-condensing engines are not used; and the amount of "feed-water" required is so much greater; our discharge from septic tanks is roughly about fourteen tons a day.

Question.—Could you manage to get a trial?

Answer.—Yes, we will only be too pleased to make any experiment suggested.

Question.—Would you fear any trouble in clearing the boilers?

Answer.—No. I think that could be got over, by employing cleaners of a different caste.

Question.—There was a letter from Mr. Adam Birkmyre to one Bamandas Banerjee. That gentleman made mention of some smell, and Mr Birkmyre wrote him saying he would try and pass the effluent to the fields instead of the river. Have you seen that letter?

Answer.—No. I have not seen the letter in question, but I have heard about it.

Question.—Is Mr. Adam Birkmyre a partner?

Answer.—Yes. He is managing partner, and Mr. Archy Birkmyre has written home, explaining to him fully.

Question.—It may be better to try experiments in the boilers.

Answer.—The effluent, during the rainy season, might not injure the boilers, in the same way as it would during the months of November, December and January, as the water is very much softer during the rains. I always notice we have more deposits during the dry months of the year—so that in giving a trial some time would have to be given before deciding as to whether it was doing any injury or not.

Question.—One gentleman complained of some oily substance floating in the river, discharged from your mills.

Answer.—There is no oily discharge from the septic tanks It must have been from our batching drain discharge.

Question—What do you use in the filter beds of your septic tanks?

Answer.—Coke, cinders. Our filter beds have been covered all over with glass and two kerosine oil lamps have been fitted in chimneys or up-takes; these are supposed to burn the gases from filter beds. I may mention these have not been started yet.

Question.—Will it be possible for you to make an experiment?

Answer.—Yes. But any damage done, who will bear the expense?

Mr. Shirres.—Government will surely stand that.

Question.—No use delaying; we can start at once with a trial.

Answer.—It will have to be done very carefully, as the effluent may affect one boiler in a different way to another, owing to the composition of the metals not being the same. In some cases I have known pitting in boilers caused through oil mixing with feed-water to show in a few weeks and in others it would take years.

Question—What is the life of an engine and boiler?

Answer.—We have them in use over 27 years.

Question.—Could an experiment be arranged?

Answer.—It could be arranged with one of our old boilers

Question—What is the value of a boiler?

Answer.—About Rs. 4,000.

Question.—Government may meet any damage.

Mr. Scott.—The boiler would have to be examined thoroughly before and after one or two weeks trial.

Question.—Is there any land there?

Answer.—Yes. Government has land between us and the Railway.

Question.—What is the nature of soil?

Answer.—Sandy soil, and in the rainy season it is very swampy. It lies low and I am afraid the effluent would find its way into numerous bathing tanks round about.

Question.—Would it be difficult to lay pipes?

Answer.—It would be difficult to run the pipes through the villages. We can easily manage to lay pipes inside up to Grand Trunk Road opposite Bustee Lane which is the nearest point to Government land.

Question.—How far will that be to Government land?

Answer.—About ½ or ¾ of a mile.

Question.—What would be the cost?

Answer.—About from 13 annas to Re. 1 a foot.

Question.—Will you ask Mr Birkmyre about an experiment?

Answer.—Yes. I will speak to Mr. Birkmyre.

(A drawing was then shown to Mr. Scott, of a tank placed on river bank and an arrangement of piping and valves. The piping was led to bed of river below low water mark. The idea was to let the effluent flow from this at a given state of the tide. Mr. Scott expressed his opinion at this being the most feasible and best way of deposing of the effluent from the tanks.)

Mr. DISNEY (MUZAFFARPUR).

Colonel Browne.—Have you seen any septic tanks here?

Answer.—I have seen several, viz., Gouripur, Kankinara, Anglo-Indian, Shamnagar, Khardu, Titaghur, and Standard.

Question.—What do you think of the installation at Kankinara?

Answer.—It is much overworked. The septic tank has a cubical capacity to working water level of 3,900 cubic feet and the filter beds 2,880 cubic feet It is said to be designed for 3,000 persons daily, but some 6,500 use it in the sixteen working hours. The flush or dilution is reported to be about two-and-a-half gallons. The water-supply is, I consider, unsatisfactory. Warm water is used, which may hasten bacteriological action. The tank when full contains 24,375 gallons. The flush for 6,500 persons at two-and-a-half gallons would amount to 16,225 gallons; if the latrine is only used once a day. Each person probably uses it twice, when the quantity to be dealt with would be 32,500 gallons. The filter beds are, I consider, only sufficient for some 18,000 gallons daily. A new installation, the septic tank of which has a cubical capacity of some 6,120 cubic feet and the filter beds 8,100 cubic feet is under construction.

Question.—Have you any objection to the system at Gouripur?

Answer.—Yes. Continuous filtration gives better result than intermittent upward filtration, as is done there.

The cubical capacity of the septic tank to working water level is 4,620 cubic feet and of the filter beds 12,000 cubic feet, two-thirds of the area of the latter is taken up by the filtering material. The size of the filter beds is, I consider, sufficient for the tank but, given an efficient distributor to evenly spread the effluent over the filter bed, percolation filtration, is preferable to intermittent upward filtration. The water-supply is said to be six to seven gallons at each flush. The size of the septic tank, allowing for a three-gallon flush for 4,000 persons using the latrine twice daily, is about right. I think a flush of three gallons each time the latrine is used is probably sufficient. Much depends on the character of the sewage. The sewage to be disposed of is of more even character than domestic sewage.

Question.—Have you seen the Gloster Mills?

Answer.—No, not yet.

Question.—How long do you consider the sewage should remain in the septic tank?

Answer.—I think 24 hours to be about the proper period of rest in the septic tank, but much depends on the dilution of the sewage; a rest of over this has been proved to have had no better results, but rather the reverse. Putrefaction sets in after 24 hours in England, as found at Horsham. The filtrate should be conveyed away from the filter beds in open drains with waterfalls, in order to aerate it.

Mr. Shirres.—Shows a drawing from Bombay Corporation.

Answer.—Yes, this acts as a cascade, aerates the filtrate, and is very useful.

Question.—Mr James of Bombay says an eight hours' rest is sufficient?

Answer.—He is dealing with much more diluted sewage than obtained at the mills.

Mr. Horn.—Thinks that time of rest in the septic tank should be longer than eight hours.

Answer.—Owing to the higher temperature of the water flushing the latrines at the mills, bacterial action may be quickened considerably. The ventilation of the septic tank was also insufficient. There is another defect in several installations; as the filtrate is run away by the covered drains it should be exposed to the air as much as possible.

Mr. Shirres.—Have you any idea of the distance from the filter to the river?

Answer.—These vary from quite close to the bank of the river, as at the Standard Jute Mills, to a considerable distance off.

Question.—One of the suggestions made is to pass the effluent on to land instead of into the river.

Answer.—The utility depends largely on local conditions as to the character of the soil and level.

Question.—You have seen some of the filters; have you seen their neighbouring lands?

Answer.—No. I do not consider it necessary to dispose of the filtrate in this manner; the volume of water in the Hooghly is so large that the contamination, if any, would be infinitesimal.

Question.—It may not be necessary; but it is given as one of the alternatives?

Answer.—The filtrate is undoubtedly a very useful manure; there would however be difficulty in disposing of it overland in the rainy season.

Question.—Another alternative is to use the effluent as feed-water for the boilers?

Answer.—I have no experience of this and cannot give an opinion.

Mr. Horn.—Suggests that Mr. Disney be asked to write out a report on the installations he inspected.

Mr. Shirres.—Considered that two installations would be sufficient to give his views on.

Mr. Disney remarked about Kharda Mills. This was a new installation started within the last six weeks and was representative of the latest type introduced.

Mr. Wilmot—

Question.—I think you have a lot of experience in this subject?

Answer.—Yes. I have.

Question.—Entirely of India?

Answer.—Entirely of India.

Question.—Have you seen any installations in Bombay? Can you give us any details?

Answer.—No. I have not seen any installations in Bombay. But I have information of Mr. James's installations at Poona Question.—Have you seen any recent installations?

Answer.—Yes. I have seen them at Shamnagar, Titaghar, Serampur, etc.

Question.—At Titaghar is the septic tank latrine working satisfactorily?

Answer.—Yes. The working is satisfactory. Occasionally in some of these latrines a larger number of users come in than the structure was intended or designed for, and then the septic action is disturbed for a time and has to be put right again. The fact is that once the workers in a mill have used a septic tank latrine, they have a great objection to go back to the old crude latrines. At the Standard Mills, where the number of users is limited to 1,000 or about that number, the action is quite satisfactory.

Colonel Browne.—But there in the effluent a cholera bacillus appears to have been detected.

Answer.—In the effluent of the installations at Titaghar? I am not quite sure of that There are eminent authorities who tell us that there is nothing perhaps better calculated to destroy and exterminate pathogenic germs (cacilli of disease, than the conditions which prevail in a septic tank.

Colonel Brown.—Yes That is a Bacteriological question. But now with regard to the installations, do you know the one at Gouripur?

Answer.—No.

Question.—What system of filtration do you think best?

Answer.—We tried upward filtration, but we found it unsatisfactory. We have tried various methods, one of which was a sort of weir system with alternate upward and downward filtration, but we find that the present system adopted by us answers the purpose best.

Question.—What is your present system?

Answer.—On the continuous principle and instead of the effluent being discharged from the septic tank into the filter beds at almost the level of the filtering media so as to become at once entangled in it, we now provide a sort of cascade arrangement with troughs and discs so contrived as to sprinkle the effluent over, and take the use of the entire filtering media in the beds. This plan also provides for more thorough and complete oxygenation.

Question.—How many installations have you?

Answer.—We have twelve at various mills.

Question.—What material do you think best for the filter beds?

Answer.—Broken bricks and good coke. Coal has been recommended, but it presents generally too smooth and slippery a surface Good coke is therefore found to be better. The broken brick should be from well-burnt first class bricks or Jhama that will not soften by continuous immersion in liquid.

Question.—What do you think of sand filtration?

Answer.—That it will be of much advantage in reducing the possibility of any pathogenic germs issuing with the filtrate, assuming that any such could exist in the effluent after the destructive action on them in a properly-worked septic tank.

Question.—But how does it work?

Answer.—The action of sand filtration has been demonstrated in connection with portable water-supply systems, and, like other features of septic tank installations, it has to be worked on the basis of both theoretical and practical experience.

Question.—Do you require four filter tanks for each septic tank installation?

Answer.—It depends on circumstances and varying conditions. At one of our installations for 1,000 users we have two sets of four filter beds each working alternately.

Question.—How many installations of this system are there?

Answer.—We have 12 of them at various mills, etc

Question.—Are they all working well?

Answer. Yes. They all work well and always satisfactorily, when the number of users for each is properly regulated in accordance with the number for which the septic tank is designed. When no proper regulation is made of the number using the septic tank latrine the proper septic action is injured, and the quality of the effluent is affected. As I have before remarked, when a septic tank latrine is put up in a mill, its convenience and cleanliness are so vastly greater than the old type latrines that the mill workers rush to them. The matter is thus obviously rectified by the full number of workers in each mill being gradually provided for.

Question.—Have the number of users been limited in any cases?

Answer.—Yes, at some of the installations, and with the best results.

Question.—What should be the minimum quantity of water per head in the septic tank latrine?

Answer.—Three gallons.

Question.—You think it works perfectly at three gallons per head?

Answer.—Yes.

Question.—At Gouripur and Gloster Mills they use six gallons?

Answer.—This is needless waste of water-supply, and an excessive supply of water is likely to injuriously affect the septic action in the tank.

Mr. Wilmot.—In the official letter requesting my attendance before this Committee. it was noted as part of the enquiry whether any objections to the use of these septic tank latrines are due to sentimental or religious feelings and, if so, how far and in what way these objections could be removed.

In regard to these I may premise that it is abundantly manifest that any objections that may exist, and whether crude or otherwise, are simply to the outlet of the filtrate into the river, and not in any way to the septic tank latrines themselves. The only question is as to the disposal of the filtrate discharged from the latrines, and whether there is any tangible objection to its flowing into the Hughli

As a matter of history it has flowed over two years without causing any sanitary or religious inconvenience or difficulty. But, in order to sensibly and effectively remove any sentimental or religious scruples, I submit to the Committee a plan with memorandum, showing that by placing the outlet of the filtrate far into the river and near its bed, and by so arranging as to allow of the escape of the filtrate only at the commencement of the ebb tide, and chiefly at night time, the said filtrate would in no way at any time approach the banks of the river, and would be entirely lost in the volume of the river somewhere near Diamond Harbour before the beginning of the flood tides (which last five hours against the seven years of ebb tide) would have the possibility of any influence whatever upon it. This method, which I have shown in the plan submitted to be perfectly feasible, would or should remove all sentimental and no doubt any religious objections to this method of disposal of the filtrate, and possibly all sanitary objections as well.

MR. HORN—

Question.—It is not certain that the action of the ebb and flood tides would carry the effluent down to the distance anticipated?

Answer.—It would certainly carry it far enough down for all practical purposes, and remove all possibility of any supposed danger from return of the filtrate up the river.

MAJOR CLARKSON—

Question.—The pipes will take the effluent away altogether from the shore?

Answer.—Yes. Quite away from the river bank, and away from the bathers, etc., along the length of the river.

Question.—What I ask is whether you think it possible to arrange also for the escape of the effluent through the pipe after nightfall?

Answer.—That is what I have suggested.

Question.—Would not the tank or cistern at the bank need to be a large one?

Answer.—No, it would need only to contain one day's supply of the filtrate. The average dimensions are shown on this plan to which I have attached a memorandum explaining the whole proposal.

COLONEL BROWNE—

Question.—It is a reserve tank, not the filter bed?

Answer.—Yes. The effluent or rather filterate would flow into the cistern at the bank from the filter-beds which would be away near the septic tank itself.

MR. HORN—

Question.—Is that a memorandum with the plan? Do you leave them with the Committee?

Answer.—Yes, with pleasure. As I have said this method will I feel convinced remove all sentimental or religious objections that may be supposed to exist, and any sanitary objections as well. And I shall be glad to submit to the Committee a further note of matters which our experience with these septic tank installations will enable me to do. We desire to give all information in our power which may be of interest or use to the Committee.

Question.—We should like to have your note. Will you give us an idea on the practical points?

Answer.—Yes. I shall be very glad to do so.

Question.—Can arrangements be made for the removal of any smell around the filter beds?

Answer.—Yes. We have devised an apparatus which, while allowing for the more complete oxygenation of the effluent by a cascade arrangement, will prevent any smell lurking around the filter beds, etc., so that there will be no inconvenience or objection from this cause.

ANGLO-INDIA JUTE MILLS.

MR. ANDREW SMALL.

Question.—How long have you started the installation?

Answer.—About 12 months.

Question.—How much have you spent on the installation?

Answer.—Possibly Rs. 20,000 altogether.

Question.—How many men work in your Mills?

Answer.—About 3,000.

Question.—Have you thought of any other way of disposing of the effluents?

Answer.—Yes. For irrigation purposes.

Question.—What is the nature of the soil?

Answer.—Sandy soil

Question.—What is the price of land.

Answer.—Sometimes it comes up to Rs 200 a bigha salami and Rs. 20 rental.

Question—Are there lots of spare land there?

Answer.—Yes.

Question.—Do you think it will be possible to use that land for passing the effluent over it?

Answer.—I think so.

Question.—How far are those lands from your Mills?

Answer.—About half a mile.

Question—How could you convey the effluent half a mile.

Answer.—We could pass it through pipes.

Question.—There is another proposal from the People's Association that the affluent might be used as feed-water of the boiler. What do you think of that?

Answer.—I don't think it would be practicable, as we would have to put it into the suction well and if the suction should jam at any time it would be difficult to get any one to clear it owing to the idea of it coming from the septic tank.

Question.—If your pump had a floating suction like the water-works or something of that sort, would that not do?

Answer.—Our suction pipes are all fixed at a certain depth to enable us to get the coolest water.

Question.—What other objections have you to using it in your boiler?

Answer.—I don't think it could be done successfully, though it would not do any danger to the boiler, but I could not say what action steam generated from filtrates would have on the steam parts of the engine seeing we carry 170th pressure.

Question.—Is that the only objection?

Answer.—Yes, that is the only objection. The rose of the suction sometimes jams up in the rainy weather. We have then to clean it; I do not think we will not be able to get people to clean it.

Question.—Will it be easy for you to rent some land?

Answer.—Oh yes.

Question.—Your Directors at home are in favour of using the effluent as a boiler feed?

Answer.—The Consulting Engineer at home said that it would not do any harm to the boilers. But he agrees with me in saying that it would not do to put it into the tanks.

Question.—Have you any other objection to the suggestion as a boiler feed?

Answer.—The mistries would probably object to clean the suction or the boilers.

Question.—If we put the effluent into the land, what will be the probable result?

Answer.—I think it will be absorbed and the nitrification process would be effective.

The mean pressure, temperature, etc., are deduced from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

RESOLUTION.

THE Secretary of State for India has brought to the notice of the Government of India that it not infrequently happens that natives of India, students or others, who have proceeded to England, desire to obtain passports to enable them to travel to foreign countries in which the possession of a passport is necessary or desirable, and that difficulty often arises from want of evidence to show that the applicant is a British subject, and therefore entitled to a passport. Appeals for assistance are also frequently addressed to His Lordship by destitute Indians who desire to return to their country and by students who, owing to embarrassed circumstances, are unable to complete their course of education.

2. In order to enable the Secretary of State to deal with such cases satisfactorily, the Governor-General in Council has decided that it is necessary to press upon Indian students and others visiting England the desirability of providing themselves, before their departure from India, with an authoritative certificate of identity, in the form appended to this Resolution, signed by the head of the district (in a Presidency Town, the Commissioner of Police) in the case of residents of British India and by the Political Officer in that of residents of Native States. For a student the certificate should be signed by the head of his last school or college and countersigned by the District Officer (in a Presidency Town, the Commissioner of Police) or Political Officer, as the case may be.

BILL

To amend the law relating to the abatement of nuisances arising from the smoke of furnaces or fire-places in the town and suburbs of Calcutta and in Howrah, and to provide for the extension thereof to other areas in Bengal.

Act III of 1899, s. 636.]

Provided that, if a military cantonment is situated within any area to which it is proposed to extend this Act, no notification shall be published under this sub-section in respect of such area without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council.

(2) Any inhabitant of an area to which it is proposed to extend this Act may, if he objects to such extension, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within a period of six weeks from the publication of the said notification in the Calcutta Gazette. [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1899, s. 637.]

(2) If any owner of a furnace in respect of which a direction is given under clause (c) fails to secure compliance with such direction, he shall be liable to fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Repeal.

14 The Calcutta and Howrah Smoke-nuisances Act, 1863, is repealed. Ben. Act II of 1863.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

AN Act for the abatement of smoke-nuisances in Calcutta, the Suburbs of Calcutta, and Howrah was passed over forty years ago, being Act II of 1863 of the Bengal Legislative Council. That Act has proved insufficient to secure the object in view; and the erection of numerous mills and factories in the neighbourhood of Calcutta has rendered it all the more necessary to amend the law. In the year 1903 Mr. Frederick Grover, A.M.I.C.E., was engaged by the Secretary of State for India to come to Calcutta and examine the question. Mr. Grover submitted his report in July of the same year, and the object of the present Bill is to give effect to some of his recommendations. The principal provisions of the Bill are explained in the following notes:—

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

1. Clauses 1 and 2.—The Bill, like Bengal Act II of 1863, is declared by clause 1 to extend to the town and suburbs of Calcutta and the station of Howrah. It is, however, proposed in clause 2 to take power to extend the new law to other areas in Bengal as occasion may require.

2. Clause 3 defines the word "furnace" as used in the Bill A proviso has been added to exclude from the purview of the Bill furnaces and fire-places used for household or domestic purposes, and ocean-going steamers moving on the river.

3. Clause 4 provides for the constitution of a Commission to supervise and control the working of the new law, while clause 5 provides for the appointment of Inspectors of Smoke-nuisances.

4. Clause 6 empowers the Local Government, in accordance with Mr Grover's recommendation, to prohibit, within any specified area, the erection of brick or lime kilns, or of furnaces for heating metals, or the making of coke. The emission of smoke from furnaces used for such purposes cannot be abated by any means yet known; and the only practicable course is to take power to prevent the erection of new furnaces in particular areas.

5. Clause 7 may be regarded as the most important clause in the Bill. It authorises the imposition of fines when smoke is emitted in quantities in greater density or for a longer time than is permitted by rules to be made under clause 11, whatever may be the cause, and whatever appliances may be used for diminishing the nuisance. It is the absence of such a clause that led to the failure of Bengal Act II of 1863. The clause embodies one of Mr. Grover's recommendations, and does no more than give effect to the principles, declared in section 268 of the Indian Penal Code, that "a person is guilty of a public nuisance who does any act . . . . . which causes any . . . . . annoyance to the public," and that "a common nuisance is not excused on the ground that it causes some convenience or advantage."

6. Clause 8 empowers the Local Government to appoint a period within which furnaces must be constructed, altered or fitted with appliances in such manner as to prevent smoke being emitted in greater density or for a longer time than is permitted by rules to be made under clause 11. The clause is for the most part practically a reproduction of section 1 of the existing Act, II of 1863.

7. Clause 10 confers on Inspectors powers of entry, inspection and testing, and also authorises them to direct experimental working with a view to testing methods of preventing or reducing the emission of smoke.

8. Clause 11 gives power to make rules to carry out the objects of the new law. Its principal provisions are those which authorise the making of rules for prescribing the density of smoke that may be emitted from a furnace, the time during which smoke of such density may be emitted, and the giving of warnings to offenders before instituting prosecutions.

THE SUNDARBANS BILL, 1904.

BILL

To provide for the abolition of the Office of Commissioner in the Sundarbans.

WHEREAS it is expedient to abolish the Office of Commissioner in the Sundarbans;

And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General has been obtained, under section 5 of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, to the passing of this Act; 55 & 56 Vict., c. 14.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Sundarbans Act, 1905.

Repeal of enactments. 2. The Sundarbans Regulation, 1816, and so much of the Repealing and Amending Act, 1903, as relates to that Regulation, are hereby repealed. IX of 1816. I of 1903.

Amendment of Bengal Regulation III of 1828 3. In clause Second of section 13 of the Bengal Land-revenue Assessment (Resumed Lands) Regulation, 1828,— III of 1828.

(a) for the words "Commissioner of the Sundarbans" and "Commissioner" the words "Deputy Collector" shall be substituted, and

(b) for the word "Commissioner's," in both places in which it occurs, the words "Deputy Collector's" shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for the abolition of the office of Commissioner in the Sundarbans; and its provisions are confined to the repeal of Regulation IX of 1816, by which that office was constituted, and the amendment of references to the said office in Regulation III of 1828.

2. It is intended that the administration of the Sundarbans should, after the Bill becomes law, be carried on by the Collectors of the districts in which these tracts are situated, with the assistance of a Deputy Collector or of Deputy Collectors.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

APPOINTMENT OF DISTRICT ENGINEERS

The Hon'ble BABU NALIN BEHARI SIRCAR, in the absence of the Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU, asked:—

Will the Government be pleased to inform how the rules made under clauses (9) (p) and (m), section 138, of the Local Self-Government Act, issued under Notification No. 3334L.S.-G., dated 10th December, 1901, have worked with reference to the following matters:—

I. How many vacancies in the ranks of District Engineers occurred, especially in class I, grade I districts, since the enforcement of the new rules, and in how many of such vacancies existing District Engineers approved by Government as fit for those districts have been appointed?

II. Is it a fact that vacancies occurred at Saran and Champaran, but none of the persons included in the Chief Engineer's list (vide rule 12) have been appointed, though some of them applied for the posts? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons which led to the disregarding of the rules?

III. Is it not difficult, under the present rules, to get properly qualified Engineers for temporary vacancies when an officer takes long leave, to wit Backergunge, a district of class 1? Will the Government please state what is being done to remedy this state of things?

IV. Under rule 5, District Engineers are required to retire on attaining the age of 55 years, and can only be retained with the sanction of the Government. Is it a fact that two European District Engineers have been allowed to remain in service, though one is about 65 years old and the other close on 60—a concession which is not allowed by Government to officers in other branches of public service? Will the Government be pleased to state the grounds on which the services of these officers have been retained, when there are officers in the Government list fully qualified to hold these appointments but are on receipt of lesser pay owing to there being no vacancies?

V. Of the 42 districts where the Local Self-Government Act is in force, 11 have been classed as grade I regarding District Engineer's pay (Rs 600 rising to Rs. 800). Of these 11 posts, 10 are held by Europeans, although numerically the strength of the Native Engineers to Europeans in the service is as 3 to 2. Will the Government be pleased to remedy this state of things, and make a fairer distribution of these posts, specially as there are districts in this grade where there is no specialized European interest?

VI. Is it true that in the opinion of several high Government officials, the recent rules have not worked well; and if so, will the Government be pleased to take steps to re-cast the rules so that there may be a fair prospect of transfers and promotions in the service through which large sums of public money, both Local and Provincial, are annually spent?

VII. Will the Government be pleased, in re-casting the rules or otherwise, to give effect to the pledge given by Sir Ashley Eden at the time of establishing the Sibpur College that the alumni of that College were to have all Road Cess appointments?

The Hon'ble MR. SHIRRES replied:—

"THE simplest way to answer my hon'ble friend is first to explain the nature of the appointments held by District Engineers and the manner in which such appointments are made, and then to reply to the specific questions asked.

"Each appointment to the post of District Engineer is made separately by the District Board concerned under the powers vested in it by section 33 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885. Under the first proviso to that section the confirmation of the Commissioner of the Division is necessary, but the appointments are not made by, nor are they subject to the approval of, the Local Government. The action of the Local Government is confined to laying down rules regarding the qualifications of candidates for employment as District Engineer, and the District Boards are required, by the third proviso of the section referred to, to conform to such rules. Except in respect of the qualifications of the candidates, the choice of the District Boards is unrestricted, and they are under no obligation to choose an Engineer serving in another district; nor has an Engineer serving in one district any claim to be appointed to a vacancy occurring in another district. The professional qualifications laid down by Government have been made to vary with the pay which is given, and the standard is raised as the pay is raised. To enable these standards to be laid down, the posts of District Engineer have been divided into classes and grades, but the service is not 'a graded service' in the sense in which that expression is ordinarily understood. There is therefore no 'Service' of District Engineers similar to the Public Works Service, or the Police Service, or the Education Service. Moreover, under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, the Lieutenant-Governor has no power to transfer a District Engineer from one district to another without the consent of the District Boards concerned, and such transfers are therefore very rarely made.

"The Hon'ble Member apparently desires that the District Engineers should be formed into a graded service on the lines of the Police, the Education and other services. It is essential to the administration of such a service that the power of appointment and transfer should rest with the Government, and the proposal of the Hon'ble Member could not therefore be given effect to without an alteration of the law. The Local Self-Government Act is however at present before this Council, and the requisite change in it could be made without difficulty. A graded service possesses obvious administrative advantages over a number of detached and isolated appointments, and the suggestion that the District Engineers should be formed into such a service has been made to the Government on more than one occasion. The suggestion has not hitherto been seriously considered with a view to legislation, because no very strong case has been made out, and the District Boards are believed to attach great importance to the privilege of appointing their own District Engineers. But if it is thought that a strong case exists, and that the matter should now be taken up, a circular can easily be issued to the District Boards; and if the District Boards themselves, or a majority of them, desire that the change should be made, the requisite amendment will be introduced into the Bill which is now before the Council.

"The following are the answers to the specific questions asked by the Hon'ble Member:—

"I and II.—The first two questions may be answered together. The new rules were published on 20th December, 1901, and since then two vacancies have occurred in class I, grade I districts, namely, at Saran and Champaran. The names of 19 District Engineers are contained in the Chief Engineer's list as qualified to hold appointments in class I districts, but of these 12 are already in charge of districts in class I, grade I. Of the remaining 7, 4 are Europeans and 3 are natives. The District Boards of Saran and Champaran did not however select any of these District Engineers, but advertised for applicants. Two applicants were selected; and as they possessed the necessary professional qualifications, they as a matter of course obtained the requisite certificates from the Chief Engineer, and they were appointed. In the 31 districts which are not included in class I, grade I, eight vacancies have occurred in the post of District Engineer subsequent to the publication of the new rules. One of these appointments is still vacant, three have been filled temporarily, and for two of the remaining four District Engineers serving in other districts have been selected by the District Boards concerned. There has been no disregard of the rules.

"III.—Difficulty has sometimes been felt in filling temporary vacancies. No special remedy seems to be called for.

"IV.—Rule 5 to which the Hon'ble Member refers reads as follows:—

No District Engineer shall be retained in the service of a District Board after he has attained the age of 55 years, except with the sanction of the Local Government and subject to such conditions as it may think fit.

"Two District Engineers, of whom one attained the age of 60 in November, 1901, and the other will attain the age of 64 in March, '905, have been granted each an extension of service for one year. The District Boards preferred retaining those officers with their long experience to appointing new men; the officers themselves were reported to be efficient and to be capable of performing their duties satisfactorily; and special recommendations were submitted to the Government by the Commissioners of the Divisions concerned. The retention of these District Engineers in service did not, as would be the case in a graded service, affect the promotion of junior officers, and the Lieutenant-Governor, after fully considering the cases, accepted the recommendations of the District Boards.

"V and VI.—Questions V and VI have already been sufficiently answered.

"VII.—The pledge given by Sir Ashley Eden, to which my hon'ble friend alludes, referred only to appointments which were made by the Lieutenant-Governor, and which were such as could be given to graduates of the Sibpur College immediately on the conclusion of their curriculum. Information regarding the guaranteed appointments will be found in the Resolutions of the Lieutenant-Governor in the Public Works Department, dated 13th December, 1893, and 4th April, 1901, which were published in the Calcutta Gazette of 27th December, 1893 and 10th April, 1901, respectively."

LANDLORDS' FEES AND WATER-SUPPLY

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said:—

From the statements furnished by Government at a meeting of the Council, held on the 17th December, 1904, it appears that out of a total sum of nearly 12 lakhs of rupees "paid" as "landlord's fee" under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, during the last nineteen years, over $9\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of rupees are now "held in deposit," and that there is apparently no disposition on the part of the payees to accept these deposits.

(a) Under the circumstance, will the Government be pleased to make over these deposits in the various districts to their respective District Boards with express direction to utilize them for the special purpose of water-supply and on condition that should any of the payees ever demand payment of the money so deposited on his account, the District Board concerned will have to make good such payment?

(b) Will the Government be further pleased to consider the propriety of establishing in the hands of the District Boards the nucleus of a fund for water-supply with the aid of the "landlord's fees" thus held in deposit, supplemented by any grant that Government may be able to make from the Provincial Revenues, together with all charitable contributions which may from time to time be made for the purpose by private individuals?

The Hon'ble MR. EARLE replied:—

"(1) Government is not prepared to make over sums deposited as landlords' fees under the Bengal Tenancy Act in the various districts to the District Boards for purposes of water-supply on the condition suggested. In so far as these deposits become the property of Government by lapse of time, they form part of the consolidated revenue of the Provincial Government, which is required to meet its ordinary expenditure; and Government is not prepared to admit that local bodies have any claim to such deposits for local expenditure.

"(2) The questions whether legislation should be undertaken in regard to the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act under which these fees are levied, and whether any executive action can be taken for the purpose of facilitating the withdrawal from the district treasuries of money so deposited, are at the present time under the consideration of the Board of Revenue. Their report is expected shortly; and, as soon as the Lieutenant-Governor has received an expression of their views, he will pass orders in the matter without delay."

RULES REGARDING THE RED ROAD.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambica Charan Mazumdar asked:—

(a) Has the Commissioner of Police issued any instruction, or laid down any rule, prohibiting Indian gentlemen, respectably dressed in the Indian fashion, from walking or driving on the Red Road?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to consider the propriety of directing the withdrawal of such rule or instruction?

The Hon'ble Mr. Carlyle replied:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor on receiving the Hon'ble Member's question inquired into the matter. The Commissioner of Police explains that it has for many years been the practice to instruct the Constables on duty to see that no one, whether European or Indian, is allowed on the side path of the Red Road between 5 and 8 P.M. unless properly dressed. Proper dress, in the case of a road frequented by European and Indian ladies and gentlemen alike, includes complete covering of the body. Indian gentlemen have on previous occasions inquired as to the enforcement of these orders and, on the orders being explained to them, they have always been accepted as reasonable. The Lieutenant-Governor considers it unnecessary to direct the withdrawal of the instructions which appear to have been framed in the interests of the community as a whole, and which are quite in accordance with the habits of Indian gentlemen who come into general society in Calcutta."

SEPTIC TANK AT FARIDPUR.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambica Charan Mazumdar said:—

May I enquire if it is proposed to establish a septic tank at Faridpur? If so, will the Government be pleased to inquire into the present condition of that town which, with the silting up of the river and the Dhole Somudder and with its kutcha drains without sufficient outlet even for the discharge of the rain water, has of late years become subject to malarial fever and other diseases? And will the Government satisfy itself thoroughly as to the advisability of such a measure, regard being had to the condition of this town, before sanctioning any decisive action in the matter?

The Hon'ble Mr. Shirres replied:—

"A proposal has been made to try the experiment of a septic tank in the Jail at Faridpur, because the present method of disposal of the night-soil by trenching in the Jail Garden, which becomes damp and water-logged, is open to objection. Before the project is finally sanctioned, the question of the disposal of the effluent will be carefully considered in connection with the Report of the Septic Tank Committee which was published in the last issue of the Calcutta Gazette."

THE BENGAL SMOKE-NUISANCES BILL, 1904.

The Hon'ble Mr. Carlyle introduced the Bill to amend the law relating to the abatement of nuisances arising from the smoke of furnaces or fire-places in the town and suburbs of Calcutta and in Howrah, and to provide for the extension thereof to other areas in Bengal, and moved that it be read in Council. He said:—

"The motion before the Council is that the Bill to amend the law relating to the abatement of nuisances arising from the smoke of furnaces or fire-places in the town and suburbs of Calcutta and in Howrah and to provide for the extension thereof to other areas in Bengal, be read in Council and that the Bill thereafter be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Horn, the Hon'ble Mr. Larmour, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar, the Hon'ble Babu Nalin Behari Sircar, and myself.

"On a previous occasion I very briefly explained to the Council the main points of difference between the present Bill, and Bengal Act II of 1863 (the Calcutta and Howrah Smoke Nuisances Act). I will again briefly repeat the main differences and I will then go on to deal clause by clause with the provisions of the Bill.

"The Bill makes the mere emission of smoke from any furnace in greater density or for a longer time than is permitted by rules to be framed hereafter punishable. Under the present Act it may be generally said that negligence in some form has to be proved.

"Under the Bill power has been taken entirely to forbid the exercise within certain areas of industries which are necessarily accompanied by a smoke nuisance.

"The administration of the Act is to be entrusted to a Commission composed of official and non-official members, the non-officials being selected to represent interests likely to be affected by the Act.

"Before turning to the details of the Bill I would again note that it is to some extent based on the recommendations made by Mr. Frederick Grover, an expert sent out by the Secretary of State for India to examine the question on the spot. He arrived in Calcutta in the beginning of March, 1903, and submitted his Report in July of the same year. Before submitting his Report he visited a number of factories in and around Calcutta and the colliery districts of Raniganj and Jherria. He examined the various sources of smoke, the qualities and quantities of coal used, the types of furnaces, and the methods of their use. In his Report he enumerates the following six sources of smoke in Calcutta, namely:—

(a) domestic fire-places in native huts;
(b) steam launches and ocean-going steamers;
(c) lime and brick kilns;
(d) the manufacture of coke on the Hooghly banks;
(e) furnaces used for heating plates and metal ingots; and (f) mill and factory boilers used for the purpose of raising steam.

"In the Bill now before the Council, the first source of smoke has been altogether excluded. It would be impossible to deal with the smoke from native huts except by isolating areas responsible for the emission of such smoke. This is obviously impracticable.

"As regards the smoke from launches and ocean-going steamers, the Bill will not touch the raising of steam on ocean-going steamers not moored or anchored and not lying in dock. Such steamers must necessarily emit smoke in the process of raising steam, and as they pass beyond the limits of Calcutta in a comparatively short period of time, it would, as Mr. Grover remarked, appear impossible to impose any restrictions.

"The British Indian Association in a letter dealing with Mr. Grover's Report remarked that Mr. Grover in dealing with the sources of smoke nuisance omitted from his list—

(a) steam rollers;
(b) various railways plying in the limits of Calcutta and Howrah;
(c) the engine sheds of the Eastern Bengal State Railway at Tallah and at other places in Howrah and Calcutta; and (d) press, electric and other installations.

"I may note that furnaces used in such cases all come within the provisions of the Bill.

"I will now turn to the details of the Bill.

"Clause 1 provides that it shall extend to the town and suburbs of Calcutta as defined in the Calcutta and Suburban Police Acts, respectively; also to the station of Howrah as described in a schedule to the Howrah Offences Act. The present Bill provides that the Local Government may extend the Act under certain conditions specified in clause 2 to other areas.

"As regards clause 2 provision is being made for the hearing of objections to any extension of the area, and in the case of military cantonments it is laid down that the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council is required.

"The important point to note in clause 3 is the definition of 'furnaces.' It will be seen that it includes furnaces or fire-places which may be the source of nuisance under any of the heads I have stated above, saving furnaces or fire-places used for household or domestic purposes or for the raising of steam on ocean-going steamers. Under the present Act the term 'furnace' does not apply to locomotive engines used wholly upon railways nor to steam vessels unless employed as ferry boats.

"Clause 4 provides for the constitution of a Commission to supervise and control the working of the Act. This proposal is one which I think will meet with the approval of the Council as half the members are to be composed of non-officials selected to represent interests likely to be affected by the Act. It is very important while the whole question of dealing with smoke nuisances is more or less in an experimental stage, that Government should be assisted by the advice of business men interested in seeing that no undue restrictions are placed on industries affected by the Bill.

"Clause 5 provides for the appointment of a Chief Inspector and so many Assistant Inspectors of Smoke Nuisances as the Local Government may think fit. Mr. Grover remarks under this head that the Chief Inspector of Smoke Nuisances should be 'a competent engineer, well versed in the use of smoke abatement appliances. He should be a man of resource who could be relied upon to exercise his judgment. He should be able to undertake the application of the remedies as suggested in this Report,' i.e., Mr. Grover's Report. A Committee assisted by a well qualified Chief Inspector, such as Mr. Grover suggests, and composed in part of representatives of the industries likely to be affected, is very unlikely to take hasty measures or to do anything likely to hamper trade.

"Clause 6 empowers the Local Government, in certain areas, to prohibit the erection of brick and lime kilns or of furnaces for heating metals or the making of coke. This power is taken because the emission of smoke from furnaces used for such purposes cannot be abated by any means yet known. I may note with reference to the penal clauses of this section that a reference has been made to the Government of India for an amendment of clause 2, as apparently, as the Bill now stands, it might pay to erect a furnace and work it, as after payment of a fine of Rs. 500 no further penalty could be imposed. I need not, however, deal with this question to-day which is one for the Select Committee to consider after we have received a reply from the Government of India.

"Clause 7 is the crux of the whole Bill. It provides that for the emission of smoke from a furnace in greater density or for a longer time than is permitted by rules to be made under the Act, the owner of the furnace shall be liable to fine. It will thus no longer be necessary to prove negligence. The issue before the Courts will be a comparatively simple one as to whether smoke was emitted of excessive density or for an excessive time. Mr. Grover has in paragraphs 137-141 of his Report described methods of gauging the density of smoke, and it will be possible by using one or more of these methods to produce satisfactory evidence before a Court. This clause gives effect to the principle embodied in section 268 of the Indian Penal Code that 'a person is guilty of a public nuisance who does any act which causes any annoyance to the public,' and that 'a common nuisance is not excused on the ground that it causes some convenience or advantage.' It may be noted that this clause does not apply to furnaces referred to in clause 6 (1) which necessarily emit clear smoke. Such cases may be dealt with, if at all, by total prohibition. Mr. Grover proposed that the maximum time of emission of smoke of a given density should be fixed at 10 minutes and that this period should be gradually reduced as the working of the furnaces improves. Government proposes to leave the limit of time to be fixed by rules, as probably ten minutes will be too low a limit at first, and it is undesirable to be obliged to have recourse to legislation, when it becomes reasonable to reduce the maximum limit.

"Clause 8 empowers the Local Government to appoint a period within which furnaces must be constructed, altered or fitted with appliances so as to prevent smoke being emitted in such a manner as to cause a nuisance. Under Bengal Act II of 1863 all persons are bound to construct or to alter furnaces so as to consume or burn their smoke, and this section of the present Bill is less stringent than the law now in force.

"Clause 9 provides for the case of furnaces or kilns which necessarily emit smoke in such a way as to cause a nuisance. As I have already explained, such cases can only be dealt with by prohibiting the working of such furnaces or kilns in specified areas.

"Clause 10 confers on Inspectors powers that should be very useful in enabling the Committee appointed to work the new Act to deal with the question of regulating the emission of smoke from furnaces.

"Clause 11 gives power to make rules to carry out the objects of the Bill. As I have already said it is very desirable that while the question of dealing with smoke nuisances is in a more or less experimental stage, alterations that may be found desirable should not require recourse to fresh legislation.

"Clause 12 provides that cognisance will not be taken of an offence except on the complaint of an Inspector, and it lays down a limit of time after which a complaint cannot be lodged.

"Clauses 13 and 14 deal with the question of disposal of fines and the repeal of the present Act.

"I trust this Council will be satisfied that while Government is making an attempt to grapple with a steadily increasing evil, it has been most careful to do nothing that could seriously hamper any important industry. Mr. Grover points out that it is very doubtful whether the more extensive use of smoke-reducing appliances and greater care in firing will lead to increased profits, as the cost of supervision will probably swallow up the other profits, derived from the gain in efficiency, but it is due to the public that the users of furnaces should use precautions to prevent inconvenience to the public where the extra trouble and cost will be in great part repaid by the more economical working of the furnaces.

"Mr. Grover remarks in his Report:—

> It cannot be denied that the manufacturers of Calcutta have made deliberate efforts to suppress the smoke nuisance by the application of special appliances; that in many cases such efforts have failed, and the appliances have consequently been abandoned. These circumstances have given rise to the opinion that nothing further can be done. My opinion is that too much reliance has been placed on automatic devices and that all individual effort has been surrendered. Experimentation on the part of the engineering staff of a mill is never encouraged by the management even supposing that the engineers are disposed to experimental work or have time for it. Having regard to the fact that the mills are employed in unceasing production for 15 hours out of 24, that there are only five or six Europeans to overlook the work of over 2,000 work-people, it must be conceded that the energies of the engineering staff are fully taken in maintaining the machinery in efficient working order, and as a consequence of this the supervision of the stokers is one of the last considerations.
> I have already shown that there is a possible saving of 4 per cent. on the coal bill due to the combustion of smoke, but that manufacturers could not hope to realize this as profit so long as the necessity for extra supervision exists. There is, however, no hardship in insisting that the 4 per cent. be spent for the benefit of the public.

"I trust the result of the Bill will be to induce the owners of furnaces to spend on the abatement of the smoke nuisance the savings they can effect in coal consumption by better supervision."

The Hon'ble BABU NALIN BEHARI SIRCAR said:—"I desire, on behalf of the residents of Calcutta, to congratulate the Government on the introduction of this very necessary and salutary measure. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has told us that the present law for the abatement of smoke nuisance in and around this City came into existence so far back as 1863. Since then, as we all know, the condition of things has vastly changed. With the rapid development of Mill industries in this part of the country, numerous furnaces and fire-places have been erected; and in the absence of proper regulations these have, for the most part, been indifferently constructed. The innumerable chimneys that have sprung up are of all sorts, shapes and sizes, incessantly emitting thick black smoke, containing soot and solid particles of unconsumed coal; they are a constant source of considerable trouble, inconvenience and mischief to the residents in their neighbourhood. In Calcutta, Wards Nos. 3 and 4, and possibly also Ward No. 2, are the worst sufferers in this respect; and I can bear my personal testimony to the great annoyance to which the unfortunate residents of this locality are constantly subjected. It is a matter of surprise that something was not done, much earlier during the last 40 years, to amend the present law so as to meet the growing exigencies of the situation. The Bill before us, however, now proposes to remedy the defects of the present law on the subject; and I may be permitted to express the thanks of the community to you, Sir, for bringing forward a measure intended to give relief to the suffering public. I earnestly hope and trust that the provisions of the proposed law will be so framed as to effectively remove the evil."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said:—"Any measure that is calculated to mitigate the nuisances of Calcutta and its neighbourhood must be welcome to all; for it would not only tend to remove a great stigma from this 'City of Palaces,' but also afford great relief to civilized humanity. Sir, two knighthoods seem to me as fairly settled for two persons,—one for him who may be fortunate enough to discover a remedy for cancer, and the other for him who may be successful in dealing with the nuisances of Calcutta, particularly its dust and its smoke. Although our hon'ble colleague in charge of this Bill may not have much of a chance in carrying off the prize on the strength of his present experiment, yet I think we might fairly congratulate him upon the first step he has taken towards the solution of a vexed problem.

"The Bill, as introduced by him, both in its scope as well as in its principle, is undoubtedly a distinct improvement upon the dead Act of 1863, whose archaic existence in the Statute Book has been nearly forgotten by the people and which has indeed been so very effective in its operation that, as the Hon'ble Member himself informed us in his opening speech the other day, there is hardly to be found any case for its application. The substitution of a Commission with qualified Inspectors in place of the Magistrate with his inseparable accident, the constable of the existing enactment, as the supervising and controlling authority, is an important feature of the present Bill. This Commission, if properly constituted, is likely to infuse a very active and healthy spirit in the working of the proposed measure by bringing competent and expert opinions to bear upon every case and by having a specially qualified agency which the Bill provides for enforcing its decisions.

"But, Sir, I have a little objection as to the principle involved in the constitution of this Commission. Section 4 of the Bill provides that one-half of the members of the Commission shall be officials, while the other half shall be non-officials selected to represent interests likely to be affected by the proposed measure. That there are many large and influential interests likely to be so affected cannot be either denied or disputed. There is the Calcutta Corporation which is primarily interested both in the ever-increasing industries of this great city, as well as in the sanitation of the localities affected by them. Then there are the Chamber of Commerce, the Trades Association, the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce and those various companies and associations which are either directly or indirectly interested in the numerous mills and factories with which this metropolis and its environs are studded. In my humble opinion the non-official half of the Commission should be elected by these bodies in such number or proportion as the Government may deem proper to allot. If these non official members are really to represent the interests likely to be affected, I do not understand why the Government should undertake the responsibility of choosing their representatives instead of asking them to make their own choice. These bodies if privileged to return their own representatives can only return men of practical knowledge and experience of the subject, and the presence of such men on the Commission can only serve to strengthen the Commission itself. On the other hand, by taking the entire appointment in its own hand, Government might undertake the risk of not only being often misunderstood, but also of creating friction and opposition which cannot by any means be conducive to the successful working of the proposed measure. I would therefore suggest that the non-official half of the proposed Commission should be elected, or at all events nominated, by such bodies as may be found interested in the working of the Act.

"Sir, there are one or two other points in the Bill which also in my opinion seem to be deserving of some little attention. But as these refer to the details and not to the principle of the proposed legislation, I think I am bound to defer them for a future stage of the Bill. Subject to these remarks, I generally approve of the Bill which is before the Council and entirely agree to the motion made by the Hon'ble Member in charge of it"

The Hon'ble MR. CARLYLE said:—"I have to deal with one objection, namely, that the non-official members of the Committee should be elected and not appointed. I can see great difficulties in the way of securing any system of electing members to such a Committee, but if any workable system can be suggested it will be considered by the Select Committee and reported on. I now move that the Bill be read"

The Motion was then put and agreed to, and the Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble MR. CARLYLE also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Horn, the Hon'ble Mr. Larmour, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar, the Hon'ble Babu Nalin Behari Sircar, and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

THE SUNDARBANS BILL, 1904.

The Hon'ble MR. HARE introduced the Bill to provide for the abolition of the office of Commissioner in the Sundarbans, and moved that it be read in Council. He said:—

"I have nothing to add to what I said at the last Meeting of Council. The matter is perfectly simple and the full reasons for this Bill are explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. I therefore propose the measure without a speech."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said:—"All burials, whether of men or of measures, ought only to be performed in solemn silence. I would therefore silently add my shovelful of earth to bury this Commissioner in the Sundarbans. My only regret is that had this mournful ceremony been performed some time earlier, the Government might have been spared the loss, if not also some little humiliation, which it has undoubtedly suffered only a few years back. But let the dead past bury its dead, and let us console ourselves with the homely but none the less wise saying—'Better late than never.' I fully support the Bill which the Hon'ble Mr. Hare has introduced, as I should have felt no difficulty in agreeing with him even if he had moved that the Bill be passed at once."

The Motion was then put and agreed to, and the Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble MR. HARE also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. O'Kinealy, the Hon'ble Mr. Collin, the Hon'ble Mr. Earle, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council then adjourned to Saturday, the 28th January, 1905.

The mean pressure, temperature, etc., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. Rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 A.M. of that day.

☁, dew; o, overcast.

Persons desiring to subscribe for or purchase the Reports should apply to—the Officer in charge, Bengal Secretariat Book Depôt, Calcutta, or CRYSTAL PALACE EXHIBITION, 1905.

The 14th January 1905.—The following is published for general information.

A. EARLE,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No 17—33-9, dated Calcutta, the 14th December 1904.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Dept. of Revenue and Agriculture.

COMMERCIAL EXHIBITIONS.

The following papers relative to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, 1905, to be held at the Crystal Palace, London, in the summer of 1905, are published for general information. The Secretary of State has been informed that the Governor-General in Council has decided to take no official share in the Exhibition:—

Prospectus of the Crystal Palace Exhibition, 1905.

The Directors of the Crystal Palace have decided to hold during the Summer of 1905 an Exhibition at which all the Dominions, Commonwealths, States, Colonies, and Chartered Companies of the British Empire will be invited to take part, with the view of offering to the people of the United Kingdom an object lesson which will demonstrate that the British Empire could produce all the necessaries and luxuries of life in quantities large enough to supply the wants of all its inhabitants, while their quality is at least equal to those produced by any other portion of the globe. The proposed Exhibition will show that this Nation could be entirely self-sustained, and that in this respect it differs from any other, however large may be its area and varried its resources. Such an Exhibition should certainly obtain the countenance and support of the Governments of the constitutional Colonies, all of which are desirous of encouraging commercial intercourse between the various sections of the Empire and some of which are prepared to make considerable sacrifices in order to obtain that object It is believed that the Empire of India and the various Crown Colonies will adopt a similar policy, and show an equal desire to be present on such an occasion.

It is now eighteen years since an Imperial Exhibition of the magnitude of that proposed by the Crystal Palace Company was held in any portion of the United Kingdom. The Colonial and Indian Exhibition of 1886 was visited by 5,550,745 persons, although at that date the advantages, political, commercial and social, to the Mother Country, of the outlying parts of the Empire, and their vast importance to its power and prestige were only partially understood. Since 1886 the population of the Colonies and their trade with the United Kingdom, have largely increased, and the armed forces of the various Colonies and Dependencies have fought side by side with those of the United Kingdom in South Africa and China. At the present moment the food-supplies of this country are largely obtained from the Colonies, although in 1886 such imports were almost unknown. It is only necessary to allude to the large increase since 1886 in the shipments from Canada, Australia and India, of wheat, meat, butter, cheese, game, and poultry; to the movement now on foot for obtaining cotton from British sources, and to the increased trade between the West Indies and the Mother Country.

About the commercial advantages of the proposed Exhibition there can be no room for difference of opinion, since it will show the Merchants and Manufacturers of this country that although in the past it has been the practice to largely rely for supplies upon foreign countries, they could all be procured from the outlying portions of the British Empire with their vast extent and boundless capabilities for production.

The Directors of the Crystal Palace Company have, in the first instance, appealed to the Governments of the various British Colonies, because at all Exhibitions previously held in Europe and the United States the arrangements for the representation of the various Colonial products and manufactures have been made by the Local Governments, and not by private firms or individuals.

The Directors of the Crystal Palace Company are in a position to offer to the Colonial Governments, in the magnificent building which has a world-wide fame, a space quite as large as was occupied by them at South Kensington in 1886. An inclusive charge will be made of 2 shillings per square foot for large spaces taken en bloc by the Government of any British Colony, or 4 shillings per square foot for the space actually occupied whatever may be the area taken. Twenty-five per cent. of the space money must be paid at the time of making the application, and the balance prior to the opening of the Exhibition in May 1905.

Terms may be made with the Refreshment Contractors to the Crystal Palace for the sale of Colonial Wines, Ales, Liqueurs, Cigars, and for the establishment of Colonial Restaurants under regulations to be subsequently issued.

The situation of the Crystal Palace is specially convenient of access for Exhibitors, as by means of two lines of railway heavy goods can be delivered at a minimum cost, and with the least possible risk. Communication is established with all parts of the Metropolis and with the rest of the United Kingdom by these two lines of railway, and by the tram lines to London and Croydon which are expected to be completed prior to the opening of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and will no doubt largely increase the number of visitors to the Crystal Palace.

The Directors would desire to point out that the architectural surroundings of the Crystal Palace render it unnecessary to make any considerable disbursements in the way of decoration, and that little further expenditure is necessary beyond payment for the space, the freight and insurance of the exhibits, their installation and keeping them clean. The heavy outlay made at Paris, Chicago, and St. Louis, as well as at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition of 1886 is quite unnecessary.

Application will be made to the Board of Trade for a Certificate under the provision of the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883.

The Jury, which will be appointed by the Advisory Committee, will consist of gentlemen of expert knowledge and experience.

The following are the Awards which will be made by the Jury:—

1. Grand Prize.
2. Diploma of Honour.
3. Diploma for Gold Medal.
4. Diploma for Silver Medal.
5. Diploma for Bronze Medal.

Exhibitors requiring additional lighting (electric or gas) can be supplied with same at reasonable rates which can be obtained on application.

All cheques to be made payable to the Crystal Palace Company, and crossed "London and County Bank."

Labels for goods intended for the Exhibition will be forwarded on application.

The mean pressure, temperature, etc., are deduced from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard Newman's No. 80, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. Rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 A. M. of that day.

⛅, dew; o, overcast; ☰ fog; p, passing temporary showers.

No. 147.—The following rules regarding the submission of petitions to the Government of India are published for general information in supersession of the rules published with the Home Department notification no. 1812, dated the 11th October 1889, as amended by subsequent notifications —

RULES REGARDING THE SUBMISSION OF PETITIONS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

NOTE 1.—In these rules the words "Local Government" include a Local Administration, the Commander-in-Chief in India, and a Lieutenant-General Commanding the Forces, and also, except as regards rule 11(7), the head of a department directly under the Government of India.

NOTE 2.—These rules do not apply to non-pensionable subordinate, clerical, and menial establishments employed in the construction and working of State Railways, to whom Circular no. VI-Railway, Public Works Department, dated 1st June 1888, applies.

NOTE 3.—These rules apply, so far as may be, to all memorials, letters and applications, etc., addressed to the Governor General in Council.

NOTE 4.—These rules apply also to petitions by persons no longer in military employ who have served in the Army of the Royal Indian Marine, or have been attached to regiments or batteries or the staff or departments of the Army in any capacity.

SECTION I.

As to the submission of petitions to the Government of India by private persons or public bodies.

1. Every petition to the Government of India should be forwarded through the Local Government having jurisdiction in respect of the subject-matter of the petition. In cases where no Local Government is in a position to deal with the subject-matter of the petition, it should be forwarded through the Local Government within whose jurisdiction the petitioner is or has last been residing or employed

2. A petition may be either in manuscript or in print but must, with all accompanying documents, be properly authenticated by the signature of the petitioner, or, when the petitioners are numerous, by the signatures of one or more of them, and it must conclude with a specific prayer

3. Every petition should be accompanied by a letter addressed to the Local Government requesting its transmission to the Government of India, and, when any order of a Local Government is appealed against, by a copy of such order, as well as of any orders passed in the case by subordinate authorities.

4. Communications on matters connected with any bills before the Council may be addressed either in the form of a petition to the Governor General in Council or in a letter to the Secretary in the Legislative Department, and must in either case be sent to the Secretary in the Legislative Department. Ordinarily such communications will not be answered. Except in the case of the High Court at Fort William, such communications from courts, officials or public bodies should be sent through the Local Government.

SECTION II.

As to the submission of petitions by officers in civil employ.

5. Every officer wishing to petition the Government of India should do so separately.

6. Every petition should be submitted through the head of the office or department to which the petitioner belongs, and should be forwarded by him through the usual official channel.

7. No officer may submit a petition in respect of any matter connected with his official position unless he has some personal interest in the matter.

8. No notice will be taken of a petition relating to any matter connected with the official prospects or position of an officer still in the public service unless it is submitted by the officer himself.

SECTION III.

As to the transmission or withholding of petitions by Local Governments.

9. Every petition to the Government of India should be forwarded by the Local Government concerned with a concise statement of the material facts and (unless there are special reasons for not doing so) an expression of opinion.

If the petition is an appeal against an order of dismissal from Government service, the papers submitted by the Local Government should show whether the charge against the petitioner was reduced to writing; whether his defence was taken and reduced to writing; and whether the decision was in writing. Where service or character books are maintained these also should be submitted.

10. When the petition is not in English, the Local Government should tranmit a translation with it.

11. Local Governments are vested with discretionary power to withhold petitions addressed to the Government of India in the following cases:—

(1) When a petition is illegible or unintelligible.

(2) When a petition contains language which, in the opinion of the Local Government, is disloyal, disrespectful, or improper.

(3) When a previous petition has been disposed of by the Secretary of State for India or the Governor General in Council, and the petition discloses no new facts or circumstances which afford grounds for a reconsideration of the case.

(4) When a petition is an application for pecuniary assistance by a person manifestly possessing no claim.

(5) When a petition is an application for employment from a person not in the service of Government: or is a request for exemption from the provisions of any law or rule prescribing the qualifications to be possessed by persons in the service of Government or by persons engaging in any profession or employment.

(6) When a petition is an appeal from a judicial decision with which the executive has no legal power of interference.

NOTE 1.—In the following cases, namely :—

(a) when a petition is an appeal from a judicial decision in a case in which the Government has reserved any discretion of interference, or

(b) when a petition is an appeal from a judicial decision in a suit to which the Government was a party, or the petition must be transmitted to the Government of India, unless it falls under clause (13) of this rule.

(c) when a petition is practically a prayer for mercy or pardon, or contains such a prayer,

NOTE 2.—When a petition of the kind referred to in clause (c) of Note 1 is addressed to the Government of India after a previous petition has been rejected by the Local Government, the petition must be transmitted, unless the case is one of which the Local Government is competent to dispose on its own responsibility under the orders contained in the Resolution of the Government of India in the Home Department nos. $\frac{30}{1402-13}$, dated the 14th October 1885.

(7) When a petition is an appeal against an order of the Local Government upholding on appeal the dismissal, removal, reduction or other punishment of a Government servant or an employé of a local authority whose salary was not more than Rs 100 a month.

(8) When a petition is an appeal against a decision which by any law or rule having the force of law, is declared to be final.

(9) When a petition is addressed by an officer still in the public service and has reference to his prospective claim for pension, except as provided in Article 915 of the Civil Service Regulations.

(10) When a petition is an appeal against the non-exercise by the Local Government of a discretion vested in it by law or rule.

(11) When a petition is an appeal in a case for which the law provides a different or specific remedy, or in regard to which the time limited by law for appeal has been exceeded.

(12) When a petition is an appeal against an order or decision of the Local Government, and is made more than six months after the communication of such order or decision to the petitioner without satisfactory explanation of the delay.

(13) When a petition relates to a subject on which the Local Government is competent to pass orders and no previous application for redress has been made to the Local Government.

(14) When a petition makes a proposal regarding legislation which the Local Government is not prepared to support.

12. If a petition is withheld, the petitioner should be informed of the fact and the reason for it.

13. A list of petitions withheld under rule 11, with the reasons for withholding them, shall be forwarded quarterly to the Government of India in the proper department.

No. 148.—The following rules for the submission, receipt and transmission of memorials and other papers of the same class to His Majesty the King, Emperor of India, or to the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India are published for general information in supersession of the rules published with the Home Department Notification no. 707, dated 29th March 1878, as amended by subsequent notifications :—

RULES REGARDING THE SUBMISSION OF MEMORIALS AND OTHER PAPERS OF THE SAME CLASS TO HIS MAJESTY THE KING, EMPEROR OF INDIA, OR TO THE RIGHT HON'BLE THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

N.B.—These rules do not in any way affect or supersede orders issued on the same subject by the military authorities for the guidance of the army.

I.—No memorial will be received or attended to unless forwarded as hereinafter prescribed.

II.—Every memorial should be accompanied by a letter requesting its transmission to the authority to which it is addressed.

III.—Every memorial to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India should be presented through the Local Government having jurisdiction in respect of the subject-matter of the memorial. In cases where no Local Government is in a position to deal with the subject-matter of the memorial, it should be presented through the Local Government within whose jurisdiction the memorialist is or has last been residing or employed or, if there is no Local Government answering to these descriptions, then through the Government of India.

IV.—Every memorial to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India presented through the Government of Madras or Bombay should be forwarded direct by the Local Government, with a full statement of facts and an expression of opinion, except in the case of a memorial which—

(a) relates to—

(i) any rule or standing order of the Government of India, or

(ii) any Legislative Proceeding of the Governor General in Council or to an Act to which the Governor General has assented, or

(iii) a case which has been previously under the consideration of the Government of India, whether on appeal or otherwise, or

(b) if granted, would cause expenditure for which the Imperial and not the Local Government would be primarily responsible.

Every such memorial should be forwarded with a covering letter containing a full statement of facts and an expression of opinion to the Government of India in the proper Department for transmission to the Secretary of State* for India.

V.—Every memorial to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India presented through a Local Government, other than the Government of Madras or Bombay, should be forwarded by the Local Government, with a full statement of facts and an expression of opinion, to the Government of India in the proper department for transmission to the authority addressed.†

VI.—Every memorial to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India from a person who has been employed in the army should, if it relates to a military subject, be forwarded through the Lieutenant-General Commanding the Forces of the Command in which the memorialist has served. The Lieutenant-General will forward it, with a full statement of facts and an expression of opinion, to the Government of India in the Military Department for transmission to the authority addressed ‡

VII.—No limit is fixed to the time within which an appeal from an order of the Governments in India must be preferred to the Home Government, except in the case of an appeal from a judicial decision in which the judge is a political officer, and in which the appeal ordinarily lies to Government in the Political Department. Such appeals must be preferred within a period of twelve months from the date of communication to the person concerned of the order to which objection is taken.

VIII.—A memorial may be transmitted either in manuscript or in print, but must, with all accompanying documents, be properly authenticated by the signature of the memorialist on each sheet, and must conclude with a specific prayer.

IX.—Memorials, together with their accompanying documents, should be in English.§ If the accompanying documents must necessarily be forwarded in the vernacular, an English translation should be appended, which should be attested by the signature of the memorialist.

N.B.—It will be well for the transmitting office to examine such translations, and if they are found to be incorrect or faulty, to notice the fact in sending on the memorial.

X.—It is not necessary that memorials should be forwarded in duplicate or triplicate The originals will invariably be transmitted to England, a copy being made and retained by the Government of India, if necessary, for record.

XI.—As a general rule, the transmission to England of a memorial duly forwarded through the proper channel should not be delayed by the transmitting Government in India beyond a month after the receipt of the memorial.

---

* "In the case of memorials and petitions against, or regarding Acts passed by the Legislative Council of the Governor General, the Legislative Department is to be considered to be the department having cognizance of the subject-matter of the memorial. Such memorials will be transmitted to His Majesty's Secretary of State through that department; and to it should be referred all memorials of the kind now described, which may reach any other department of the Government of India. The Legislative Department will, when necessary, consult the executive department concerned before disposing of, or transmitting, such memorials."—Home Department no. $\frac{22\text{-Public}}{990-1001}$, dated 24th May 1878.

Memorials involving questions relating to pensions, gratuities, allowances, and the like should be forwarded through the Government of India.—Home Department Notification no. 5153, dated 10th September 1901.

† Appeals by private persons from the orders of the Lieutenant-Governors lie, in the first instance, to the Governor General in Council. An appeal to the Secretary of State will lie only in the event of an appeal to the Governor General in Council having been rejected.

‡ Appeals by individuals from the orders of the Lieutenant-General Commanding the forces, lie in the first instance to the Governor General in Council and thereafter to the Secretary of State.

§ "As it frequently happens that the disposal of vernacular petitions presented to the Government of India is delayed owing to their being unaccompanied by English translations, and as Local Governments and Administrations have greater facilities for translating the vernaculars in use under their different provinces than the Government of India have, I am directed to request that in order to avoid inconvenience and delay, all vernacular petitions transmitted by a Local Government and Administration to the Government of India may invariably be accompanied by an English translation."

2. "It should, however, be clearly understood that it is not the intention of the Governor General in Council that any petition presented for transmission to the Government of India or the Secretary of State should be refused by reason of its being in the vernacular or because it is unaccompanied by a translation. The great majority of the population do not know English, and cannot obtain the services of an English petition-writer; and it is most undesirable that in a country like India the free right of petition should be curtailed. But as the languages of India are many and diverse, it is desirable that any vernacular petition or memorial forwarded to supreme authority by or through a Local Government should be accompanied by an English translation."—[Home Department no. 54—2686-95 (Public), dated 21st November 1878.]

XII.—The Governments in India are vested with discretionary power to withhold the transmission of memorials addressed to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India in the following cases:—

(1) When a memorial is illegible or unintelligible.

(2) When a memorial contains disrespectful or improper language.

(3) When a second memorial is presented after a decision has already been given by the authority to which it is addressed, and when no new facts or circumstances are adduced which afford grounds for a reconsideration of the case. A memorial addressed to His Majesty by a person whose appeal to the Secretary of State for India has already been rejected, shall be held to be a second memorial to the same authority, and shall not be transmitted.

(4) When a memorial is a mere application for pecuniary assistance by a person manifestly possessing no claim.

(5) When a memorial is an application for employment under one of the Governments in India from a person not in the service of the Government or is a request for exemption from the provisions of any law or rule prescribing the qualifications to be possessed by persons in the service of Government or by persons engaging in any profession or employment.

(6) When a memorial is a mere appeal from a judicial decision.

NOTE 1.—If the memorial is practically an appeal for mercy or pardon, or contains such an appeal, it must be transmitted, unless it falls under rule XIII.

NOTE 2.—When a memorial of the kind referred to in Note 1 is addressed to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India after a previous petition has been rejected by the Government of India or the Local Government, the memorial must be transmitted unless the case is one of which the Local Government is competent to dispose on its own responsibility under the orders contained in the Resolution of the Government of India in the Home Department, no. $\frac{7}{1681-91}$, dated the 15th August 1890.

(7)*When a memorial is an appeal against an order of a Local Government regarding the dismissal, removal, reduction or other punishment of a Government servant or an employé of a local authority whose salary was not more than Rs100 a month; or when it is an appeal against a similar order of a Local Government confirmed by the Government of India from a Government servant or an employé of a local authority whose salary was not more than Rs50 a month.

NOTE.—The first sentence in this clause applies to the orders of the Government of India as well as to those of Local Governments.

(8) When a memorial is an appeal against a decision, which by any law or rule having the force of law, is declared to be final.

(9) When a memorial is addressed by an officer still in the public service and has reference to his prospective claim to pension.

(10) When a memorial is a mere appeal against the non-exercise by one of the Governments in India of a discretion vested in such Government by law or rule.

(11) When a memorial is an appeal against the action of a private individual or of a body of private individuals, regarding the private relations of the memorialist and such individual or body.

(12) When a memorial is an appeal against orders refusing the grant of a pension to an inferior servant who is not eligible for such grant under the pension rules.

XIII.—The Government of India may withhold the transmission of a memorial to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India unless the memorialist has previously memorialized the Government of India and the Local Government concerned on the same subject: provided that, when the memorial is one for pardon which no authority in India has power to grant, it should be addressed to His Majesty and forwarded to the Secretary of State for India.

XIV.—When a memorial is withheld, the memorialist should be informed of the fact and of the reason for it.

XV.—A list of memorials withheld under the discretionary power conferred by rule XII, with the reasons for withholding them, will be forwarded quarterly to the Government of India in the case of memorials withheld by Local Governments under the same discretionary power, and by the Government of India in the department concerned to the Secretary of State for India.

---

* "The Governor General in Council considers that the discretionary power of withholding petitions under clause 8, rule XIII† of the rules for the submission, receipt, and transmission of memorials and other papers of the same class addressed to His Majesty the King, Emperor of India, or to the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, by private persons or by officers of all civil departments should be used with caution, and only after full consideration of the facts in each case. Having regard to the constitution and character of the Indian subordinate services, dismissal of Government officials often involves serious distress, if not actual ruin, to them, and it is right that, under such circumstances, every opportunity should be allowed to them of making themselves heard. Further, when, as sometimes happens, their representations reach the Secretary of State through non-official channels, it is convenient that he should be in a position at once to deal with them, instead of being obliged, as may now be the case, to refer for information to this country. Such petitions, therefore, should not be withheld when there is any reasonable prospect of difference of opinion as to the order passed on them by the Government of India, or when they contain anything to which the attention of the Secretary of State is likely to be especially directed."—Home Department Resolution no. 1438 (Public), dated 24th September 1880.

THE MONSOON OF 1904.

THE following report is published for general information.

A. EARLE,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 24th January 1905.

METEOROLOGICAL SUMMARY FOR THE MONSOON PERIOD OF 1904.

THE following remarks are intended to form the usual brief introduction to the rainfall tables, which give full information regarding the rainfall measured during the south-west monsoon months in all parts of the province. Only the more important features of the general atmospheric conditions are discussed, and these only when they show a tendency favourable or unfavourable to rainfall.

For the pre-monsoon period, i.e., up to the end of May, rainfall was in excess, except in Orissa. The only month in which there was general deficiency was January, while, on the other hand, the excess was most general and most marked during May. For that month all the divisions showed excessive rainfall, except Orissa, and in the latter case the deficiency was small. Of the other divisions the lowest percentage fall was 140 in East Bengal, and the highest (206) in Bihar.

As in previous years, there was a marked absence of what are known as cold-weather storms. These are depressions which march across India from west to east, and are accompanied by cloudy weather and slight precipitation. It is true that one cold-weather disturbance affected the weather in parts of the province about the third week in January, but it seemed to move along and to break up in the region of the Himalayas, so that the disturbed weather it gave rise to was almost entirely confined to the northern districts. The whole rainfall of the month was practically due to this depression, and was in defect in all divisions. There was, however, slight rainfall during the last days of the month due to a disturbance of a somewhat unusual character. That this disturbance was not of the nature of an ordinary cold-weather storm is shown by the fact that the unsettled weather commenced in the Darjeeling hills and gradually worked its way through north into East Bengal, as well as by the circumstance that it was characterised by local thunderstorms—a feature very unusual in ordinary storms of the winter season.

The rainfall at the end of January continued into the first two days of February, and was moderately heavy in Assam and East Bengal Apart from this, the whole rainfall of the month was confined within the period from the 16th to 20th and was due to a depression, which originated in Bengal itself towards the middle of the month. This depression had likewise nothing in common with the usual storms of the cold weather, and arising as it did from local causes was accompanied during its continuance by thunder-storms While it lasted, the distribution of pressure over Bengal was of the ordinary hot weather character. Bihar and Orissa were, however, little affected by it, and the rainfall in these divisions was defective. In North and East Bengal, on the other hand, the precipitation was considerably above the average, while in South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur it was practically normal.

The change to hot-weather conditions of which there had been early indications even in February, became more marked during the first half of March, and weather during this period was feebly unsettled. Small shallow areas of low pressure of local origin passed across Bengal in various directions, and gave rise to thunderstorms in different parts of the province during their progress. During the latter part of the month, on the other hand, the circulation of the winds was steady and of the usual hot-weather character. The indraught from the Bay, however, was comparatively feeble, and the direction of the winds being, moreover, more westerly than usual, practically no rain fell during this period, the relative absence of moisture from the air being unfavourable to the formation of the thunderstorms characteristic of the period. Rainfall was therefore scanty throughout the month, the chief precipitation occurring during the disturbed period in the earlier half. Chota Nagpur was principally affected by the unsettled weather which then prevailed and received a rainfall largely in excess of the normal. In South-West Bengal likewise the showers during this period rose up to the average, but in the other divisions, especially North Bengal, the weather was drier than usual, there being comparatively few thunderstorms and in consequence deficient rainfall

With the advent of April, the conditions changed appreciably. Owing to the consistently high day temperatures in Bihar and Chota Nagpur, an area of low pressure maintained itself in that quarter during practically the whole month, and as the gradient was steep, winds were uniformly high throughout April. Further, owing to the position of the above low pressure area, the circulation was such as to give south-west winds in the south-west portions of the province, while over East and North Bengal the directions curved from south through south-east and east to north-east. Owing to the persistence of these conditions, the rainfall, copious in the southern and eastern parts, was extremely scanty over the remainder of the province. The conditions in normal years are always such as to cause as much larger precipitation in the former than in the latter divisions of the province, but in the present year these conditions were strikingly exaggerated with the resulting variations in the rainfall above indicated.

The conditions which obtained in April were to a certain extent perpetuated in May, with, however, this difference that the area of low pressure was pushed slightly to the south so as practically to coincide in position with the Division of Chota Nagpur. In consequence of this somewhat abnormal distribution, winds were more easterly than usual over the whole province, and as the pressure gradient was likewise steep, there was a very strong indraught of moist winds from the Bay into the province. Conditions were therefore exceptionally favourable for showery weather, and, as has already been pointed out, rainfall was in considerable excess in all divisions with the single exception of Orissa.

The rainfall totals due to ordinary weather conditions were, moreover, further swelled by the precipitation caused by a small cyclonic storm, which may be regarded as the forerunner of the monsoon current of the present year. This storm presented unusual features with regard both to its place of origin and its subsequent track. Forming on the 25th close to the Circars Coast, it passed inland early the next morning. Storms which cross the Circars Coast at this time ordinarily advance in a north-westerly direction across the continent, and do not appreciably affect the weather in Bengal. The present depression, however, after moving into the Central Provinces recurved through Chota Nagpur and South Bihar into North Bengal, where it filled up on the 28th. During the two days on which its influence was felt it gave general rain to the province.

At the beginning of June, the winds at the head of the Bay had moderated, and the weather was of the usual sultry character which distinguishes the period immediately preceding the break of the rains. The monsoon current had already established itself firmly in the south of the Bay, and there were already indications of a further advance northwards. The first storm of the month formed on the morning of the 3rd, somewhat to the south-west of Diamond Island. Conditions were, however, not yet favourable to the advance of a depression in the usual north-westerly direction, and it was in consequence diverted to the north-east, crossing the Burma Coast near Diamond Island early on the same day on which it was first noticed. Though no longer well defined, it apparently moved in a northerly direction during the next few days parallel to the Arakan Coast. Its influence on the weather of Bengal was purely negative in so much as it diverted the rainfall from the province. Though it practically ceased to exist as a definite depression on the 5th, the disturbed conditions which it left behind undoubtedly fostered the development of its successor, whose advance may be said to have constituted the first burst of the rains. This storm which formed at the head of the Bay on the 10th and crossed the province by a north-easterly path into Assam gave considerable rain to Bengal Proper and light rain to the western districts.

A temporary break followed the disappearance of this disturbance, and the actual establishment of the monsoon was due to the formation of a third storm on the 17th of the month. This latter depression moved slowly in a westerly direction into the Central Provinces, and the rainfall which accompanied it was naturally confined for the most part to the western districts. After this ordinary monsoon conditions obtained in the province, the current in the Bay continuing for the remainder of the month far above average strength, but the conditions were such as to determine the precipitation more particularly to the south-western portions of the province. During the last days of the month the weather was unusual, a diffused depression lying over Lower Bengal and shifting its position from day to day, the disturbed conditions finally culminating at the end of June in a small cyclonic storm at the head of the Bay.

Owing to the determination of the monsoon current during the latter half of the month to the south-western districts, rainfall was below the average in North and East Bengal, the deficiency in the former division amounting to 48 per cent. and in the latter to 16 per cent. In South-West Bengal and Bihar the rainfall was practically normal, while in Orissa and Chota Nagpur there was moderate excess.

In marked contrast to the number of storms at the head of the Bay in June, was the unusual absence of these disturbances during July. This striking feature of the weather was, no doubt, due to the uniformity and unusual strength of the monsoon current, as it is generally during a slight retrocession of the current that disturbed conditions arise in the north of the Bay area. Apart from the storm which was lying at the head of the Bay on the first of the month and which passed speedily into the Central Provinces, two disturbances marked the weather during June, the first being a cyclonic storm, which appeared in South-West Bengal on the 7th and which took a north-westerly direction, and the other a shallow depression which maintained its position over Lower Bengal from the 16th to the 20th, but, for the reason stated above, both of these depressions originated in the province itself. One other abnormal feature of the weather in July may be noted, i.e., the continuance of the rainfall during the apparently unfavourable conditions which obtained from the 23rd to the 28th. Not only was the barometer high during the whole, and the distribution unusual for the greater part, of that period, but the monsoon current over the centre and south of the Bay had fallen largely in strength. The continuance of rainfall may, however, in part be accounted for by the fact that the actual gradient of pressure at the head of the Bay and over the province was very steep, and that the indraught of moist air from the north of the Bay was, notwithstanding the general weakness of the monsoon current, exceptionally strong.

Under the generally favourable conditions which prevailed, rainfall was in July on the whole well distributed, and, for the most part, plentiful. Orissa was the only division which shewed a rainfall below the average, and the deficiency there was slight.

During the first three weeks of August the monsoon fully maintained its strength, but in the fourth week there were signs of weakening, and it was during the latter period that the first serious break in the rains took place. Two cyclonic storms formed at the head of the Bay during the month, both subsequently moving in a westerly direction through Chota Nagpur into the United Provinces. There was likewise a third shallow depression, which, however, only influenced the weather to a slight extent. Though the rainfall was somewhat light at the beginning of the month, it was fairly continuous and well distributed during the first three weeks. From the 23rd, however, till the 30th there was a marked diminution in the rainfall, owing to the temporary weakening of the monsoon current during that period. The only divisions which shew excess are Bihar and Chota Nagpur, and the former has largely to thank the heavy precipitations caused by a local depression on the 9th and 10th for its excess of 13 per cent. It should be noted that except in South-West Bengal the number of rainy days was greater than usual, so that to the comparative lightness of the rain must in the main be attributed the deficiency of the month. This comparative lightness was especially noticeable in the rainfall accompanying the storms which passed across the province and which seldom gave more than a very moderate precipitation. The greatest deficiency is shown in East and South-West Bengal, the percentage in the former being about 20, and in the latter 25 per cent. In North Bengal and Orissa the deficiency was insignificant.

The monsoon current in September, judging from the steepness of the gradient, maintained more than its average strength for a large part of the month. Yet the rainfall was deficient in all divisions of the province, and was practically determined by two cyclonic storms which occurred in the earlier part of the month and by a persistent, though shallow, depression which lay over the eastern portion of the province from the 18th to the 26th. The percentage deficiency was greatest in Bihar, where it amounted to over 60 per cent. As Orissa lay more or less in the track of both the cyclonic storms, the deficiency in that division was least, being about 14 per cent. In North Bengal the defect was 45 and in Chota Nagpur 48 per cent.

During the latter days of September the monsoon shewed unmistakable signs of weakening—a weakening which in this case proved to be due to an early setting in of the north-east monsoon. The latter had indeed established itself in the north of the Bay as early as the 7th of October, and for the greater part of the month the weather was free from rain. Practically the whole rainfall of the month was determined by an important storm, which crossed the Circars Coast on the 15th of the month, and after describing a curved path through the Central Provinces and Bihar finally broke up in the Nepal Himalayas. It was specially to Bihar and North Bengal that the storm brought copious rainfall, and the precipitation caused by it between the 16th and the 18th was sufficient to bring the average rainfall for the month above the normal in those divisions. The only other rainfall during October was that caused in Orissa by the retreating monsoon and further a light precipitation which took place in the eastern parts of the province in the earlier part of the month, due to disturbed weather in the Bay, which had, however, failed to develop into a regular cyclonic storm. The greatest percentage defect in the rainfall occurred in South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur, where the whole precipitation was only 35 per cent. of the normal. In all the divisions the number of rainy days was considerably below the average except in Orissa; but though in this case rain fell on slightly more than the average number of days, the total rainfall did not exceed 74 per cent. of the normal.

Looking at the total rainfall up to the end of October, it will be seen that although in most divisions rainfall was deficient during the actual monsoon, the same divisions for the most part shew excess during the hot-weather months, so that the total precipitation for the 10 months of the year does not differ to any serious extent from the average. The greatest deficiency occurred in Orissa, where it amounted to 12 per cent. In North Bengal it was 11 per cent., while in South-West Bengal, East Bengal and Bihar the rainfall was practically normal. Chota Nagpur is the only Division where there is excess above the normal, the excess in this case amounting to 10 per cent.
